SEES RUSSIAN EXILES FIGHTING DOGS FOR FOOD

Scrawny Kulaks Live in Den of Filth.

(The following dispatch from Henry Wales, the first American newspaper man who ever succeeded in visiting Soviet Russia's timber camps, reached The Tribune without being tampered with by the Russian censor. The dispatch was stopped by the soviet censor, but Mr. Wales had previously mailed a copy of it to the Paris office of The Tribune, from which it was cabled to Chicago. Discovery has been made that other cabled dispatches from Mr. Wales have been censored.)

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright, 1931, By The Chicago Tribune.]

ARCHANGEL, Russia, March 25.—[By mail to Paris.]—[Uncensored.]—The northern end of this city, called Kuzni Chika, contains two churches. One has been closed and the other transformed into a charnel house.

The huge church, a dirty brick structure, topped by a hideous green tinted dome and a three barred Orthodox Greek cross, is a clearing house for arriving kulak exiles until they begin their long tramp over the icy tundras and snow covered trails to the distant regions to which they have been deported. Russia has seized these peasants, stripped them of their wealth, to colonize the vast agricultural lands in the Pechora river district along the Barats sea, which touches the Arctic ocean.

The interior of the edifice is jammed with double deck beds made of rough boards. Here the peasants and their entire belongings are thrust among filthy vermin covered quilts and blankets—waiting for the endless march into the arctic.

Look Like Wild Men.

Like wild beasts in the cages of a menagerie, they sit with staring eyes, peering from emaciated faces, gray, brown, almost black from crusts of dirt. Their withered hands and fingers look like claws and talons, and their great masses of matted hair, long, unkempt beards and mustaches have not seen shears nor razors for months.

A fetid stench of excrement, sweat, filth, and corruption pervades the place, and almost causes one to vomit upon entering from the pure outside atmosphere.

A false roof is erected over the upper tier of bunks and two large stoves blaze away. But the heat of several hundred human bodies in the big low room, which is never ventilated, is sufficient to provide lost warmth.

Cook Their Own Stew.

Sprawled amidst ragged bedding and dirty straw, or sitting on the bunks with legs dangling, these broken men sit there day after day with scarcely enough nourishment to keep alive. Once a day a tiny ration of black bread and a handful of barley is doled out to them, and then each one cooks up a mess, called stew, and wolfishly devours it.

At night they prowl the city streets, rummaging in garbage cans, fighting for the offal with dogs. They are not guarded. A sentry stands at the doorway of the church, but they are permitted to wander about. They cannot escape. The frozen stretches of ice and snow in the pitiless arctic keeps them safer prisoners than any bayonet, cell or lock.

Forbidden to Beg.

The townspeople cannot and will not take them in, nor give them shelter.

The native population watches unmoved as the hungry men tramp the streets, mutely appealing for food—but dare not beg or ask for anything.

Nearly all of the kulaks are middle aged, or at least past 40. Most of them are 45 and 50 years, or older. A few are men who, by thrift and industry, attained dominating positions in their native villages before their expulsion.

Now one younger man—a round faced typical Mongol type, whose fat seems singularly out of place among the lean, withered frames of his elders.

Clad in Rags and Tatters.

All are clad in rags and tatters, with boots torn and bursted open, admitting snow and ice to enter with every step. They have bound rags

CERMAK LEADS 7 TO 3 IN POLL OF CHURCH FOLK

Various Creeds and Races Canvassed.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

An effort was made yesterday by a fragmentary poll of 56 churches of various races and creeds to ascertain the effect of Mayor Thompson's political plan to stir up race jealousies and prejudices. The poll also served the added purpose of finding out how churchgoers generally look upon the mayoralty candidates.

A total of 4,624 straws were collected, of which 730 were from the north side churches, 2,039 from the west side, and 1,855 from the south side. Of the total, 3,261 marked straws for A. J. Cermak, the Democratic candidate, and 1,363 for Thompson.

70% of Votes for Cermak.

Relatively few of the congregations indicated a preference for Thompson and a large part of these were in colored churches. Cermak obtained 70.52 per cent of the church straws and Thompson 29.48 per cent.

To those who have not followed straw votes this may appear as an unusually high percentage for Cermak, but it was surpassed by William E. Dever four years ago.

In 1927 THE TRIBUNE collected 4,475 straw votes from persons attending church. Of these, 3,297 favored Dever, 1,078 were for Thompson, and an even 100 cast straws for John Dill Robertson. Dever obtained 73.67 per cent of the straws, as compared with 70.52 yesterday for Cermak.

A Significant Poll.

Thompson's propaganda to stir up race hatreds has been the city hall's chief line of attack during the last week. Therefore yesterday's church poll has unusual significance. It indicates that the weapon which Thompson has considered his strongest has made small, if any, impression.

The 15,834 straws collected on street corners throughout the city before the church poll yesterday, indicated that Cermak was leading by more than three to two. There was nothing in the church poll to indicate a substantial error in the street poll, except that it may be a little low.

Cermak Piles Up G. O. P. Votes.

The percentages in the street poll indicate that an enormous number of Republicans are intending to vote for Cermak. Reference to particular church polls emphasizes that fact.

Objection was made at a few churches to a poll being taken and the straw vote collectors were withdrawn, because it is the desire of THE TRIBUNE not to offend any church or its members.

With the exception of the Maxwell street market, all of yesterday's straw votes were taken among members of church congregations. The Maxwell street poll was taken because of the opportunity to get an expression from the Sunday crowds which go to the market there. The following table, showing the details of the Sunday poll, gives the denomination and address of each church polled, with the predominant nationality or race of each congregation where there appears to be such predominance:

Millionaires in Britain Vanish; Only Few Left

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 29.—Britain's millionaires are thinning out at such a rate that continuance of the present mortality of high incomes for another twenty years would mean that by that time not a man or woman with that much money would remain in the country.

The report for 1929-'30 of the commissioner of inland revenue brings into graphic relief the situation now as compared with that of only a few years ago. In 1928-'29, the last year for which complete figures are available, there were 487 millionaires in England, Scotland, Wales, and northern Ireland.

Shows Drop in Fortunes.

Just four years before, in 1924-'25, there were 601 millionaires recorded in the taxation rolls. For purposes of computation, a millionaire in pounds sterling should have an income of $250,000 a year. On that basis millionaires have disappeared at the rate of 23 per year. The greatest slump was felt in 1927-'28, when 48 disappeared from the rolls.

Reaching into higher altitudes of finance, the same tale is told by the commissioner's figures. In 1928-'29 there were 130 persons drawing incomes of $500,000 or more annually.

The change is more pronounced as the statistician goes backward. In 1927-'28 there were 133 persons receiving more than $500,000 a year and 1926-'27 there were 151. On that basis the figure for 1929-'30 is 120 odd, or a decline of around 30 in four years.

Smaller Incomes Increase.

On the other hand, the smaller incomes of the country are increasing, and incomes subject to taxation for income also are multiplying. Altogether there were 2,250,000 persons chargeable for income tax in 1929-'30, or 50,000 more than in the previous year. The gross income "brought under the review of the department" for 1929-'30 was the highest since 1922, when the Irish Free State was created.

The income of the country subject to taxation during 1929-'30 is placed at $6,775,000,000.

POLICEMEN LIE IN WAIT; TRAP HOTEL ROBBERS

Acting on secret information that an attempt would be made to rob the Rosemoor hotel, 1622 Jackson boulevard, early this morning, Policemen David Mulcrone and Emmet McNamara hid in the lobby. Shortly afterward two young men entered and ordered Harvey McCullough, the clerk, to "stick 'em up." The police captured the pair, who gave the names of Charles Wilkerson and Charles Poole. Waiting for them in a taxicab at the curb, the police found Clara McGinn and Idabelle Tigh, 4435 Malden avenue, who said they had met the boys at a night club in the loop.

SNOWBOUND 'TEA' ENDS AFTER TWO DAYS; ALL HAPPY

Milwaukee, Wis., March 29.—[Special.]—After being snowbound for two days in the small village of Cambridge, occupants of 125 automobiles bid their hosts a reluctant adieu this afternoon and headed for their homes.

Combined efforts of county and bus line snow plows broke a path through the drifts today.

"The snowstorm brought us the season's social event," said W. A. Birk, proprietor of the village inn, where 75 of the stalled automobilists were given quarters. "Every family in town—even the banker's and leading merchant's—had guests for the two days. Private citizens threw open their homes when the hotel filled up."

Birk read off the names of hotel guests, whose residences gave every state and Canada representation.

An impromptu dancing party and entertainment which started last night lasted until the early hours this morning.

Mild weather today aided snow plows in their battle against the large drifts blocking roadways in Wisconsin counties north of Milwaukee. Utilities predicted normal travel conditions in most sections by tomorrow.

Buses for Minneapolis started the first northward trip tonight and were confident they would get through. Other bus lines announced resumption of service tomorrow to most cities, except Whitewater, Madison, and north of Sheboygan.

Ex-Star Kills Self; Drives Car Over Cliff

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NICE, France, March 29.—Mrs. David Townsend, who was a Ziegfeld Follies girl in 1923 and known as Peggy Davis, committed suicide by plunging her automobile over a 200 foot cliff from the renownedly beautiful Corniche highway last night. She was 24 years old and had become known as the most beautiful woman in the French Riviera.

At 10 o'clock last night Mrs. Townsend appeared at a roadside inn between here and Monte Carlo in a state of excitement. She ordered two double sized cognacs in rapid succession, gulped both down, and then asked for stationery, pen, and ink. She wrote a hasty note, hurried out, jumped into her car, and drove off at breakneck speed.

Near Vanderbilt Estate.

Villagers found her body and the car this morning 500 feet below a sharp curve in the highway adjoining the estate of Col. and Mrs. Jacques Balsan, the latter being the former Consuelo Vanderbilt. Alongside the body they found the note written in the café and addressed to her husband, reading as follows:

"I do not wish to go back to the theater as you want me to. Take care of mother and the baby. I am tired of life."

Mrs. Townsend is variously reported to have been born in Sydney, Australia, and Birmingham, England.

Her husband, said to have made his fortune in Wall street, declared his wife was highly nervous. Their daughter, aged five, cried for her mother throughout the day at the Townsend villa at Cap Ferrat.

FIRE INTERRUPTS PARTY AT HOME OF MRS. BORDEN

A chimney fire temporarily interrupted a musicale last night in the home of Mrs. Waller Borden, 1020 Lake Shore drive. Mrs. Borden had about a dozen guests, including Frederick Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. The guests were in the drawing room of the old stone mansion listening to a piano recital when soot in the chimney began to smolder. Within a few minutes smoke began to billow from the several fireplaces in the house.

Servants assured the guests that there were plenty of exits in the event of danger. Mrs. Borden telephoned the fire department. For a few minutes firemen were trooping over the floors of the Borden home.

Report Bomb Exploded Near Twin Royal Palace

TURIN, Italy, March 30.—(AP)—Reports were current here today that a bomb had exploded in the Piazzetta Pasello, near the royal palace, where the Prince of Piedmont, Humbert, and his bride, Marie Jose, princess of the Belgians, live. Officials denied any knowledge of the affair. The infernal machine was said to have been a box of explosives and exploded without damage.

Eight Robbers Seize Hotel on Sheridan Rd.

Eight bandits shortly before 6 o'clock this morning held up the Copeland hotel, 5009 Sheridan road, and obtained loot totaling $3,825 in cash and jewelry, but were frustrated in their apparent main intention of rifling the safety deposit boxes in the vault when the clerk convinced them he did not know the combination. Five employés of the hotel, two guests and a policeman, who had been disarmed, were compelled to lie on the floor during the robbery.

Herd Employés in Room.

Four of the bandits appeared at first, the leader carrying a sawedoff shotgun. He forced the clerk, Walter Godwin, 858 Leland avenue, and Miss Julia Danziger, the telephone operator, to go into an ante room and lie on the floor, where they were guarded by two of the robbers. An elevator boy, the engineer and a porter also were corralled and placed in the room. When the elevator buzzer sounded, the boy was compelled to answer and run the elevator to the fifth floor, where a guest, B. Rotter, was captured and taken to the room with the others.

Guest Loses Cash.

Just then Theodore Krol, another guest, appeared at the hotel door and was seized by two robbers on guard there. From Krol the bandits took $1,200 in cash and a $2,500 Shriners' ring. From the hotel cash drawer they got $125.

Meanwhile Richard Swanson, Lincoln Park policeman, who was standing at Argyle street and Sheridan road, near the hotel, had guns poked into his back by two other members of the gang. His pistol and star were taken from him and he was marched into the hotel and shoved into the room with the other prisoners. When the robbers found they could not get into the vault they fled in two automobiles.

Burke Reaches Michigan After 584 Mile Dash

St. Joseph, Mich., March 29.—[Special.]—Fred Burke, called by police "the most dangerous outlaw alive," was brought back here tonight from St. Joseph, Mo., under machine gun guard. An armored car, carrying Burke, with a convoy of two police cars, rolled up the driveway to the old red brick Berrien county jail at 8:25 p. m.

The caravan made the 584 mile journey over the Missouri and Illinois prairie lands in exactly fifteen hours without mishap. Secrecy marked every step in the trip from the departure to the arrival. This was deemed necessary by the authorities to thwart any attempt of the desperado's friends to free him or of his gangland enemies to silence him in a sudden ambush.

Faces Murder Charge Today.

Burke will be arraigned at 10:30 tomorrow morning before Justice Joseph R. Collier on the charge of killing Policeman Charles Skelly of St. Joseph on Dec. 14, 1929. The state will ask that he be imprisoned for life — the maximum penalty in Michigan. Burke will fight the charge. He has employed Chicago and St. Joseph [Mo.] attorneys for his defense.

Hundreds of his former neighbors waited from early afternoon to catch a glimpse of the killer wanted for the St. Valentine's day massacre of seven Moran gangsters in Chicago, the $325,000 bank robbery at Jeffersen, Wis., and a score of other crimes. Residents of St. Joseph had known him before the slaying of Policeman Skelly as "Fred Dane," a man of leisure, on Lake Shore drive here.

Machine Guns Guard Arrival.

A light sleet was falling as the three automobiles of the caravan stopped beside the main door of the jail. Michigan and Missouri policemen piled out of the first and third cars and pointed machine guns at the armored car as Burke was led out, manacled to Deputy Sheriff Fred Taylor.

A battery of a dozen photographers aimed their cameras at Burke, a stocky, mustached figure. He threw his free hand to his face and bent double as flashlights boomed. Still doubled, he walked awkwardly through the main door. Inside the first barred door he reluctantly posed with the escort.

Double Locks on Cell.

Burke refused to be interviewed. He was led to his cell in a corner on the first floor of the jail. The cell, walled on two sides and adjoining those of fellow inmates on the others, was doubled barred and locked in preparation for his arrival.

Guards with shotguns have been placed at the window and door. From the cell a corridor leads to a barred anteroom door and beyond that is a door of extra thickness leading to the

SEVEN BANDITS BIND EMPLOYES; ROB WIEBOLDT'S

Three Are Slain in Series of Holdups.

Seven gunmen, equipped with elaborate safe cracking equipment, took possession of the Wieboldt department store at 53d, Green, and Peoria streets, for nearly eight hours yesterday, blasted and drilled openings in a vault and safe, and escaped with $50,000 in cash and checks. Two store employés were held captive during the robbery.

The holdup was one of forty-three reported to police in the 24 hour period ending at 6 o'clock last night. Two of the victims were shot and killed. There were numerous holdups last night following the 24 hour period, including the holdup of ten couples in a south side dance hall. A youth suspected of being an automobile thief, was slain by police.

Two Concealed in Store.

The Wieboldt raid was described by detectives as one of the smoothest professional jobs recorded. Shortly after dawn yesterday two men who, it is believed, probably concealed themselves in the store Saturday evening, pounced upon Christ Swanson, 38 years old, 1846 North Albany avenue, the engineer, in the boiler room.

One of the men cupped his hands over Swanson's eyes and forced him to face a wall. The other taped his eyes with adhesive strips and secured his wrists similarly. "If you move," they told him, "you'll be shot." One of the bandits stood guard. The second walked to the rear and opened an alley door from the inside, admitting five accomplices.

About twenty minutes later they trapped Henry McIver, 2628 West Monroe street, the watchman. Two bandits took him into custody and remained with him until nearly 2 o'clock, forcing him to sound his telegraph system alarm boxes every half hour. One stood guard over the engineer.

Try to Open Vault.

The other four robbers, three of whom wore masks, went to the offices on the fifth floor. They tried for half an hour to drill through the steel wall vault. Unsuccessful, they resorted to acetylene torches, and cut a hole 12 inches long and 8 inches wide, using two acetylene tanks which they had brought with them. Even with this opening they were unable to reach in and force the vault door from the inside, so they blew it open with a charge of nitroglycerin.

Inside the vault the robbers met further resistance in the steel safe. Once more the acetylene flame was used. A hole 8x6 inches was carved through the right side of the strongbox. Inside were about twenty money receptacles. Two of the robbers scouted around the store and procured several traveling bags in which to place the loot. The money, considerable of it in silver, was piled into the leather containers. About $20 in pennies, nickels and dimes was left scattered on the floor.

Leave by Alley Door.

The raiders then gathered downstairs, tied McIver with Swanson, bade them good-by, and departed through the alley door.

McIver freed himself half an hour later, untied the engineer, and called the police. No clews were found. The robbers wore gloves to prevent fingerprints. Inside the vault lay dozens of cigaret stubs. Rugs, bolts of cloth and a mattress were scattered on the outside. They had been used to deaden the nitroglycerin explosion. Officials of the company were summoned and F. J. Dempsey, credit manager, estimated the loss at $50,000, of which approximately $40,000 was in cash.

The robbery was the second of major proportions against a Wieboldt store. On Jan. 26 five bandits stole $19,200 from the store at 3231 Lincoln avenue after shooting Policeman William Binder and Joseph Andrafco, a bystander. Binder shot one of the men, who died several days later.

Two Slain by Bandits.

The two victims slain by bandits during the 24 hour period ending at 6 last night were Patrick Costello, owner of the soft drink parlor at 414 West 79th street, and Henry Biggs, father of three children and night manager of the Waggoner grease station at 53 West Garfield boulevard.

Biggs was slain supposedly by a Negro bandit who took $80 from the office till early yesterday. He lived at 1953 Montrose avenue. Costello was killed late Saturday night by a trigger nervous robber. The bandit and two others had Costello and six patrons lined against the wall when

Dash Across 4 States with Slayer

The map shows the route followed by Berrien county (Michigan) officials in taking Fred Burke, wanted in many places for many crimes, to St. Joseph, Mich. The distance in miles between the principal points along the way from St. Joseph, Mo., to St. Joseph, Mich., is indicated by figures on the map. The trip was made in 15 hours.

as fired his shotgun, apparently because of nervousnes.

Joseph Burski, 17 years old, 720 Ayers court, was shot and killed by Policeman Frank Luczak of the North Racine avenue station when he fled from a stolen automobile last night. His companions, John Saboj, 16 years old, 1069 North Marshfield avenue, and Leo Matula, 13 years old, 1539 Clarinda street, were captured. Both were intoxicated, the police said. The trio was pursued by Luczak and Sergt. Daniel Konkowsky in Wood street near Walton street. The Burski youth jumped from his car during the chase, ignored two warning bullets, and was killed by a third. The stolen machine is owned by Nicholas Chernik, 1612 Fullerton avenue.

Gunmen Rob Ballroom.

Three armed men swaggered into the first floor entrance of the Casino Moderne ballroom, formerly the Cocoanut Grove, at 913 East 63d street, menaced ten couples, a cashier, and a ticket taker, and stole $150 in receipts. The cashier, Miss Marge Ford, 21 years old, 6527 Kimbark avenue, was forced to hand over the money. On March 1 three bandits held her up, intimidated several other employes, and stole $600.

Also among the forty-three robberies up to 6 o'clock last night was that of the Schiller flower shop at 2221 West Madison street. Two gunwomen, accompanied by there men, also armed, held up Reinhold Schiller, the owner, and three employés, and escaped with $250. The five drove up in two cars. The girls, one of whom was called "Babe" by her friends, entered the shop, inquired about roses, and drew revolvers. The men then enfered. They took $65 from a filing cabinet and $185 from Schiller.

Three Women Are Robbed.

Three women were held up last night by bandits. Miss Bunetta Hall, 358 East 60th street, cashier of the Michigan theater, 110 East Garfield boulevard, surrendered $25 to a lone bandit. Miss Dorothy Wright, a stenographer, lost $20 and a $650 coat to two bandits in front of her apartment at 3628 Pine Grove avenue. Miss Evelyn Monka, 2516 North Talman avenue, cashier of the Avon theater, 3325 Fullerton avenue, was robbed of $300 by an armed man at the ticket window.

The following is the complete list of robberies reported to the police in the 24 hour period from 6 p. m. Saturday to 6 p. m. last night:

These reports are taken from the police department records as related by the victims of the holdups.

FORMER PREMIER HERRIOT QUITS AS MAYOR OF LYONS

LYONS, France, March 29.—(AP)—Former Premier Edouard Herriot, radical Socialist party leader and for 25 years mayor of Lyons, resigned the latter post today because of a disagreement of his party with the Socialists over the senatorial election in the Rhone department.

Five of his principal assistants resigned with him. The Rhone prefect accepted the resignations, but asked Herriot to continue in office until a successor can be installed.

Herriot is known as probably the most active mayor in France. He is one of the builders of the modern industrial Lyons, third largest city in population in France and rated second in industrial importance.

Chinese Troops Raid M. E. Mission; Arrest Red Suspect

FOOCHOW, China, March 29.—(AP)—Disregarding protests from the American and Dutch consuls, provincial military forces entered the Methodist Episcopal Mission hospital here today and arrested a Dutch subject of Chinese parentage on charges of spreading communism. The action was considered in foreign circles here to be a violation of the mission's extra-territorial rights.

BURKE REACHES MICHIGAN; TO BE ARRAIGNED TODAY

Shotguns Guard Killer in St. Joseph Jail.

main hallway. The jail, built in 1895, has never had a break.

Preparations for receiving Burke at the jail were made Mrs. Fred J. Cutler, wife of Sheriff Cutler, who was in charge of the escort that brought the prisoner back. Cutler took office in January.

"The preparation has been a nerve racking job," said Mrs. Cutler. "Holding Burke here will be worse. But I'll stick through it with Fred."

Burke Gets a Steak

As Burke was placed in the cell he asked Deputy Sheriff Vincent O'Neill if he might have a steak. The deputy relayed the request to the sheriff as he was being interviewed by reporters.

"Give him what he wants," said Sheriff Cutler. "He's had nothing but sandwiches all day."

When the meal was brought Burke questioned Deputy O'Neill as to the crowd outside. He was told that they were townspeople and newspaper men from western cities. He asked whether there were any Chicagoans other than newspaper men and expressed relief when he was told there were not. He denied however, that he feared he might be shot to death in his cell by gangsters because of what he knew of their operations.

Sheriff Cutler said Burke was quiet and even agreeable during the dash from St. Joseph, Mo. The prisoner slumped down below the level of the armored car's windows as the caravan passed through towns, but refused to say whether this was from fear of assassination or to escape bullets of friends who might try to rescue him.

"We stopped ten times during the trip," Sheriff Cutler said. "At stops I asked him what he wanted and he said he was satisfied to get what we were taking. That was sandwiches — we couldn't stop for a meal.

"He said he didn't want to face trial in Michigan, but, of course, we had the extradition warrant. He admitted being the fellow who lived around here under the name of Dane. I guess he won't be interviewed because he's tired and hungry. Well, so am I."

Reassure Victim's Father.

The sheriff and others of the escort, including Missouri state policemen, who formed the rear guard, went to bed shortly after their arrival. Deputy O'Neill was left in charge of the prisoner. The elderly father of the slain policeman, Skelly, had begged to take part in the guarding of Burke, but was told that the force is sufficient to prevent escape or attack.

The father, Fred Skelly, will be in Justice Collier's court tomorrow morning when the state will produce three witnesses who are prepared to testify against Burke. These may not be called tomorrow, Prosecutor E. A. Westin said. Jurymen for the Berrien county Circuit court have been dismissed. No new panel will be called until May, which means, said the prosecutor, that if Burke pleads not guilty, which is almost certain, he cannot be tried until May.

One of the witnesses is Forrest Kool of Buchanan, Mich., whose accidental brush with Burke led to the killing of Policeman Skelly. Before the killing Burke had been so successful in his rôle of man of leisure that he had been asked to aid in a Salvation Army campaign for funds.

On the evening of Dec. 14, 1929, on a crowded road, Burke's automobile scraped the fender of Kool's car. Kool gave chase and picked up Policeman Skelly near the city limits of St. Joseph. As the cars drew abreast Skelly leaped on the running board of Burke's car and Burke shot him. He kept on firing as the policeman fell to the pavement. Posses of citizens joined in the hunt for Burke, who had abandoned his car after being recognized.

Burke was driven to his home by a neighbor, Steve Kooney, who knew nothing of the killing. Kooney is the second state witness. Monroe Wolf, a member of the House of David, is the third. Wolf's car was commandeered by Burke the night of the killing and Wolf was forced at the point of a revolver to drive Burke by a circuitous route to join his confederates for flight.

Find Machine Guns in Home.

In Burke's St. Joseph home the police discovered two machine guns which ballistics experts declared were the weapons used in the St. Valentine's day massacre which occurred in 1929 in a North Clark street garage in Chicago. The discovery of the weapons and of documents in the home disclosed that Burke was wanted by the police of several cities.

The hunt went on without success until last Thursday, when Burke was captured in the home of his wife's parents at Milan, Mo. An amateur detective had recognized his picture accompanying an article about the massacre. Chicago, St. Joseph, and other cities disputed Burke's custody. The other cities waived their claims, however, in view of the strong case against him in Michigan.

State's Attorney Swanson of Cook county disclosed that Chicago's claim was the evidence of ballistics experts and the identification of Burke's picture by a witness who was 75 feet from the five killers who fled the massacre scene. The witness has never seen Burke. The case is not strong enough for presentation to a jury, Mr. Swanson said.

Burke was led from his cell in St. Joseph, Mo., shortly after dawn today. He was placed in the armored car in front of the police station and the trip to Michigan started.

The armored car and its escort followed U. S. highway No. 36 to Hannibal, Mo., where a telegram was dispatched to the authorities here setting the hour of arrival between 8 and 9 o'clock. Highway No. 36 was followed to Springfield, Ill., where the caravan branched off to Joliet on Illinois Route No. 4.

At Joliet the caravan turned to Chicago Heights and drove through Valparaiso, La Porte, and New Carlisle, Ind., and thence north, entering St. Joseph from the east.

STREETS TORN UP LAST AUGUST GO WITHOUT REPAIR

Residents on West Side Make Protest.

West side property owners in the neighborhood of the Monroe street sewer improvement yesterday protested against the failure of Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe to repair streets made impassable on completion of the sewer project last summer. The present condition of the streets constitutes a menace to traffic and has deteriorated property values, residents maintain.

In building the connecting lines with the main sewer on Monroe street workers ripped holes in the pavement, which have been filled with the broken pavement without being smoothed over, it is charged. Small mounds for the lines leading into homes rib the streets at regular intervals, which make driving a roller coaster experience, say the property owners.

Streets Become Impassable.

The condition is found to be general throughout the sewer area from Clinton to Leavitt streets, but particularly bad in the vicinity of Loomis, Wood, Peoria, and neighboring streets. In all of the streets the work was completed last August and the streets left as the workers filled them. During the recent snowstorm the streets were impassable and are scarcely less so now, property owners declare.

The improvement was made under the direction of Michael Faherty, president of the board of local improvements. Under usual procedure, it was said, the work of repair is paid from the vehicle tax funds controlled by Commissioner Wolfe. The assessments for the improvement do not provide for the repair, residents were told.

Charge Business Losses.

Landlords complain that they have lost tenants, merchants point to business losses, and residents to hazards because of the condition of the streets. Requests for action on the streets have been ignored, it is charged.

"In more than six months there has been no move to make needed repairs," said Charles R. Lott, owner of a corner at Loomis and Van Buren streets. "The condition on Monroe street is hardly better.

"I was charged interest on the special assessment for the sewer from August, 1930, and did not get a bill until Feb. 1. La Salle street was torn up after the streets in the neighborhood of my property and is now in fine shape. I cannot understand the discrimination."

Property Owners Aroused by Streets' Condition

Catch Robber a Minute After Police Radio Speaks

At 7:45 o'clock last night Policemen John Dallenger and George McNeil of the Lawndale station heard a radio report of a burglary at the home of Charles Marks, 1913 South Harding avenue. At 7:46 they caught Irving Josl, 21 years old, a clerk, 2121 South Harding avenue, emerging from a front entrance. He was taken to the station. In his pockets were three watches stolen from the Marks home. He confessed fifteen other robberies.

A Night Letter from Ring Lardner

Tucson, Ariz., March 29.—[Special.]—There is no doubt that Mr. Dempsey was sincere when he told Mr. Clements of the Chicago Coliseum company that he would fight Harry Wills for a million dollars, but there is considerable doubt in what is left of my mind that Mr. Clements, from whom the financial depression has evidently been kept a secret, will be able to raise that amount this week-end. And Harry ain't going to get in the ring with Jack for nothing, not unless he is crazy. Mr. Dempsey once gave the undersigned a friendly pat on the shoulder on the board walk at Atlantic City and my back would have been broken if they had laid the walk out of concrete. However, if this match should go through I advise my friends not to insist on their seats being too close to the ring because along about the beginning of the first round somebody in the first twelve rows will find one of the combatants sitting in their lap. I won't mention no names.

Man Slain with Hammer; Find His Wife Unconscious

Carlyle, Ill., March 29.—(AP)—Paul Jakel, 60, proprietor of a bakery here, was found dead, his head battered with a hammer, in a garage in the rear at his home this afternoon. Nearby his wife, Martha, 58, was lying unconscious, her face bruised and her arms lacerated. Revived, she told Sheriff J. D. Erlinger, he said, that she had killed her husband and attempted to commit suicide.

BROOKHART SAYS TRIBUNE IS ONLY WET SPOT IN IOWA

Tells Canal Zone He Could Make U. S. Dry.

BY GERALD MARTIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BALBOA, C. Z., March 29.—Senator Smith W. Brookhart, addressing Canal Zone residents packed in the Balboa church tonight on the subject of prohibition, continuously attacked THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, intimating that it was Chicago's first racketeer.

"The only thing in Iowa that is wet is THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE," he declared.

Senator Brookhart denounced Wall street and Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury, and said:

"I could enforce prohibition throughout the United States. I know a law can be enforced because I have done it."

Tells of His 1898 Work.

Then at some length the Iowa senator dwelt upon the time when, as a second lieutenant in 1898, he cleaned up his Iowa National Guard camp by sending out military police to rid the camp of liquor. He told how, when he first visited congress in 1896, he saw a bar in the capital and witnessed more drunkenness there on that day than during the last nine years.

"I have made 813 speeches in 13 states during the last year, but this evening is the first time I have mentioned prohibition, for it is only financiers and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE that keep hammering away at it. With three-fourths of the country the question is settled. If I had my way I could keep the soldiers out of wet Panama. I have done it before in Iowa, and I could do it here or anywhere else.

Claims Tribune Lies.

"They have cleaned up all the racketeers in Chicago excepting Al Capone and THE TRIBUNE, which racketeered with the Hearst papers years ago, and still continues. I once ran a paper, but it was entirely different from THE TRIBUNE. It lies about speakeasies in Chicago. In prewar days there were 7,000 retailers paying licenses and another 12,000 'blind pigs,' a total easily exceeding the number of speakeasies which the wets say now exist. I could clean them all up in no time."

Two Lake Michigan Car Ferries Break Ice Bonds

Menominee, Mich., March 29.—(AP)—The Ann Arbor line's car ferries numbers 4 and 5 freed themselves from an ice pack outside the harbor here early today and proceeded across Lake Michigan to Frankfort, Mich. They were caught in the ice during Saturday's blizzard.

Cafe Owner Sentenced for Fatal Liquor Party

Lockhart, Tex., March 29.—(AP)—A café proprietor, Robert Golightly of Austin today was convicted of possession and sale of liquor and sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment, the charge resulting from the death of a young widow after a Texas university fraternity party.

D. VON KLEIST, KNOWN TO CUB FANS, ENDS LIFE

Dietrich Von Kleist, 57 years old, 147 Cornelia avenue, former owner of the Cubs' grill at 1059 Addison street and well known to ball players and fans, committed suicide early yesterday by inhaling gas in the apartment of Miss Mae Wolf, 4541 Malden street, a waitress in his employ. Despondent over financial reverses prompted his act, police were told by his widow, Mrs. Paula Von Kleist. Von Kleist was forced to sell his interest in the grill last fall and was operating a restaurant at 3730 Broadway.

Von Kleist's body was found by Miss Wolf's roommate, Miss Norma Gebhardt, also a waitress, who notified the Town Hall police. Both girls were held to insure their presence at the inquest today. Mrs. Von Kleist told Lieut. John J. Benson that her husband lost money in a bank failure last summer which forced him to sell his interest in the grill. His new venture was not successful, she said.

Youth Is Shot to Death in Quarrel with Negro

Sidney Indes, 18 years old, 4624 Grenshaw street, was shot and killed early today in a quarrel with a Negro in front of 1228 South Kedzie avenue. Samuel Edelman, 1114 South California avenue, and Alex Snyder, 1316 South Troy street, told the police that they saw the Negro draw a pistol and fire at Indes. The shooting was done by William Davis, 33, of 1228 South Springfield avenue. He fled, but was later arrested by Sergt. Ray Gilso. Davis said the quarrel was over a dice game that had been played previously.

SEES RUSSIAN EXILES FIGHTING DOGS FOR FOOD

Finds Scrawny Kulaks in Den of Filth.

onto their skeleton-like bodies with rope, string, wire—anything to hold some protection against the bitter cold blasts of the arctic winds.

Stowed in a corner of their bunks are all their worldly possessions—battered teapots or kettles, torn paper parcels containing odds and ends they salvaged from their homes when they were deported. Their bedding of ragged blankets is alive with lice and bedbugs. Cockroaches and wood ticks crawl over everything.

Many Are Half Naked.

Many are half naked with enormous rents in their trousers and shirts—they do not wear underclothing. Some quite nude, lie among the straw and quilts.

Nearly all are barefoot, their boots turned upside down to dry off, giving off a fearful odor.

A tired looking, aged man with shaggy eyebrows and his face a mass of bristles was chewing off hunks from a raw fish.

An old skinny man, stripped bare above the waist, sat on the edge of his bed gnawing a bone like an animal, showing his long, dirty fangs as he ripped away, cracking the bone and sucking the marrow.

Chews on Frozen Potato.

Another was chewing a raw, frozen potato.

They looked just like wild animals at a circus, except that they had bunks instead of iron bars. But the most dreadful thing of all was their eyes.

They had an unspeakable, hopeless expression that I had only seen once before in my life—in field hospitals just behind the front lines during the war, where mortally wounded men, carried back on stretchers, emerged from the shock of injury only to realize that the end was at hand.

They did not seem to see me, and only answered questions with a visible effort.

Scratch Vermin Bites.

They sat silently among themselves, each in his separate bunk on a pallet of rags and straw. Up in front of the church, and beneath what was once the altar, five old men sat about a table—the only article of furniture except the bunks. But they never spoke. They sat gazing down at the floor or fingering uncertainly at torn clothing, scratching themselves perpetually as the vermin devoured them.

One old man had an infected foot as the result of a torn felt boot and frost bite. It was swathed in blood stained rags, and as I unwrapped the "bandage" I saw the telltale brownish mark of blood poisoning setting in.

Another was trying to pare long protruding toenails with a piece of glass from a broken window, and one was trying to saw off a length of beard with one blade of what was once a pair of scissors.

Sends "Gift" to Daughter.

Perched off in a corner one Teutonic looking individual, wearing a pair of spectacles which gave him a dignified appearance despite his straggly hair and beard, was wrapping an article into a package.

"I am going to send it to my daughter in the Ukraine," he explained.

Bare chests and black arms and legs bristled with red bites from bed bugs. I could see body lice crawling over the sleepers.

They all had yellowish, brownish, grayish complexions from dirt. Though long pent up indoors, despite the fact they are permitted to go out, few ventured into the face of the bitter cold clad only in rags. They sat like specires with eyes staring straight ahead, unseeing, unmoving, unspeaking.

It is difficult to understand how the local population can steel their hearts against the concentration of misery confined here unless it is according to Einstein's theory of relativity—that the rest of the inhabitants are only relatively better off and on short rations themselves, so they cannot spare anything to give to the sufferers.

Stigma of Kulaks Outlaws Them.

But nothing could explain to me how the people could ignore the sufferings of their own countrymen—their own kind. But the dreaded stigma of the kulaks outlaws them from all others—it classes them as a new bourgeoise threatening to become another menace to capitalism because their greater thrift and ability gave them ascendency over other peasants in the native villages.

As I gazed at one man lying back in his bunk I saw a long, slender object moving among his rags. I thought at first that it was a long worm or a tiny snake, but suddenly two small red eyes appeared and then a dirty gray head of a little white mouse.

"It came all the way from Siberia with me," he explained. "It lives inside my shirt here, usually up on my shoulder. It is all I have got left."

Carries His Own Barley.

I saw a venerable patriarch, whom I thought might have been a priest because he wore a sort of an amulet around his neck attached to a leather cord. I watched him unwrap it. It contained a handful of barley meal which he placed in a little pot and started stewing.

These 250 men had elected a leader, called Starttza, as their spokesman, and I saw him, a tall, bent man with a withered frame, chin sunk on his chest, gazing into space.

"No complaints," he said bitterly when I questioned him. "Everything is all right—you can see that."

Glaring Eyes Fascinate Writer.

The afternoon sun darted its lowering rays through the colored, leaded glass windows of the church, now turned into a monstrous hell hole, tinging with red like blood the gray, yellow face of the forlorn inmates. A half dozen forms shambled forward to take the cigarets I offered, while another lingered to snipe the butt I dropped.

Always their glaring eyes fascinated me—cannibals must have eyes like that when they contemplate eating human flesh.

Near the doorway I ran across an anamolous note. One poor devil had salvaged an empty caviar tin somewhere and was busily scouring the inside of the can with a bit of bread, scraping up any of the remaining little eggs and grease from the roe.

Outside the children of the neighborhood were skiing and sleigh riding down the slopes beside the church, laughing, chattering and playing. Mothers with market baskets on their arms were standing gossiping with one another. Just down the street groups of boys were snowballing a drunken mill hand staggering homeward.

White Haired Man Weeps.

It seemed incredible that the outside world was leading a normal life with such abject misery just inside the church walls.

I turned and re-entered the church to make sure I had not been dreaming. Sure enough, there they sat, wraithlike forms of silent men, scarcely looking up to notice me as I moved among them.

Then I saw a terrible sight. Sitting bolt upright in a bunk, a white haired man was weeping. He was not sobbing convulsively, but just weeping with tears rolling down his encrusted cheeks.

There is something piteous about a grown man crying. It makes you feel ashamed—makes you feel sort of guilty and turn away.

Families Living in Caves.

I hurried out again and proceeded to another kulak concentration camp above saw mill No. 18 on the Malmaza channel leading to the White sea.

Whole families of kulaks live there dug in caves in the ground like rodents, or in flimsy shelters made of bits of plank, branches of trees, sheets of tin, and anything they can find to protect them from the weather.

The womenfolk here, too, are sad-eyed, hopeless creatures, muffled in rags and shawls, sometimes with small children clinging to them.

Children Learn Timber Trade.

In most cases older children had been placed in the state timber industry's schools to learn the trade, thereby earning a little to insure that they are adequately fed.

This camp does not convey the horrors of the Kuzni Chika church, perhaps because of the different setting, perhaps because the women, despite their misery, know how to arrange things better. For one thing, their hair is cut shorter, and I saw the reason—one woman acting as a barber, was lopping off long beards with a rusty scissors.

I was told that some townspeople steal up to the settlement at night and leave stale bread, salt herring, and other food for the kulaks, but most of them seemed callous and amazed at my interest in the wretches.

From one cave came plaintive music, and peering amid the smoke from a fire I saw an old man strumming Volga peasant songs on a balalaika—one of the few articles saved from the wreckage of his farm when it was commandeered.

The irony in the fate of the kulaks is that they are offered employment at a few kopeks per day, if they wish to join the convicts in the local prison, who are working on the foundations for a new theater in the main street of the town.

Next summer the church will be torn down and the bricks will be used in the construction of the theater.

I walked past the church at night and saw flickering flame points against the windows where the men were brewing tea over tiny fires. One kulak hobbled into the building as I watched, after a walk downtown seeking pity from some one who might give him a morsel of food.

Next morning a new draft of kulaks arrived, marching from the direction of the railroad station. A single red guard marched at the head of the column, leading the way, and the long convoy trailed behind.

Those who die here are stripped of their clothing and buried naked in the potter's field in a shallow grave. Their boots and ragged garments are shared among friends in the group. There are a number of white unpainted crosses in the municipal cemetery.

RUSSIA HINTS IT MAY DECLINE TO JOIN U. S. OF EUROPE' PARLEY

(Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.)

MOSCOW, March 29.—A hint that the soviet government may, after all, decline to send a delegation to attend the Pan-European conference in May as a result of changed conditions appears in the leading editorial of the newspaper Izvestia today.

"We are confronted by the fact of a changed order du jour [order of the day] of the international meeting to which the soviet union has been invited," Izvestia says. "The question obviously requires new consideration by our government."

Izvestia concludes sarcastically by asking whether the Italian, German, and English diplomats, who had previously advocated full soviet participation, realize in what a strange position they are placed by France's "tactful victory" in pushing Russia and Turkey into the background.

Chinese Envoys in Moscow for New Diplomatic Parley

MOSCOW, March 29.—(AP)—Mo-Teh-Hui, representing the Nationalist government of China, returned here today with the Chinese delegation, which has been negotiating for more than a year for resumption of diplomatic relations between China and soviet Russia. It is understood that the new discussions will be along broader lines than those which were discontinued last year when the Chinese insisted upon completing an agreement regarding the Chinese Eastern railway before taking up other matters.

LEO BROTHERS' TRIAL WILL BE RESUMED TODAY

State Nears Close of Its Murder Testimony.

The trial of Leo V. Brothers for the murder of Alfred Lingle will be resumed this morning in Judge Joseph Sabath's courtroom. The state is about ready to close its case in chief, the most important remaining witness being Albert W. Kelfstrom, a buyer in a trunk store at 28 East Randolph street.

Kelfstrom, according to the opening statement of Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks to the jury, is the one who had the best chance of all the witnesses to observe the man who fled from the Illinois Central subway at Michigan avenue and Randolph street immediately after the murder and made his way through traffic and crowds to State and Randolph streets, where he disappeared.

It is near here that Kelfstrom is said to have seen him, when the fugitive stepped into the store to avoid pursuit and bought a suit case which was never called for. Kelfstrom will identify Brothers, according to the state.

Another state witness to be heard is Miss Rose Huebsch, who had an apartment across the hall in the building in which Brothers was captured last December.

Medical testimony as to the mental condition of Policeman Anthony Ruthy is to come today or tomorrow. This policeman, an important figure in the case as the identifier of Frank Foster as the murder fugitive, told the jury on Friday that he had suffered a mental lapse when he made that identification, that he had been seeing "visions." He described his visions to the jury in convincing manner.

Bishop, Turned Back by Italy, Returns Decoration

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, March 29.—(AP)—Msgr. Jedlic, prince bishop of Ljubljana, who recently was turned back at the Italian frontier, while he was on the way to attend an ecclesiastical celebration in Italian territory, has returned to Premier Mussolini the decoration of the Order of St. Maurice and St. Lazarus awarded him in 1925. In a letter to the premier he said he would decline to wear the decoration since he was considered unfit to enter Italy.

WHEN RESCUE SHIP REACHED VIKING SURVIVORS

Three of the survivors of the Viking disaster with the wreckage of their ship, which blew up off Horse island, clinging desperately to an ice floe just before their rescue. The three men on the floe were Henry G. Sargent, explorer; Clayton King, wireless operator, and William Kennedy, navigator. Kennedy died later of pneumonia. The three had been afloat about a week and were exhausted from exposure. The picture was taken from the deck of the Sagona, the relief ship, by one of the members of the relief expedition. HUNT GIGOLO IN ROBBERY AT U. S. WOMAN'S VILLA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 29.—Disregarding the claim of Mrs. George Elmer Pingree of New York City that the burglary of $40,000 in jewels from her villa at Vaucresson last Friday was the work of an international gang of crooks, the surete generale, the French Scotland Yard, tonight is seeking Pietro Gigli, an Italian gigolo.

Inspector Moussu announced that the "thief seemed to have intimate knowledge of the household, which could only have been obtained through the friendship of some one in the chateau. The burglary occurred when both Mrs. Pingree, her niece, Miss Douglas, and the chauffeur were absent. It is strange that the thief entered the only room in which Mrs. Pingree slept and where she kept her jewels. We have been able to trace Gigli's movements to Feb. 6. Since then he has left no traces. He then could very easily have made a visit to Vaucresson to steal the jewels, of which he told another gigolo friend, who 'hypnotized him' to steal the gems."

Mrs. Pingree, who has been confined to her room since the theft, was able to leave her room yesterday, but she persisted in her refusal to discuss the incident with newspaper reporters.

Auto Stuck in Mud, Kills Self as Help Approaches

Woodbridge, N. J., March 29.—(AP)—Joseph Chotash, 22, tried for more than half an hour to get his automobile out of the mud today. He failed. Another driver, John Onder, approached to aid him. Before he could get there Chotash drew a pistol from his pocket and killed himself.

PILSUDSKI BACK IN POLAND AFTER REST IN MADEIRA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, March 29.—Marshal Pilsudski, dictator of Poland, arrived at the port of Gnydia this morning aboard the destroyer Wicher after a rough voyage of 3,720 miles from Madeira, where he spent a three months' vacation to improve his health. His wife and two daughters were at the dock to greet him. The official salute boomed as Pilsudski stepped ashore and was welcomed by Premier Slawek and the entire cabinet. He took a train for Warsaw at midnight.

Secret Visit to England.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 29.—Mystery surrounds the secret visit in England of Marshal Pilsudski of Poland. He left Cherbourg on Friday in a Polish destroyer ostensibly headed for Poland, but the vessel changed her course and went to England. Even the crew was kept in ignorance of the plans until the English coast was sighted.

It is understood that Pilsudski sought a discussion with Prime Minister MacDonald and an audience with King George over the alleged warlike activities of the soviets along the Russian-Polish frontier.

FALL FATAL TO AGED WOMAN.

Injuries suffered in a fall in her home a week ago caused the death yesterday of Mrs. Sorine Johnson, 70 years old, 1423 East 55th street.

DICTATOR RULE BRINGS GERMANY RIOTLESS SUNDAY

BERLIN, March 29.—(AP)—President Hindenburg's decree invoking the "dictatorship clause" of the constitution to curb political excesses appears to have had the desired effect, for Germany has not known such a quiet week-end as this one in many months.

The usual Saturday-to-Monday political riots were noticeably absent, although police closed down one National Socialist meeting because a speaker advocated militant fascism, and one communist meeting where a speaker ridiculed religion. They arrested two gangs of bill posters representing the same parties. In no case was there any resistance.

At Bunzlau in Silesia thirteen communists and two National Socialists were injured in a clash which brought thirty arrests. At Nuremberg the Nationalists and the Fascists in a joint meeting addressed a resolution to the president urging repeal of the decree and demanding convocation of the reichstag to enforce restoration of constitutional rights.

Chicken Pox on Liner; Italy Halts 200 Americans

NAPLES, Italy, March 29.—(AP)—Italian authorities today required 200 American passengers from the steamship Rotterdam to submit proof of recent vaccination, or to undergo vaccination, because a case of chicken pox had been discovered aboard the vessel. The patient was an American whose name was withheld.

Three Killed When Hotel Burns at St. Augustine, Fla.

St. Augustine, Fla., March 29.—(AP)—Three men were killed and several injured today in a fire which destroyed the Florida hotel, a small structure in the center of the city. The hotel had few guests, due to many departures after closing of the racing season.

Not only was an effort made to obtain straw votes from various denominations and races but it was attempted to have the larger sections of the city represented. The following summary shows the votes of the churchgoers segregated into nine groups of city wards:

NOTES OF THE CAMPAIGN

With the exception of a twenty minute period from 9:10 to 9:30, the program of the Cermak massmeeting in the Aragon ballroom tonight will be broadcast from WIBO from 8:40 to 10 p. m. Other Cermak radio speeches tonight are: WJJD, 8:15 p. m., John V. Clinnin; WCFL, 9 p. m., Thomas J. Bowler; WGES, 9 p. m., Ald. John Clark and John R. McSweeney; WENR, 9 p. m., James G. Condon. Thompson radio speeches tonight are: WJJD, 6 p. m.; WCFL, 7:45 p. m.; WIBO, 8:15 p. m.; WGES, 9:45 p. m.

John E. Ericsson, head of the John E. Ericsson company, builders and general contractor, said the new criminal court building was constructed under the county administration of A. J. Cermak "at a very low figure, approximately 49 cents a cubic foot." The Ericsson company was one of the unsuccessful bidders.

"During all the time he [Cermak] has held office he has maintained a most friendly relationship with organized labor and has been noted for his humanitarian consideration of the poor and needy," stated an endorsement of Cermak by Switchmen's union 199, made public yesterday.

Two more foreign language groups endorsed Cermak for mayor. They were the Greek-American Republican club and Gegenseitiger Unterstuetzungs-Verein, German mutual aid society.

Among the 104 University of Chicago faculty members who have signed Cermak pledge cards are Lorado Taft, Miss Edith Abbott, Edward S. Ames, H. A. Millis, Percy H. Boynton, James Weber Linn, C. S. Boucher, Percival Bailey, D. B. Phemister, Dr. Shailer Mathews, Gordon J. Laing, Charles H. Judd, Jerome G. Kerwin, Charlton T. Beck, Roy W. Bixler, M. Llewellyn Raney, William A. Nitze, Edward W. Hinton.

Formation of the Physicians Nonpartisan Cermak club was announced yesterday. The club is composed of leading physicians who have been attracted by the administration of the Cook county hospital under Mr. Cermak as head of the county board.

Leave me one quart more of milk . . from now on

"I have found that using more milk helps me feed the family better at less cost."

DURING the past year thousands of housewives in Chicago have found out how to feed the family better on less money . . . and a quart of milk a day for each member of the family has been the first item on the reduced food budget.

Milk gives more real body-building and health-maintaining value for the money than any other food. It supplies all the necessary food elements and all the vitamins. Actually, there are people unable to chew or swallow, who are living on milk.

The smaller the food budget is, the more important that quart a day for each one of the family becomes. A quart a day is an absolute necessity for the growing child . . . and the most valuable food for the grown-up, to supply energy for the day's work and keep up bodily maintenance and repairs.

Milk fits in with every meal. Hot milk over crisp toast makes an appetizing breakfast. The breakfast cereal calls for milk or cream, or both. Bread and milk, or crackers and milk hit the spot for the luncheon.

Soups using milk constitute a real meal. Codfish or chipped beef in milk gravy are hearty dishes, popular both with men folks and children. So are escalloped potatoes, and macaroni and cheese.

Even the very small food budget can provide for such inexpensive and highly nourishing desserts as rice pudding, tapioca pudding, and bread puddings.

Milk should be the beverage for the children at every meal . . . and the grown-ups will relish all that can be spared from the cooking.

Remember, the food bill goes down when a quart of milk is used daily for every member of the family. It supplies over a quarter of each day's food needs. Why not have the convenience of regular milk delivery to your door each day. Speak to your neighborhood Borden milkman . . . or phone Franklin 3107.

Have You Tried Borden's "SELECTED"
The Special Milk for Drinking

It makes milk drinking more than ever delightful. "Selected" is produced on 105 picked farms near Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, and produced under most rigid regulations at every step.

Giving children "Selected" beats coaxing and scolding. They drink it gladly because they like its "Sweet Natural Taste." The grown-up members of your family will enjoy drinking it too. Only 16 cents a quart. Try it . . . the first taste will tell you there's a difference.

CERMAK FORCES OPEN FINAL DASH TOWARD VICTORY

Confident as Last Week of Campaign Starts.

With indications of a strong and growing lead for A. J. Cermak, the forces behind the Democratic nominee for mayor will open the final week's campaign today in an effort to pile up an overwhelming majority at the polls on April 7.

The confidence in the Democratic camp, which has increased steadily during the last few days, was voiced by Mr. Cermak and other speakers at two meetings yesterday, one in the Coliseum annex and the other in Carmody's hall at Van Buren street and Ashland avenue. Both halls were crowded.

"There is no longer any question about this election," Mr. Cermak said. "We have the campaign won. All that we need to do is to keep going until the polls are closed and the ballots are counted."

Women Sponsor Loop Meeting.

The first of a daily series of noon theater meetings in the loop will be held at the Apollo today under the auspices of the women's independent committee headed by Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank. Another meeting will be held in the evening at the Aragon ball room with United States Senator J. Hamilton Lewis as one of the headline speakers. Ten other Cermak meetings will be held in various parts of the city.

A similar program will be carried out each day until the end of the campaign, the Democratic managers hoping to give every corner of the city an opportunity to hear the issues discussed.

Typical Sabbath day crowds, composed largely of professional, business, and working people, filled the Cermak auditoriums yesterday to hear Mr. Cermak, Senator Lewis, and Coroner Bundesen. Following the policy of Mr. Cermak not to discuss personalities but only the issues, each speaker dwelt chiefly on the theme that the election of Cermak will mean the restoration of Chicago's good name and prosperity.

Say High Tax Is Issue.

High taxes were stressed by Mr. Cermak, who discussed in detail the causes of the present tax situation and his plans to remedy it when elected.

"It is up to the voters to say which they prefer—extravagance or economy," he said. "If they want a mayor who will offhand add $20,000,000 in bond issue interest to their tax burdens, they should keep the one they have. If they want a mayor who will stay on the job, watching every expenditure, trying to save thousands here and hundreds of thousands there, they will make a change in the city hall."

Mr. Cermak cited a series of instances in which the county board has been able to save money in purchases of materials and supplies.

"This," he said, "may appear to be small talk when millions and hundreds of millions are discussed so glibly by my opponent. I tell you that by what may seem petty economies we have been able to save millions, and it is because of these things that the county tax rate has remained at 45 cents while the city rate grew from $3.15 to $4.03 in two years."

That the people of Chicago want a "new deal" was the keynote of the address by Senator Lewis, who pleaded for the election of Cermak to "resurrect and revive" the city. Dr. Bundesen assailed the tactics of the city hall speakers in appealing to racial and religious prejudices.

Horner Hits False Charges

Judge Henry Horner, whose name has been brought into the campaign by the city hall spokesmen, denounced Thompson on the ground that he fears to defend his own record. Judge Horner issued a statement declaring that Thompson's "sole chance to retain the interest of those who have blindly followed him in the past is to keep their minds off of that sad record.

"As each false charge Thompson makes is exploded by the truth, he makes another to divert Cermak from a discussion of the real issues," said Judge Horner. "And so as we near the end of the campaign you may expect the usual roorbacks which, like those previously used, will fall of their own weight."

The Thompson speakers appeared in the afternoon at the Auditorium theater at a German-American mass-meeting. Thompson boasted of the fact that he was called "Kaiser Bill" during the war and renewed his attack on King George.

There was a good deal of commotion among persons at the Thompson meeting who had received free tickets stating on their face that they entitled the bearer to admission to the "final performance" of an operetta at the Auditorium at 2:30 p.m. The Thompson meeting was scheduled for 3:30 p.m. The show cast appeared in several short numbers after the Thompson speech and the audience was urged to attend the full show at another theater.

SZYMCZAK PRAISES CERMAK'S EFFICIENCY WORK FOR COUNTY

Modern and efficient methods have been established in the county building by President A. J. Cermak with a resultant saving of at least $1,500,000 a year, M. S. Szymczak, Superior court clerk and Polish political leader, declared in an address yesterday.

"When Mr. Cermak became president of the county board in 1922 records were being handled in an antiquated manner," said Mr. Szymczak. "Three different offices of the county were keeping practically the same records and they were all made by hand, a slow, expensive process. Mr. Cermak installed modern business methods."

The Superior court clerk listed several specific improvements made by the board president, including the installation of mechanical printing, duplicating machines, record photography, and other devices as well as the reorganization of departments.

"With all these improvements and activities," Mr. Szymczak pointed out, "the county tax rate has not been increased during the Cermak administration."

'EMPIRE CRUSADE' DIES; PRESS LORD BACKS BALDWIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 29.—The great "empire crusade" is dead and Lord Beaverbrook, the "chief crusader," has returned to the Conservative fold.

The move was greeted as a "sensational surrender" in some quarters when it was officially announced tonight that Lord Beaverbrook had pledged his support to Stanley Baldwin, Conservative chieftain, on the latter's agricultural policy, with its free hand in food taxation.

Announcement of the reunion was contained in correspondence between Sir Neville Chamberlain, head of the official party machine, and Lord Beaverbrook. Lord Beaverbrook declared that if the Conservative party was prepared at the next general election to ask for a mandate to put into operation all or any of three methods—"quotas, prohibitions, or duties on foreign foodstuffs"—he was ready to do everything possible to help carry out this program.

In his reply Chamberlain wrote that he was authorized by Mr. Baldwin to say that these points were included in the Conservative party's program and that they would welcome Lord Beaverbrook's support. Political circles are wondering tonight where Lord Rothermere stands in this new reconciliation. No mention was made in the correspondence of Lord Beaverbrook's late ally, and rumors are current of another breach between the two press lords.

POLITICAL UPHEAVAL IS DUE IN U. S., VIEW OF SENATOR WHEELER

Political and economic upheavals as a result of the present depression were predicted yesterday by Senator Burton K. Wheeler [Dem., Mont.], addressing the Chicago forum at the Adelphi theater. He further asserted that there is a strong possibility of the development of a third party if the two major parties continue "to be dominated by reactionary forces."

"Socialism and communism will not be brought about in America by agitators," he declared. "If they come, they will be caused by those who denounce them the loudest. Why is there no real political leadership in this country today? Because the industrial leaders, who know only how to make money and pay dividends, without regard for the rest of the world, have for so long completely dominated the press and politics. That's why."

The speaker advocated a progressive program for the new congress, including these points: federal coöperation with states and cities in feeding the unemployed; enactment of a constitutional amendment giving congress the right to regulate working hours in factories; adoption of social insurance by the states to guard against risks of modern industry; extension of foreign trade by reduction of tariff; municipal operation of water and electric light plants, and prevention of "slush funds" in elections.

G. O. P. ACCEPTS HOOVER FOR ITS NOMINEE IN 1932

Faces Platform Fight on Prohibition.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 29.—[Special.]—Developments in the last week or two have removed any lingering doubts that President Hoover will be renominated next year.

The regular Republicans are now virtually all in line for him, leaving the opposition confined to the radical Republicans whose leaders confess, however, that they have no hope of beating Mr. Hoover for the nomination. The election is where the Norrises, La Follettes and other radicals expect to get in their work against Mr. Hoover.

With the Republican nomination regarded as good as settled, there is more interest in the character of the platform the Republicans will write next year than in any other phase of the G. O. P. situation. And the prohibition plank is the only one now attracting attention. The question is whether it is to be a dry plank or a straddle.

Wet Likely Democrat Nominee.

On the Democratic side it appears more probable than ever that the nominee will be a wet. There is only one dry in the field of Democratic presidential possibilities. The wets are Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, former Gov. Al. Smith and Owen D. Young, all of New York; Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, Senator Robert J. Bulkley and former Gov. James M. Cox, all of Ohio, and former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri. The sole dry is Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, whose star has been fading since his break with the regular organization at the recent Democratic national committee meeting.

As to the Democratic platform the question is whether it will be frankly wet or a straddle. The southern drys are staging a last desperate fight for a dry platform, being willing to accept a wet candidate if the platform is dry. But the majority of the convention probably will be wet and the degree of wetness of the platform will depend upon how far the wets deem it expedient to go in that direction.

Not Expression of Affection.

The regular Republicans have not lined up for Mr. Hoover because in any overwhelming proportion they love him. It is extraordinary how many of them do not. They think he has no political sense, that he has made a botch of the job, and that because of his ineptitude the party now in power is probably going to be disastrously defeated in the election next year. They are for him because they feel it would be no less than suicidal for the party to refuse him a renomination and thereby confess its latest quadrennium of power a failure.

It is astonishing how many of the veteran Republican leaders are writing off next year's election in advance. What with hard times and the party on the dry side of the prohibition question, they regard the outlook as hopeless. Many of the younger ones, feeling the same way about it but unwilling to surrender to fate, were demanding up to a few weeks ago that Mr. Hoover be thrown overboard and Dwight Morrow or perhaps former President Coolidge drafted for the nominee.

New York Wets Settle It.

Any hopes, however, the malcontents may have had of getting anywhere with their insurrection collapsed when the New York Republican organization announced that a solid Hoover delegation would be sent to the national convention. For the New York wets to indorse Mr. Hoover despite his attitude on prohibition was a tremendously significant development. It was everywhere accepted as an indication that the eastern Republican wets would make no fight against the renomination of the President.

The New York organization had got in line for Mr. Hoover immediately following a settlement of New York patronage questions satisfactory to National Committeeman Charles D. Hilles and State Chairman Kingsland Macy. Mr. Hoover had been viewing some of Messrs. Hilles and Macy's recommendations for appointments to federal jobs in New York with noticeable coldness. But on reconsideration he found them acceptable, whereupon the New York organization warmed to Mr. Hoover.

But if there is to be no fight over the nomination the eastern wets are vowing they will demand a wet plank in the Republican platform. This apparently is to be the big fight of the convention. The drys are already denouncing any attempt even to straddle the issue.

Fights Straddle on Prohibition.

"Prohibition cannot be straddled," said Senator Arthur Capper [Rep., Kas.]. "It is an issue that must be met in the national convention and I believe the Republican party will be dry and that the Democrats will take the wet side. President Hoover will be the nominee of our party and the fight for the dry cause will bring about his reelection."

So generally agreed is it that Mr. Hoover will be renominated that the selection of his running mate is being discussed. Vice President Curtis is willing but doesn't know whether Mr. Hoover wants him. Some of the Hooverites think the ticket would be stronger with a wet, like Senator Morrow or Gov. Roosevelt of Porto Rico, on it in second place. Secretary of War Patrick Hurley is said to be willing if Mr. Curtis is not to run again. Mr. Curtis, if he finds his welcome dubious, is prepared to run for his old seat in the senate.

Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee, returned from Florida a few days ago and proceeded to "go into high gear" as he had promised he would after refreshment. The first evidence of the change of gears was the Republican committee's attack on Tammany, which was construed as disclosing the Republican battle tactics for 1932. Jouett Shouse, Democratic executive chairman, retorted with what amounted to a rebuke for dragging the Democratic party's skeleton out of the closet. He said the Democratic party never stooped to such tricks. If it did, he said, it could drag out the Republican party's skeleton in the closet—the Big Bill Thompson régime in Chicago.

DR. CHASE FORMALLY TAKES POST AS U. OF I. PRESIDENT ON MAY 1

Urbana, Ill., March 29.—[Special.]—Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase will be formally inaugurated into the presidency of the University of Illinois May 1. Representatives of nearly 200 educational institutions from all sections of the United States, including many presidents and educational societies, have already accepted invitations to attend the ceremony. Complete plans for the ceremony will be announced by the committee in charge during the next two or three weeks. Dean Arthur Hill Daniels of the graduate school is chairman of the committee.

Mis Simplicity

makes your Easter clothes fit like a Paris Mannequin's!

Leading dressmakers everywhere say, "It's no trick to achieve smart lines, when the frock is fitted over a correct moulding foundation." MisSimplicity, designed by Gossard, skillfully moulds the figure to slim curves. The diagonal "cross-pull" of the waistline straps flattens the diaphragm and abdomen, uplifts the bust, slenderizes the waistline and holds the figure to correct posture. Side panels of pliant elastic taper the hips to perfection.

HOOVER RETURNS FROM CRUISE TO FACE PROBLEMS

Agents Confiscate Gift of Sugar Cane.

BY JOHN HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 29.—[Special.]—Tanned and fit from his ten days' cruise to Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands, President Hoover, accompanied by Secretaries Hurley and Wilbur, stepped off his special train here early this evening.

The President is the best evidence of the efficacy of the rest treatment he has been taking aboard the Arizona. He will return to his desk in the White House executive offices looking and feeling 100 per cent better than when he started out.

Hoover's Sugar Cane Confiscated.

When Hoover landed at Norfolk agents of the department of agriculture confiscated a bundle of sugar cane which had been presented to him by citizens of Porto Rico. The agents explained action was taken to eliminate danger of tropical diseases into the United States. The baggage of other members of the party was not disturbed.

Tomorrow President Hoover must plunge into the intricacies of government and the strategies of politics. The coming months promise to be strenuous. With congress out of the way it is the administration's chance to show its ability to deal with the economic situation in which the country still finds itself.

Faces Many Problems.

President Hoover's homecoming finds him faced with a multitude of problems. He must reach some decision in answer to the continuing demand that the Republican national committee be rehabilitated before the 1932 campaign draws much closer. He has yet to say whether he considers any change in personnel necessary. The suggestion that Senator Simeon D. Fess [Rep., O.], chairman of the committee, be replaced by Secretary of War Hurley has met, it is understood, with no enthusiasm on Mr. Hurley's part.

Nor is the treasury situation too cheerful. Mr. Hoover returns to find the income tax returns fallen below even his own gloomy predictions made at the time of the veterans' bonus loan controversy.

Farm Board One Issue.

In addition he must meet and placate a dissatisfaction even within his party over the plight of the farm board and the wheat holdings, which are the result of the board's stabilization activities.

Lastly, the President must prepare for the nine speeches he is scheduled to make before the end of June.

The last hours on board the Arizona were in keeping with the good fortune in the way of weather which attended the trip throughout. A heavy fog earlier in the morning threatened the early landing which the President desired in order that he might reach Washington in good time this evening. But as the ship drew closer to port the fog cleared away. The Arizona steamed into Hampton Roads under bright sunshine and dropped anchor at 1:15 o'clock.

Airplanes Greet Ship.

As on the morning of the President's departure a week ago last Thursday, airplanes and a fat silvery blimp towered above the ship.

Twenty-one guns boomed a salute from the Arizona as the President stepped from the gangway into the admiral's barge, glittering with polished brass and fresh paint, and was whisked ashore to the waiting train.

SAYS CONGRESS HAS MUDDLED IN VIRGIN ISLANDS

Letter Reveals Committee Encroachment.

Washington, D. C., March 29.—[Special.]—How congress committees sent a governor of their own selection to the Virgin islands to take over part of the administrative functions of the governor appointed by the executive branch was disclosed today.

HERBERT D. BROWN

While ostensibly the islands have been administered by a naval governor controlled by the President, the administration of the islands the last year actually has been in the hands of two governors. One of these was Capt. Waldo Evans, retired, the naval governor up to a few days ago, when the interior department took over jurisdiction, while the other was Herbert D. Brown, chief of the bureau of efficiency, who was sent to the islands by the naval appropriation subcommittee of the house and the house insular affairs committee.

That legislative committees, with Representative Burton L. French [Rep., Idaho], chairman of the house group, as the moving spirit, not only sent Mr. Brown to investigate the islands but actually succeeded in having him clothed with authority to administer appropriations voted for the naval administration, is alleged.

May Set Precedent.

In some quarters the view has been expressed that President Hoover's acquiescence to the legislative committee's program for the islands may have set a precedent for legislative encroachment on executive authority. In any event, a precedent has been set for expansion of the powers of the bureau of efficiency, to include administrative as well as investigating functions, it is said.

The transfer of the islands by executive order a few weeks ago is shown in records of congressional committee hearings, Brown's reports and correspondence between the navy department and Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.] touching the bureau of efficiency's powers to include inquiries in American insular possessions.

The records show that in 1929 the chairman of the house committee and Mr. French decided that the United States was not making definite progress in placing the Virgin islands on a self-supporting basis, that the islanders were not paying sufficient taxes, and that steps should be taken to make them less of a liability. The naval subcommittee handles naval department appropriations, while the navy department administered the islands. Mr. French and the insular committee chairman requested Mr. Brown to make a survey of the islands and report back. In December Mr. Brown, with a corps of aides, went to the islands.

Brown's Report Protested.

On his return Mr. Brown recommended that congress appropriate $223,000 on a program designed to make the islands self-supporting. In all $141,000 was appropriated, the money being included in the fund for the naval establishment.

Before the 1931 appropriations went into effect, Mr. French and Senator Lawrence C. Phipps [Rep., Colo.], acting chairman of the senate committee, wrote a letter to President Hoover recommending that Mr. Brown be given "exclusive supervision of the expenditure of the $141,000." They also recommended that no part of this fund should be expended except as requested by Mr. Brown.

A copy of this letter was sent by the President to the navy department. Shortly afterward, Secretary Adams protested, asserting that this would in effect be setting up two governors.

That the navy department strongly disapproved of any move to send a second governor to the islands is shown by a letter written by Acting Secretary of the Navy Jahncke to Senator Bingham and made public by the senator today.

Leads to Confusion.

"Mr. Brown," said the letter, "recently conducted a survey of the Virgin islands. The naval act of 1931 carried $141,000 to be expended in the Virgin islands in consequence of the report of Mr. Brown. Senator Phipps, and Representative French recommended to the President that Mr. Brown be given exclusive supervision of the expenditure of this $141,000.

"The secretary of the navy, in a letter to the President, expressed the opinion that the carrying out of this recommendation would result in divided authority in the Virgin islands, would lead to confusion for the governor when making his recommendations which are followed by the navy department, and would cause the people of the islands to doubt the power and authority of the legally constituted governor."

Notwithstanding the navy's opposition, Mr. Brown went to the Virgin islands and established himself on the island of St. Croix. Armed with his new authority, Mr. Brown arranged so that the money for his projects could not be expended without his consent and began a new series of activities which resulted in friction between the bureau of efficiency and Capt. Evans. On his return to Washington, Brown recommended that the island government be transferred to the interior department, and this was done. He is now in the islands aiding Paul M. Pearson, the new governor.

ROOSEVELT RD. TO CROSS MICHIGAN AT GRADE LEVEL

Grant Park Entry to Be Ready for Fair.

BY HAL FOUST.

Representatives of the city council, the south park board, the Chicago Surface lines, and the Illinois Central railroad have reached an agreement upon a revised plan for extending Roosevelt road eastward with street car tracks across Michigan avenue and over the railroad to Grant park, for traffic service to the World's Fair, Soldiers' field, and Field museum.

The project, in its new design, will cost approximately $1,650,000 and is to be completed before 1933. Distribution of the cost has not been agreed upon and probably will not be settled until after the plans are presented to the city council next month.

Cross Michigan at Grade.

The Chicago plan commission's original suggestion was to extend the present Roosevelt road viaduct over Michigan avenue and over the I. C. tracks. The owners of abutting property protested. There was a counter proposal to sink the Roosevelt road street car tracks in a deep tunnel under Michigan avenue and under the I. C. Objection was found to this because, it was argued, it would not serve the new railroad passenger station to be built just south of Roosevelt road.

The plan finally agreed upon extends the street cars across Michigan avenue at grade. Automobile traffic will also cross the boulevard at grade. East of the boulevard the street car and automobile traffic will be carried at gentle grade on a viaduct 125 feet wide over the I. C. tracks. The viaduct will serve the new railroad station but there will be a separate drive into the station so that taxicabs will not interfere with traffic en route to and from Grant park.

Trolley Terminal Underground.

East of the I. C. tracks automobile traffic will flow into the inner drive. The street car tracks will turn south and descend a cut between the railroad tracks and the inner drive. The street cars will turn east again in a tunnel under the inner drive and enter an underground terminal under the Court of Honor, between Soldiers' field and the Field Museum and near the entrance to the World's Fair grounds.

Some of the traffic experts at the conference objected to the cross traffic at grade. The engineers pointed out that the objections of abutting property owners would block completion of a viaduct before the World's Fair. They also declared that there is nothing in the adopted design to prevent its conversion into a grade separation at the intersection after the World's Fair when there would be time to engage in litigation with objecting property owners.

How Street Cars Will Reach Fair

Priest Held for Ransom in China Dies in Captivity

SHANGHAI, March 29.—(AP)—Saint Columban's mission here has received information that Father Tierney, who was captured by Chinese communists last November, died in captivity on March 5. Last month it was reported that the priest's captors had threatened to kill him if ransom were not paid quickly.

HINT COUNTY LAW AS ANSWER TO STATE REPEALER

Illinois Bone Drys Said to Plan Comeback.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 29.—[Special.]—Bone dry members of the Illinois legislature, angered at passage in both houses of the O'Grady-McDermott state prohibition law repealer, are considering legislation to allow counties to prosecute under the eighteenth amendment, if Gov. Emmerson signs or allows the recall bill to become a law.

The present leader in this anticipatory move is Senator Andrew S. Cuthbertson [Rep., Bunker Hill], a trustee of the Illinois Anti-Saloon league, who fought the liberal bill last Wednesday, but he may not introduce the proposed legislation himself.

No Enforcement Power.

"Bills regulating the sale of liquor in compliance with the federal constitution will be offered in the assembly if the repeal becomes a law," he said. "The repealer leaves Illinois without enforcement power and paves the way for a bootlegger to open up within ten feet of a church or schoolhouse. I do not believe the people of Illinois want this condition to exist."

Senator Cuthbertson thinks there are members of both houses who voted for the repeal of the bill who would be willing to give counties authority to enforce prohibition if the search and seizure feature of the state law were not involved.

Speculation as to these members has included the name of Senator Henry M. Dunlap [Rep., Savoy], along with several of the so-called senate "machine" led by Richard J. Barr, president pro tem, of Joliet, and Martin R. Carlson of Moline. But the prediction of most Springfield observers is that the entire move on both sides of the assembly would become a dismal failure.

Doubted by Tice.

When it was suggested that Homer J. Tice of Greenview, chairman of the house appropriations committee, might be enlisted in the new cause, Mr. Tice at his home today said he had not been approached with such a proposal and did not believe it would meet with success. While some counties now derive revenue from liquor prosecutions, police officials of the populous communities have already indicated that "snooping" activities will end if the O'Grady-McDermott bill becomes law. Members close to the enforcement units in Illinois are said to have admitted that no more than 100 dry agents actually engaged in raiding and making liquor "buys" are available now in the Chicago, Springfield, and East St. Louis districts.

MOTHER CERTAIN BEAUTY WILL BE FREED IN KILLING

NICE, France, March 29.—(AP)—Mrs. James H. Nash, who came here from St. Louis to be with her daughter, former St. Louis beauty queen, when she faces trial for killing her husband, Fred Nixon-Nirdlinger, is convinced the prisoner will be acquitted.

"I can't say much," she said today, "but I have seen Charlotte and her story is true. The French courts will free her. We parted with that belief. I don't know what the lawyers say, but Charlotte will tell the jury what she told me. Here I am in a strange country where I can't speak the language, but I am the nearest relative and I will care for Charlotte's children until she is released."

Mrs. Nash said her daughter had been overjoyed to see her, but beyond this she would say nothing of thefr interview.

Watch Joliet Session as Part of Riot Inquiry.

The state board of pardons and paroles, blamed by convicts for the unrest which resulted in riots at the Stateville and Joliet prisons recently, will meet at Joliet today. State Representative Michael L. Igoe, member of the legislative committee investigating prison conditions, will attend to observe the operation of the board.

Igoe accepted for the committee the invitation of the parole board to witness a session.

Igoe to Make Report.

Convicts who appeared before the legislative committee criticized the parole board for "railroading" their petitions and for refusing to take into consideration the previous character of the prisoners before they became involved in crime.

Mr. Igoe will report his observations to his committee on Friday when it returns to Joliet to resume its inquiry.

So far, Igoe explained yesterday, the committee has made only one recommendation for the relief of conditions at Joliet and Stateville, and that is the immediate completion of the new cell house under construction at Stateville. This cell block will accommodate 1,300 prisoners and provide relief from the overcrowding at both prisons, Igoe said.

Suggest Outside Labor.

The committee has suggested, too, that outside labor, rather than prison labor, be used to finish the work. Outside labor, Igoe said, could finish the block in two or three months, while it would take prisoners a year to do the work.

Other suggestions for improving conditions which the committee is understood to be considering are separate wardens for Joliet and Stateville, separate full time parole boards for each prison with the wardens serving as members, definite sentences for robbery with the trial judge designating the maximum time to be served, and modern new hospitals for inmates of the old prison.

Prison Population Doubled.

The state department of public welfare issued a statement calling attention to the overcrowded conditions at the state's prisons, commenting that "it is an amazing fact that between 1919 and 1930 the number of persons in prison, taken in proportion to the population, increased practically 100 per cent."

The statement said the solution was not merely the building of more cell houses. "Building new buildings to keep up with the increase that more than doubles in ten years is an endless race," the statement read. "Prison outbreaks like those at Joliet show us vividly that the only real solution is to stop the increase. Briefly, this involves two general things. First, prevention that will lessen the number of legal offenders. Second, use of methods other than long penal incarceration for treatment of those who offend. It is to these ends that our future program will be developed."

JURY WILL CONTINUE DOWNTOWN POLICE INVESTIGATION TODAY

JAMES W. BREEN.
[Tribune Photo.]

The special grand jury investigating police corruption will reconvene today. Assistant State's Attorneys Charles J. Mueller and Charles E. Lounsbury are expected to present evidence on the police policy in vice, gambling, and liquor in the loop and surrounding territory.

Four squads of detectives raided six suspected gambling and disorderly houses in the Des Plaines street district early yesterday. They arrested Joe Aducci, brother of James Aducci, who is said to be a partner of "Dago Lawrence" Mangano; Michael Malveratas, owner of a resort at 516 South Halsted street, where raiders found $1,290 in a safe; and Andrew Corfus, 445 South Halsted street.

Earlier in the week the state's attorney's police raided 37 places on the west side. Both raids were prompted by information given by Mrs. Shirley Kub, former under cover agent for Acting Police Commissioner Alcock, who turned over to the jury copies of all her reports to Alcock. Those taken in yesterday's raids are to be questioned by the prosecutors this morning.

City Sealer Dan Serritella, Capone lieutenant and member of Mayor Thompson's cabinet, and First Assistant Corporation Counsel James W. Breen are expected to be given an opportunity to appear before the jury to answer Mrs. Kub's testimony that Breen controlled the police department and with Serritella acted to run the loop "wide open." Police captains may be invited to testify in this phase of the investigation.

FINGERS WIGGLE AND HOPE GROWS FOR 15 CHILDREN

Victims of Blizzard Are Getting Better.

Lamar, Colo., March 29.—(AP)—Wiggling fingers of fifteen school children rescued from the arctic gale which imprisoned them for 36 hours in a snow filled bus near Towner, Colo., Thursday and Friday, today bolstered hope for their recovery.

Today, for the first time since their release from the marooned bus, in which five of their companions perished and near which Carl Miller, driver, was found dead, the children were able to move their fingers which had been paralyzed by the cold.

Toes Are Still Numb.

The youthful survivors of the most severe blizzard in Colorado in more than 40 years also could move their limbs, but their toes still were too numb. The rapid progress the children have made since being brought to the Maxwell hospital here by airplane and automobile, attendants believe, indicates no amputations will be necessary.

Throughout the night the little patients bravely endured the pains of partly frozen bodies now throbbing with life. Occasionally, however, terrifying screams came from the hospital room as evidence many still were suffering from the tortures which follow freezing. From others who have recovered more rapidly came cries as, in their sleep, they lived over again the agonizing 36 hours in the frigid bus on the blizzard gripped prairie of southeastern Colorado.

Enjoy Sunday Comics.

Marked improvement was noted by hospital attendants after daybreak. Screams ceased. All were able to take nourishment and all showed interest when comic pages from Sunday newspapers were read to them.

The survivors are: Laura Huffaker, 7; Lena Huffaker, 9; Max Huffaker, 10; Carl Huffaker, 11; Charles Huffaker, 14; Alice Huffaker, 15; Maxine Brown, 10; Rosemary Brown, 13; Blanche Stonebreaker, 10; Clara Smith, 15; Leland Frost, 5; Unice Frost, 14; Evelyn Untiedt, 10; Bryan Untiedt, 13, and Ome Untiedt, 8.

Joint funeral services for the six victims, Louise Stonebreaker, 15; Robert Brown, 11; Kenneth Johnson, 9; Arlo Untiedt, 9; Carl Miller, 35, the bus driver, and his daughter, Rosemary, 9, will be conducted in a lodge hall in Holly Tuesday afternoon.

Hospital Head Optimistic.

Alice Huffaker and Blanche Stonebreaker have made the slowest recovery of the 15 patients. Mrs. Marie W. Wadham, supritendent of the hospital, today said while the condition of all the children still was serious, hope for the recovery of all without the loss of limbs was much brighter.

Coroner H. G. Hopkins, after an investigation at the scene of the tragedy, said no inquest would be conducted.

The children were found Friday night by Andrew Rhinhetz, a ranchman. They were taken to his home and later moved to the Lamar hospital by airplane and automobile.

Storm Takes 16 Lives.

Kansas City, Mo., March 29.—(AP)—Fresh snow fell today in the Rocky mountains on the heels of a spring blizzard which took at least 16 lives there and in the prairie states.

Today's fall, however, was accompanied by moderate temperatures and while hampering reestablishment of communications with isolated communities where it is feared more dead may be found, was not expected to bring the tragedy of last week's storm.

Snow was falling over all Colorado, most of Wyoming, western Montana, and northern New Mexico. The sun shone in Texas, Oklahoma, eastern and Central Kansas, and Missouri, where the bitter cold relinquished its grip. Snow was reported in northwestern Kansas.

Live Stock Loss Heavy.

To the human death toll of a storm which rose in sudden fury in the Rocky mountains, swept with rain, snow, and zero temperatures upon an unsuspecting people preparing for spring planting, was added a tremendous loss of live stock and the killing of much fruit.

The latest additions to the list of dead were three sheep herders. The body of Charles Beach, 50, Wyoming herder, was found a half mile from his camp wagon at which searchers found his 4 year old son and dog safe. Juan Selgado and an unidentified herder were the New Mexico victims.

Today a barren snow covered canyon near Max, Neb., revealed the body of Boyd Edward, 7 year old schoolboy, sought by hundreds of persons for three days.

MEAT CHEAPEST IN YEARS, SAYS U. S. EXPERT

Washington, D. C., March 29.—(AP)—Families with small or restricted incomes were told today by E. W. Sheets of the agriculture department that they would find inexpensive cuts of meat cheaper than ever.

Sheets, chief of the animal husbandry division, said meat now costs less than in many years, with breast and neck of medium lambs selling for as low as 7½ cents a pound.

Pork shoulders, he added, could be bought for 14 to 19 cents, and picnic shoulders at from 13 to 21 cents.

THE UNITED STATES AND THE CHINESE CRISIS.

An analysis of the new Who's Who in China, published in the China Weekly Review, the interesting periodical edited and published in Shanghai by Mr. J. B. Powell, who is also THE TRIBUNE correspondent in that city, gives the educational background of 566 leaders of modern China. The facts are of significance to us in America. The United States leads the list of countries in which foreign education was obtained with a percentage of 27. Japan comes next with 16 per cent, England with 4.3 per cent. Thirty-four per cent obtained all their education in China.

The high percentage of American education ought to remind us that the modern movement in China has a significance for the American people which is more than one of friendly sentiment. It is through the wide windows of the American college that many of the ablest of the leaders of new China first viewed the outer world of western civilization. American ideas and ideals, American experience in politics, social life, and economic development have entered into the current of Chinese thought and endeavor, and have been creating ties between the intellectual life of the two peoples from which much that will be helpful to both will evolve if they are intelligently fostered. On this side gradually but surely a better knowledge of the modern movement in China and a better appreciation of the importance to ourselves and to civilization of that movement is growing among thoughtful Americans, and they will increase our sympathy with the Chinese people and our understanding of their struggle for peace, security, and progress.

This is fortunate for both countries, and it should result in substantial assistance to China in her ordeal. We think our political policy, though well intentioned and in the main helpful so far as it has gone, is too cautious and too reluctant to grasp the essential conditions in China and to found a courageous and constructive policy upon them. This, as the better informed of the Chinese leaders are broadminded enough to recognize, is largely because of our habitual preoccupation with our domestic problems and of the gravity of our commitments and relations in Europe. Nevertheless, it is a serious weakness of our statesmanship that it does not yet sufficiently regard the Chinese situation as of sufficient or sufficiently urgent moment to compel the most thorough study and the establishment of a well considered policy of practical coöperation with the sorely pressed builders of modern China. We cannot afford to procrastinate, for this movement is in a critical stage, and if we are to help effectually we must help now. Without ignoring or slighting our responsibilities and opportunities elsewhere, we ought to give immediate attention to the situation and through intelligent and sympathetic coöperation with responsible Chinese leaders should work out methods and adopt means of giving substantial support to their efforts.

This should not be left to the slow processes of our politics and official procedure. American financial and commercial leadership should wake up to the possibilities, both favorable and unfavorable, existing in the Chinese situation and should not delay to bring about practical measures. Nothing effectual in this critical stage can be expected from the cultivation of mere friendly sentiment among the intellectuals. Modern China needs material aid, capital chiefly, and while the foundations of foreign credit have been shaken during the revolution and because of civil war and the creeping paralysis of domestic disorder are none too firm today, a nation which has poured billions into the shaking structure of post-war Europe, on the whole wisely, cannot afford to exaggerate the risks of assistance to China or ignore the consequences of failure to take timely and well considered action to assist in its stabilization.

A China descended into chaos or brought under the influence of communist ideas would be a serious threat to western civilization, in whose fate we are certainly involved.

The success of the modern movement, through the pacification of the country, the establishment of a strong government, and the development of industry, agriculture, and modern conditions of living, would not only add a powerful factor to the stability of the world but would open up financial and commercial opportunities for both the United States and China which, if intelligently and sympathetically exploited, would do much to restore both countries to prosperity.

American financial and business leadership is too little conscious of the momentous character of the Chinese situation and of our interest in its developments. We can expect little or nothing from our political leadership. It is American financial and business influence from which timely and effectual action should be expectable. But it seems not yet awake.

ENFORCING MORAL LAWS.

The Rev. Philip Yarrow, superintendent of the Illinois Vigilance society, has been found guilty of malicious prosecution by a jury in the Superior court and damages of $5,000 have been found for Walter Shaver, bookseller, arrested on Mr. Yarrow's complaint for the sale of a book termed obscene. The evidence showed that Mr. Yarrow had sent an agent to purchase a book which the dealer did not have in stock. The agent's order was taken. The book was procured by the seller, who was arrested when the sale was made.

Mr. Shaver's defense was that he had been deliberately entrapped in the transaction. A similar but more notorious case in Massachusetts brought the Watch and Ward society of Boston into such disrepute, after a bookseller had been sentenced to jail reluctantly by a judge who found his duty odious, that several of its reputable members resigned to square their consciences and spare themselves further reproach. The New York police scandals are further extensions of this system of espionage and entrapment which have seemed to be in a way of becoming customary procedure in American supervision of morals.

Mr. Yarrow on several occasions has defended the sincerity and good purpose of his volunteer organization and has offered exhibits of the smut the vigilance association is trying to suppress. Much of this is vile and the decency of the community guards against its circulation. Where there is no dispute as to the necessity of suppression there should be little difficulty in making the law effective through its ordinary channels.

The case in which Mr. Yarrow was the defendant presented other facts. An adult asked for a book which was not on display, which was not being urged upon the trade, or even carried in stock. The law, which was used against the seller after he had been trapped into procuring a copy on demand, provides that half of the fine imposed for the offense shall go to the person providing the proof of it. Here is where a moral system will start going wrong. It then puts a premium on incitement and entrapment. Both are obnoxious to law and to justice.

Public decency is not promoted by such sly insinuations which require stealth, duplicity, and persistent worming in to obtain evidence, rewarded after conviction to the profit of the sleuth. The abuses inherent in such procedure will discredit the law and violate the privileges of private life. The process will get victims rather than offenders. It will be shabbily inquisitorial.

The enforcement of rules required by public sentiment and necessary to public decency does not need the prowling censor and masked moral agent to operate by hiding behind a piece of furniture or peeking through a keyhole. The legislature would clear up a bad situation if it would repeal the provisions of law which split fines with informers. It's an indefensible system of espionage and legalized skulking. If the theory is to be maintained that law needs volunteers not legally authorized for its enforcement, the element of personal gain should be taken out of the picture. It may not be a motive in all cases, but it is there to stimulate activities.

COUNTY RELIEF.

In the American system the county is the unit usually charged with the official care of indigent citizens. It is a continuance of the old English method of local responsibility. The pauper was charged to the poor rate of the parish of his nativity and the refusal of parishes to assume other than their own responsibilities immobilized English labor by preventing a search for work. The itinerant could be sent back home and was for fear he'd fall on another locality.

Cook county has not only maintained a general hospital and homes for the impoverished but it has provided funds for relief work where the needy kept their own homes. The relief has included coal, food and some wearing apparel. In a scheme proof against imposition and fraud it might be good theory that where the individuals could be assisted in their own shelters it was better for them and for the state than to remove them to institutions. If the relief of destitution could more nearly approach perfection that would be true, but when a political body is distributing funds to the electorate of a community it is not on the road to perfection. Both the givers and the receivers are dealing with human nature's imperfections on a large scale. The need of this winter has been so great that many of the methods have not been examined as they would have been outside of such an emergency. It was a large undertaking to carry off the situation, and for the most part a very good job seems to have been made of it, but it should be recognized that some of the justification has been in expediency and not in principle. As the necessity relents the expediency will be more carefully considered. There are transparent dangers in the combination of politics and charity.

SUPERVISION OF BANQUET ORATORY.

[Illinois State Journal, Springfield.]

Expressing himself in favor of silent banquets, Ambassador Charles Gates Dawes says: "I wish banquets were supervised as strictly as the talking films, where if a man coughs everything he says is cut out."

There can be no doubt but that Ambassador Dawes speaks with authority on banquets and banquet speaking. Since he emerged from the cloistered quiet of a banker's thickly carpeted consultation room he has been on the oratorical firing line. For four years he presided over the sessions of the senate and gripped his chair lest he be blown out into the lobby by unceasing and windy debate. Himself a charming after dinner speaker, Mr. Dawes could have attended a luncheon every day and a banquet every evening had he accepted all invitations. As ambassador at the Court of St. James's he has so many banquet dates that, if granted the rare boon of eating an evening meal at home, he probably arises from habit to be photographed with his fancied companions at the speakers' table.

If, as Ambassador Dawes suggests, every banquet and luncheon speech could be edited by a director of talking pictures, the resultant film would not be long enough to tire or bore. A banquet speech without coughs, ohs and ahs, and numerous repetitions would be a rarity to be thoroughly enjoyed.

A SKIN DISEASE FROM RATS.

A CERTAIN part of northeast Texas is trying to supply new diseases for old. The section engaged in this laudable enterprise is Dallas and the nearby country. The new disease is rat mite dermatitis. It is caused by the bite, not of the rat itself, but of a mite which infests rats. There are a number of varieties of mites and more than one will bite man if no other food is available.

If the rat mite can cause disease in man it is not beyond possibility that chicken mites and other members of the mite family have the same evil power. Something over a year ago there came some tragedy in the rat life of northeast Texas. In certain regions there was a rat exodus similar to that of the Israelites from Egypt, but still more along the lines of various other established rat migrations. This exodus was supplemented by some local rat campaigns. Because of these incidents rat hosts became inaccessible and the mite had to find other food supplies as well as other homes.

An epidemic of dermatitis developed. More than 200 cases were recorded and perhaps a still larger number were missed. Complaints came from theaters, movies, stores, boarding houses, hospitals, and homes that they were infested with mites. Insects were caught and identified as rat mites. The complaint was of the eruption.

In most cases the bite was similar to that of a bedbug. In many it looked like a chigger bite. But there were many cases in which the eruption was not so easily diagnosed. In many the eruption had the appearance of nettle-rash. In some there were blisters around the bite. It was in children that the tendency to form blisters was noticed, and since some of these children had fever chickenpox was often suspected and occasionally it was diagnosed. In most of the typical cases nettlerash was the diagnosis. Occasionally a case was called eczema.

Another article will deal with an infective fever which appeared to be spread by this mite.

It is not necessary to call the rats back in order to end the source of danger. Infested premises are easily cleared by the use of fumigants followed by cleaning.

WATCH HER DIET.

M. F. writes: I have a four year old girl who gets attacks of acidosis. What should her diet be?

REPLY.

If the attacks are due to acidosis it is probably of the kind which comes from eating too much fats. Give her the diet that children of her age in your neighborhood get. But limit markedly her intake of the following foods: Oils, fats, greases such as cod liver oil, olive oil, butter, cream, salad dressings, fat meat, and gravy. Increase her allowance of cereals, breads, potatoes, peas, beans, bananas, hard candy, and most vegetables, fruits, and fruit juices.

CONDITIONS OF HEART.

Mrs. R. E. S. writes: Some time ago you mentioned certain conditions of the heart that can now be easily determined by some newly perfected instrument. Will you repeat the technical name for this condition of the heart, and, also, the name of the instrument?

REPLY.

I presume you have reference to various diseases of the nerve control of the heart, to myocarditis, angina pectoris, and coronary embolus and thrombus. The apparatus is called an electro-cardiograph

HAVE A PHYSICIAN FIND OUT.

H. S. writes: Sometimes the right side of my stomach hurts me when I walk. When I stop walking the pain stops. Do you think it might be my appendix? What do you think it might be?

REPLY.

I don't know. Have your physician find out. Have him consider a mild form of angina.

TO ADOPT HIS STEPSON.

Chicago, March 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I intend to marry a divorcee who has a six year old son. She was given full custody of the boy when her final decree was granted and awarded $7 per week for his support, besides an order for a large sum covering back payments. The boy's father has not seen the boy nor contributed to his support for over a year and a half and twice served six month sentences in the county jail after stating before the judge that he would not give anything to his support.

1. Would it be necessary to obtain the signature of the boy's father under these circumstances in order for me to adopt the boy legally?
2. What organization shall I apply to in order to start adoption proceedings?
3. Would the father's actions be classed as child abandonment?

R. H. E.

1. No, in view of the father's desertion and abandonment.
2. Apply to the clerk of the County court.
3. In our opinion it would.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ALL WOOL!

Chicago, March 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Can you tell me if a cleaner is responsible for shrinking a dress? It was stretched two or three times, and the seams are cracking open. He volunteered to patch it, but it would not be fit to wear with patches on sides and across shoulders. He is unwilling to pay for it. G. S. D.

Depends on whether he is to blame for the damage. He is not liable if he can prove that he is not to blame.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WANTS LIGHTS INSTALLED.

Chicago, March 17.—[Friend of the People.]—Is it posible to have a bright light installed at the corner of 107th and Artesian avenue and one at the alley between Western and Artesian at 107th street? Our street and alley are very dark and very inviting for holdups, which have occurred in several instances within our block since I have resided in this neighborhood. L. W. N.

Relative to the installation of street lights at the corner of 107th and Artesian avenue and at the alley between Western and Artesian at 107th street, I wish to advise that this district is included in our 1931 bond issue street lighting program and the lights in question will be in operating condition some time this year.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

IT'S GOT TO BE STOPPED.

Old John Carey, who drives a column from the Rear Seat of the Sioux City Journal, is trying to get all the columnists of the land to come together at a dinner he is planning to give as soon as he can get them to agree on a date. We shall not go. There would be speeches and we have just organized the After-Dinner-Speeches-Give-Me-a-Pain-in-the-Neck club, and we must be true to our principles. If you promise not to spring any of that "We have with us tonight" stuff, John, we may reconsider.

But, no; Cal Coolidge will, of course, be there, and though they call him Silent Cal, try and make him sit through a dinner without saying a few well chosen words. Try and make him; that's all. And Al Smith, who busts out in a colyum every week, will, of course, be at the banquet board. Try and hold Al down when there's speaking going on. It can't be done. No, thanks, John, but we go to no more banquets until everybody's been put under peace bonds not to make a speech.

TWO SONNETS.

Even as the breath of spring makes all things sweet
And April's sun turns every bough to gold,
So my love's bounty overpays his debt
With too much joy for any heart to hold;
With more delight than mine I go my ways,
Lavishing love on every springing flower
As if I were the sun whose constant rays
Bring it to birth and warm it hour by hour;
As if I were the moon of April's night
Flying above it in a silver cloud;
As if I were itself, so laughing light,
So new with life, so innocently proud,
Spreading my little tendrils to the sun
With anxious care lest he pass over one.

But with my sun there is no passing over;
On each soft leaf he lingers with delight,
Hoarding his joy like any prudent lover
Who would not lose it on a summer's night.
O little heart preoccupied with loving!
O little love whose death is at the door!
Let us have done with strife, have done with roving,
And take this one delicious springtime more,
So we may pass beyond the roses' waking
And lose the wild endearing songs of spring,
Yet be enriched with stores of April's making,
Laden with sweets for autumn's pleasuring,
And find out well worn love as strangely new
As twilight flowers turned sweet with sudden dew.

DOROTHY KISSLING.

POOR AL SMITH. Here it's reported that Tammany has promised its support to him and will do everything possible to aid him in his race for the Democratic nomination next year. Well, Al, maybe if you talk to some of your friends who are members they can tell Tammany to go away and leave you alone. Or, better yet, maybe Tammany might be persuaded to come out for Gov. Roosevelt or Gov. Ritchie, and that would put them out and give you a walkaway.

THE AUTOGYRO seems to be a great thing for aeroplanes. Wish we had one on the family bus; then when we are passing a long parade of cars coming into town Sunday afternoon and one of those maniac border line cases shot from the line and got out in our lane and charged right at us we could turn on the autogyro, shoot right straight up into the air, let him scoot under us, and then come down in our lane safe and sound.

WIRELESS from the battleship Arizona says that Saturday morning President Hoover found at his breakfast plate a burlesque copy of a newspaper edited by the correspondents who went on the trip. And, of course, the President had to read it and smile and laugh over every item. There's a lot of things about being President that make us satisfied to remain one of the plain people.

THE VALVE HANDLE WHEEZE ONCE MORE.

THEY WOULDN'T make Charlie Chaplin a Sir in England (or at least they haven't yet), but France has jumped right in and made him a Knight of the Legion of Honor. But the French are much fonder of pastry than England, and Charlie has certainly done a lot for the custard pie.

YEAH, YEAH, it's the way of this fickle world. Not long ago and he was Gandhi the Holy One. Now they yell, "Hang up Gandhi. He's to blame for it all." Cheer up, Mr. Gandhi, tomorrow they may be for you again. We humans are really most amusing.

I'M SAVING MEMORIES.

I'm saving memories each day,
I think I'll need them when
Your eyes have smiled a last good-by,
And you won't come again.

A rosary of tarnished dreams,
Not any one a prayer,
A song you knew, a laugh, a kiss,
The rough sheen of your hair.

A secret that we shared one night,
A high hill that we knew . . .
I hope you won't object, my dear,
Because I'm stringing you!

THERE'S ALWAYS SOMETHING TO WORRY US

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 30, 1915.

LONDON.—The sinking of three vessels, with a probable loss of 138 lives, is the toll of the German submarine blockade in the last two days. Two of the merchantmen were British and the third was a Dutch ship. The British steamer Aguila was torpedoed and sunk off Pembrokeshire coast, the Fallaba, British owned African liner, was torpedoed and sunk in St. George's channel, and the Dutch steamer Amstel was destroyed by a mine off Flamborough Head.

LONDON.—The Anglo-French fleet made a supreme attack on the Turkish forts of the Dardanelles and partially silenced several of them. Many villages are burning. Battleships landed troops and occupied Tenedos. In addition to this news, it is learned that a part of the Russian Black sea fleet was busy near the Bosporus and hurled shells within twelve miles of the sultan's palace.

CHICAGO.—There was widespread mourning in Chicago because of the death of Prof. Charles R. Henderson, who died early yesterday at Charleston, S. C. Flags went to half mast at the University of Chicago. The office of the United Charities, of which he had been president, was a scene of deep sorrow over the death of a worker for the poor and unemployed and unfortunate. It was on behalf of these that he had sacrificed his life, for throughout the hard winter, in defiance of his physician's orders, he had stuck at his post and worked for their welfare. Prof. Henderson was 66 years old.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 30, 1901.

MANILA.—As the news of Aguinaldo's capture spreads through the archipelago, the insurgents are becoming disheartened and there is a marked increase in the number of surrenders. Aguinaldo is in quarters at Malacanang palace. Newspaper interviews with the prisoner are not allowed. Many people are visiting the residence of Gen. and Mrs. Funston. The general modestly declines to talk. Mrs. Funston is evidently the happiest woman in the Philippine islands.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The discussion of the President and his advisers at the cabinet meeting disclosed that there was no disposition to deal harshly with Aguinaldo or to make a martyr of him by inflicting undue punishment. He will be permitted to take the oath of allegiance if he chooses and induced to use his influence with his followers, with the view to securing the surrender of those who still resist the authority of the United States.

LONDON.—A dispatch from Yokohama reports there is great tension in official circles at Tokio. The foreign office is open day and night. There are frequent conferences between the senior generals, which are attended by the emperor, who is anxious to know the exact condition of the military and naval services. Three staff officers have been sent to Corea to investigate the situation there. The possibilities of war are freely discussed.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 30, 1881.

WASHINGTON.—Rumors of cabinet troubles have created a sensation here and both elements of the Republican party are seemingly in discord with the President. There are reports that Attorney General MacVeagh has tendered his resignation on account of the nomination of William E. Chandler as solicitor general. Both Mr. MacVeagh and President Garfield decline to talk about the matter. It is said that Mr. MacVeagh told the President that Chandler's nomination would be exceedingly distasteful to him and that if it were made he would certainly resign. There are also reports that Postmaster General James possibly may withdraw from the cabinet because of his opposition to the appointment of Judge Robertson as collector for the port of New York.

CHICAGO.—Mayor Harrison was asked when he intended calling a meeting of the executive committee appointed at the Library Memorial building meeting on Saturday night. His reply was that he was too busy to do anything now, which was taken to mean that he is too deeply immersed in politics.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

EXTRA! EXTRA!

Morris, Ill., March 26.—Of course spring is here. Why all this talk about it? Any person who loves and studies nature reads of the coming of spring in February, when her advance agent turns the small branches of the willow yellow and then to a light green. I watch for them every year and feel the beginning of spring when I see the willow branches turn. Last Sunday we went out into the timber and found the hepatica budded, the spring beauty and blood root were up with their leaves wrapped around the buds. The small wood fern, the very first of the fern family to greet the spring, was also much in evidence although not unrolled. The leaves of the Dutchman's breeches are very large, so I think a week of good warm weather will find our wild flowers ready for their spring opening.

While I am writing this there is one more thing I would like to say. I wish all persons who go into the timber to pick wild flowers would be more careful in picking them, not pulling with all their strength at their tender stems, thus pulling them up by the roots, or picking more than they want and dropping them along the roadside. I have seen so much of that, and it is a sin. They should have the care and love of a garden grown flower, and even more because their cheerful little faces come at a bleak time without any care on our part to tell us "spring is here."

MRS. CHARLES EASTMAN.

A MORAL ISSUE.

Chicago, March 24.—In many respects last Monday's meeting at the Stadium brings to mind two other great political meetings of bygone years. The first was held in the old Coliseum on 63d street away back in the Bryan campaign of 1896 and was addressed by Chauncey Depew and Bourke Cockran—two of the greatest speakers of that generation. The second meeting was held in Kansas City during the Bull Moose campaign of 1912 and was addressed by Theodore Roosevelt and Hiram Johnson. All three of these meetings were marked by the deep intensity of thought and feeling pervading the great audiences—a condition which is stirred up by no other force save a moral issue. BULL MOOSER.

A SCHOOL LUNCH ROOM.

Chicago, March 22.—The children at the Willard school are urged and exhorted to purchase in the so-called "penny lunch room" with the result that from 10 o'clock on children can be found munching cholocate covered doughnuts and ice cream sandwiches while less fortunate ones look hungrily on. The children are even denied any recess period, probably in order to prevent them from spending their pennies elsewhere. With no chance to get outdoors for a few minutes, no chance to run and shout and relax, these children come home jaded and cross. I have three children attending the Willard and I can compare their reaction now with what it used to be.

In some grades children come and go on two-hour shifts like so many factory workers. Is this really necessary? It is surely hard on the children and on the mothers. J. W.

WHO ARE THE TAXPAYERS?

Chicago, March 26.—To the writer who asks is it just and fair to the property owners to have nontaxpayers vote on bond issue, who in the city of Chicago are not taxpayers?

MORTIMER SHERF.

A SUBWAY PLAN.

Chicago, March 20.—Recently several articles appeared in this column in regard to widening and repaving Cyrbourn avenue and thereby making it a desirable traffic artery between the loop and the north and northwest sides.

This would be useless with Clybourn avenue terminating at the very narrow Division street, but with an extension of a little less than 4,000 feet diagonally from Division street to State and Superior streets it could then be used to great advantage in connection with the newly widened La Salle street and the wider State street of the future.

The plan is to cut a strip 100 to 125 feet wide diagonally in a northwesterly direction, starting at State and Superior streets. Cross Chicago avenue at Dearborn [thereby avoiding the new Lawson Y. M. C. A. building], Clark at Chestnut, La Salle at Locust, Wells at about Oak, etc., until the present Clybourn avenue is reached at Division street.

The property to be bought for this improvement is now stagnant and can be bought cheaply. This, plus the lower prices, would produce this extension for less money than was the case for a similar distance in connection with the new Ogden avenue. Besides, it will not be necessary to build bridges or viaducts or railroad subways.

In the new traction ordinance Chicago avenue is to be used to connect the State street subway with the elevated. This could be amended to substitute the Clybourn extension. The following advantages are in favor of Clybourn instead of Chicago avenue:

A shorter total subway-L route.

No closing of street during subway construction, for this would immediately follow the razing of the buildings.

No removing and relocation of sewer and public utilities except at cross streets. [This cross street interference would also occur on Chicago avenue.] On Chicago avenue it would be necessary to tear up a recently laid pavement and street car tracks and then replace the same on the roof of the subway, whereas on Clybourn this would all be avoided.

The subway would connect with the "L" just south of Division street. An express station could be built between Dearborn and State, and local stations at Clark and at Wells streets.

If in the future the widening of Clybourn takes place north of Division the subway could be continued to a connection with the "L" at Willow street. On to Willow would be the ideal route, for it would be short and straight—the two most desirable features for fast and safe service; besides, it would avoid 3 curves of 90 degrees and another 45 degree curve on the "L," all of which are between Division and Willow streets.

It is not too late to adopt this plan, for it only concerns the subway-L link and will not change the plans of the State street subway. It will rejuvenate a stagnant neighborhood, create a new and more convenient traffic outlet, a safer subway, and more work for the unemployed. BETTER CHICAGO.

SNOW BOUND.

Charleston, Ill., March 28.—I have read the editorial, "Snow Bound," with great interest, and it shall go into our poetry classes. I grew up in rural New England and understand Whittier's poem. You have made a fine use of it. I wish the chapters in our manuals of literature were as well written.

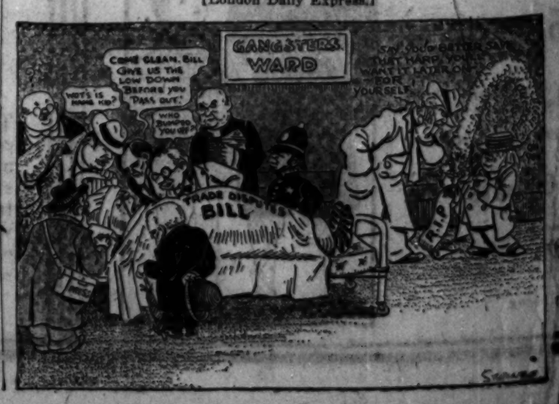
GANGSTERS NEVER TELL

[London Daily Express.]



1 DIES, 3 HURT AS AUTOMOBILE IS HIT BY TRAIN

Boy Killed in Crash of Two Cars.

Patrick J. Foy, 65 years old, 747 Lindley avenue, Oak Park, was killed and three others with him were seriously injured last night when his automobile was struck by a Grand Trunk freight train as it crossed 79th street.

The injured are Foy's wife, Jeanette, 62 years old; Thomas Foley, 48 years old, 11361 Hermosa avenue, and his wife, Nellie, 45 years old. They were taken to the Holy Cross hospital by passing motorists. The Foy automobile was carried for nearly a hundred yards south of the crossing before the engineer, C. W. Kellay of Battle Creek, Mich., could stop his train.

Boy Killed in Crash.

George Ligue, 5 years old, 4131 Wallace street, was killed last night when two automobiles collided at 51st street and Union avenue. The car in which the child was riding was driven by Nicholas Mayer, 513 West 42d place, and the other by Stanley Stepanovitch of Hammond. Neither of the drivers was seriously hurt in the crash, which was attributed to a hole in the street. The deaths of Foy and the Ligue boy with two others increased the Cook county motor toll for the year to 285.

Herbert Kneisel, 35 years old, 3235 South Racine avenue, was fatally injured when his car collided late Saturday night with another driven by Daniel Smith, 1832 Irving Park boulevard, at Milwaukee and Glenview roads. Mrs. Wilhelmina Hatjich, 47 years old, 4056 North Hermitage avenue, a passenger in Smith's car, was seriously injured.

Mrs. Mamie Madigan, 38 years old, 3536 South La Salle street, was killed when she was struck last night by an automobile at 35th street and Wentworth avenue. Two men who were in the car abandoned it and fled. The police believe the car had been stolen.

Woman Seriously Hurt.

Mrs. Lillian Erickson, 30 years old, 11133 Vernon avenue, was possibly fatally injured last night when a car in which she was riding collided with another driven by Cleland Shields, 8928 Throop street, at Cottage Grove avenue and 87th street.

Harry E. Turner, 942 North Wells street, was held by the police at Richmond, Ind., while the death of John H. Murray, a retired brick mason, 2467 North Clark street, in an automobile accident near Richmond late Saturday is being investigated.

Murray was riding with Turner when the latter's car collided with a truck. Climbing out of the wrecked vehicle, Murray was struck and killed by an automobile driven by Roscoe Gilbert of Connersville, Ind. Instead of waiting for the authorities to arrive, Turner caught a train for Chicago, but was arrested at Logansport. The police said that they found liquor in his car.

1930 GRADE CROSSING DEATHS LOWEST SINCE 1922, U. S. REPORTS

Washington, D. C., March 29.—[Special.]—Fewer deaths resulted from grade crossing accidents in 1930 than in any year since 1922, the interstate commerce commission announced today.

According to figures submitted to the commission by the railroads, there were 2,620 deaths at grade crossings in 1930. This was a reduction of 465 over 1929, it was stated.

The number of injuries and the number of accidents also decreased during last year, the railroads' report showed. In 1930 there were 5,517 injured, compared with 6,804 in 1929, while in 1930 there were 4,853 accidents as compared with 5,975 in the previous year.

The American Railway association pointed out that "this reduction of nearly 19 per cent in the number of fatalities resulting from highway grade crossing accidents in 1930 compared with 1929 took place in the face of an increase of approximately four per cent in all other fatalities on the highways of the country."

Danersk sideboard based on old bachelor chest handed down from 1710. Drawers inlaid with herringbone and ebony, surrounding highly figured panels. Imported English pulls of the period.

NOT IN ANY MUSEUM!

In the era of good Queen Anne no such thing as a sideboard existed in any dining room. Serving tables there were, and chairs of choice design, but the sideboard for silver and linen was not to be invented for more than fifty years to come.

So, today, if one wishes to use a set of early walnut chairs as the nucleus of a dining group in the style of Queen Anne, it is necessary to design a sideboard that is appropriate.

The Danersk board here illustrated is so convincingly correct in every detail—so finely proportioned, and so precise in its cross-banded inlays that it might, in reality, have come down from the Queen Anne period whose spirit it so perfectly reflects.

We earnestly invite you to see our new pieces of Phyfe design in 18th Century mahogany and our collection of walnut chairs and chests of the Scotch Queen Anne period.

INDIA DEMANDS FREEDOM—AND 'NOTHING ELSE'

Names Gandhi as Envoy to New Parley.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KARACHI, India, March 29.—Complete independence, and nothing less, was voted today by 60,000 delegates as the goal of the All-India National congress in the approaching round table negotiations. The revolutionary organization named Mahatma Gandhi, the little Hindu leader, to represent it at the conference, assisted by other delegates who will be named later.

A resolution, adopted unanimously, empowers Gandhi to work for complete independence and stipulates that India shall control its own defense, foreign affairs, finance, fiscal, and economic policies. It also empowers Gandhi to demand that the question of the Indian national debt be placed before an impartial tribunal to determine how much of the debt shall be saddled on Great Britain when India takes over its own affairs.

Imply Right to Secede.

The resolution allows Gandhi to accept safeguards "in India's interest," but insists on complete independence, which implies India's right to withdraw from the British empire any time it wishes.

Gandhi, clad in white, explained his position on independence when reading his speech before the congress this afternoon. Gandhi declared:

"You ask me how I fit in complete independence with partnership at will in the empire. There was a time when I would have accepted dominion status. Today I feel dominion status means relationship with other members of the empire, with which India has nothing in common in language, race or color. But partnership at will means that we can, or they can, terminate its connection at any time. It means that the present status of India with Great Britain, which is that of servant and master, will give place to a relationship of equal allies. It is very right to terminate a partnership which implies complete independence."

The "holy man" admitted to the congress tonight that he might decline to participate at the round table conference on two grounds—namely: if the government broke its truce terms and if the Indians themselves were unable to settle the Hindu-Moslem dispute.

Patel's Address Mild.

Vallabhai Patel, India's "Abraham Lincoln," a simple, raw boned farm lawyer, in his address as president of the All-India congress outlined the stand which the Nationalists should take at the coming round table conference.

Patel's address was unusually mild, indicating that Gandhi intended to make a real attempt to come to an agreement with the British in the negotiations.

The Nationalists' president emphasized the necessity for the organization to refuse to participate at the conference until the Hindu-Moslem question had been solved. He made a stirring plea for complete prohibition as a "measure of self-purification" and he told the Hindus frankly that they must remove the curse of untouchability before independence can be achieved.

Riots Rage Along Ganges.

ALLAHABAD, Indian, March 29.—(AP)—The Pioneer's correspondent at Cawnpore says rioting has spread across the Ganges from Cawnpore and disturbances have broken out at Unao. Employés from the Elgin mills reported furious battles progressing between villages on the opposite bank of the river.

Many bodies of victims were said to have been thrown into the river.

JOINS GANDHI

CARLTON WASHBURNE.

WINNETKA MAN JOINS GANDHI'S FREEDOM FIGHT

KARACHI, India, March 29.—(AP)—Next to Mahatma Gandhi the most conspicuous figures at the sessions of the all-India national congress here are two Americans dressed in Hindu fashion. They are Carleton Washburne, superintendent of schools at Winnetka, Ill., and Boyd W. Tucker of Mansfield, O., who have joined India's independence movement.

Tucker, formerly associated with the Methodist Episcopal missionary organization and now with the school of the Indian poet, Rabindranath Tagore, is Gandhi's personal guest. He lives in a tent adjoining the Mahatma's quarters and participates in all of the Nationalist leader's prayers.

Washburne is studying educational conditions abroad for the Rosenwald Foundation in Chicago, which is trying to synthesize the educational systems of the world. Wearing white Hindu loincloths, homespun cotton shawls, white Gandhi caps and sandals, these two Americans are objects of constant curiosity among so many brown Hindus and Moslems in the congress.

FOUND DEAD ON PORCH.

200 SCIENTISTS REVEAL HUNCH AS TOOL OF GENIUS

Cash In on Discoveries by Using It.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 29.—(AP)—Science put its O. K. today on the humble "hunch" as a tool of genius and revealed how 200 scientists use it to cash in on discoveries. They told how they win by carrying it a step farther than ordinary.

Their findings were made public in a questionnaire released by the American Chemical society which begins its eighty-first annual meeting here today. The canvass was conducted by Prof. R. A. Baker of the College of the City of New York and Dr. Washington Platt of Syracuse, N. Y. It was made for the department of chemical education.

Long Period of Study.

The hunch, says the report, follows a long period of study, "but comes into consciousness when we are not conscious that we are working on the problem. It is a process of creating thought."

Such a hunch came to one scientist "while dodging automobiles across Park row and across Broadway in New York."

Another, an improvement in oil pipe line coils, was discovered on Sunday in church. "The correct principle," says this scientist, "came like a flash as the preacher was announcing the text. Strange to say, I have always remembered the text and the sermon."

Here's a Queer Hunch Time.

Mild forms of exercise are specially fruitful. These are listed as shaving, dressing, driving an automobile, gardening, fishing, golfing, riding in a train, playing solitaire and listening to music.

Some have to be alone—others get the hunch better while talking to acquaintances. Usually fatigue, worry, loud noises, interruptions and anger interfere.

The queerest hunch time is this—"My mind is always most active just before or after an attack of gout," one scientist says. After the hunch the scientist cashes in by a careful period of verification and painstaking tests. Many report they try to create hunch conditions. Several find that just before sleep is a good occasion, some even in dreams. One gets in the front seat of an automobile, with some one else at the wheel, driving along country roads.

A number use stimulants with success, principally coffee and tobacco. Three and one-half per cent report results with alcohol.

TAMMANY FACES FOURTH INQUIRY IN FORTY YEARS

Managed to Survive Three Preceding.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 29.—[Special.]—When the state legislators come down from Albany and begin their tiger hunt in the Tammany jungles next month the excursion will be nothing new to Tammany. Three times before in less than forty years New York City's government has received the attention of a legislative investigating committee. The kill was heavy each time, but Tammany survived.

The first investigation of a corrupt city had its beginning in 1892 when the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst doffed his stovepipe hat and clerical garb and went into the dives in search of evidence. The hunt got under way officially in 1894 when a senate committee from Albany, headed by Senator Clarence Lexow, came down to New York City to "turn the rascals out" in three weeks. As a matter of fact, it took almost a year and the findings filled 10,576 pages.

Starter on Way to Presidency.

The Lexow investigation started a young man from Long Island on his first step toward the presidency of the United States. The man was Theodore Roosevelt.

The second inquiry came in 1899 when the Mazet committee, appointed by the assembly, tilted a district attorney from his throne and broke the revived Tammany organization into bits. Tammany grew together again within four years, but sentiment against the organization slumbered until the fourth year of the long administration of Mayor John (Faithful) Hylan. State Senator Schuyler M. Meyer in 1921 headed a joint legislative committee. Tammany cleaned house and Hylan beat the legislators at their own game and won reelection.

Parallels Present Inquiry.

It was the Lexow episode that more nearly parallels the present crisis in Tammany hall. The same apathy that exists today was found in the courts of 1894; there were flagrant violations of anti-gambling and vice laws; there were blackmailing police officers, extortionists, and corruption.

An idea of what may fill the newspapers this summer may be gained from the reports of the Lexow investigation.

"Strong men," the files reveal, "whispered their accusations. On many occasions bruised and battered witnesses fled into the committee rooms appealing for protection. Important underworld witnesses vanished. It was discovered election frauds had been carried out with almost no concealment. The police courts were found to be in sympathy and collusion with the corrupt members of the police force. Policy shops payed $15 a month each, poolrooms $300 a month, and disorderly houses, gold brick salesmen, and others bought immunity in the same way."

But Tammany survived, just as it lived through the next two legislative investigations. Now Mr. Seabury is ready to take up the thrice broken but never erased trail of corruption and Mayor James J. Walker—smiling playboy—is taking his final sun bath in the California desert country preparatory to the fight.

H. MURIEL JOHNS, 6913 ANTHONY AVE., CHICAGO, ILL.—"We have advertised our furnished apartments in the Chicago Tribune for over fifteen years. Can truthfully state that the Chicago Tribune has rented four out of five of our apartments. A former tenant read our ad in Waukegan and came direct to us. The same experience was repeated last fall from Antioch, Ill. In December we had two vacant apartments and placed an ad in the Sunday Tribune. The apartments were rented—one in the morning, the other in the evening. We had about twenty-five calls. As I am a widow, you can realize what 100% rented means in the winter."

EDITH M. HOLTON, BOX 403, PEORIA, ILL.—"I was visiting friends in Chicago one summer several years ago. While out walking one evening I lost my lovely cameo brooch, a gift which I prized dearly. I went to bed that night with a heavy heart. The next morning my friend inquired 'why not try an ad in the Tribune?' One was sent in and the next morning my brooch was returned. Will I try a Tribune Want Ad again? No need to ask!"

W. G. J., 2 W. WAUKEGAN ROAD, TECHNY, ILL.—"A little more than four years ago, due to a long illness, I failed in business and fell deeply into debt. To make matters worse, upon recovering, I seemed unable to find employment. Finally one day while reading the 'help wanted' column of the Chicago Tribune I was attracted by a two line advertisement. 'Tailor wanted—good all around man.' I applied at a cleaning and dyeing store. The business, though established in a good location, was terribly run down. To make my story short, I was hired to take complete charge. Anxious to hold my job, I took a vital interest in my work and with my knowledge of the business, soon had it on a paying basis. The events that followed would make a good plot for one of Alger's stories. In appreciation for my interest, I was made a partner. In two years I earned enough to pay my debts and buy out the original owner to boot. In another year I sold out (at a profit) and since then, thanks to that little Tribune ad, have found easy sailing."

MRS. C. L., CHICAGO—"On November 22, 1922, my ad appeared in the Tribune 'Personal—A Protestant family wants to adopt a baby girl; American parentage. Address C M 158, Tribune.' We had many answers, but one appealed to me. It was from a man who wrote: 'I have a fine healthy girl, 11 months old. For further particulars please address me as follows' and gave his address. I wish to say I did adopt this particular baby. She will be 10 years old December 10th. I don't think any want ad ever appeared that brought more joy and comfort to a home than mine did. Today our daughter is a good student, quite a good piano player, a happy, congenial companion—in fact we all around good 'bargain.' Ours would have been a lonely life but for ad C. M. 158, Tribune." (For obvious reasons, Mrs. L.'s address is here omitted.)

MISS M. L. S., 906 LAKESIDE PLACE, CHICAGO, ILL.—"Thirty years ago I answered an advertisement in the Tribune for a stenographical position. I was directed to call at the office of the secretary of one of the largest and most influential corporations in Chicago. To my intense disappointment, I found that the position was not open just then, but I was told my application would be placed on file, etc. Hearing nothing further, I devoted my spare time to perfecting my shorthand. Just one year later, March 17, 1902, another official in the same concern offered me a stenographic position in his department at $60 a month. He referred to the want ad of a year previous and my reply. It seems that work applications were kept on file for a year in those days—and lucky for me this was so. Today I am celebrating my 29th year with this great company, in which I have gone steadily ahead, and now enjoy one of the highest paying positions among the women. And all this from a Tribune want ad."

How Have the WANT ADS Helped YOU?

HERE are five more prize-winning True Want Ad Experiences as told by Chicago Tribune readers. The writers of each of the letters reprinted here will receive $5.00 in cash.

Read these letters. Note the various ways in which Tribune Want Ads have been of helpful service to these Tribune readers.

Have you had a True Want Ad Experience which you think is as good as some of these? Send it to the Tribune!

In Cash Awards

will be paid by the Chicago Tribune for the best True Want Ad Experiences submitted in accordance with a few simple rules.

Five True Want Ad Experiences will be published in the Tribune daily and Sunday for 29 days. Send in your experience today!

THE SIMPLE RULES:

1. Each day for the 29 days starting Sunday, March 29, 1931, the Chicago Tribune will publish five (5) True Want Ad Experiences. Letters must relate to experiences which took place prior to March 15, 1931. You are invited to send in a True Want Ad Experience and try for one of the cash awards which the Tribune will pay.
2. $5.00 will be paid to each person who submits a True Want Ad Experience which is published. IN ADDITION, from all the letters submitted the following grand prizes will be paid to the persons whose letters are adjudged the best of all: First Grand Prize, $100.00; Second Grand Prize, $50.00; Third Grand Prize, $25.00; next ten Grand Prizes, $10 00 each. Total in prizes, $1,000.00.
3. Letters will be selected which, in the opinion of the judges, relate experiences in which Tribune Want Ads have performed the most helpful service, as judged from all the circumstances given in the letter. In making their decisions, the judges will be governed by the facts given in the letters. Neatness, but NOT grammar and literary skill, will be considered.
4. This offer is open to all, except employees of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You may submit just send in a brief letter.
5. Letters must not exceed 200 words in length.
6. You need not buy the Chicago Tribune. The Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at public libraries free of charge.
7. All letters must be received in the Tribune office before 6:00 p. m. on Monday, April 26, 1931. No letters will be returned.
8. Address all letters to "TRUE WANT AD EXPERIENCE," the Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill. Please state your name and address, and whether or not your name may be mentioned. If not, only initials will be used.
9. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be made to each tying contestant.

JURY SYSTEM IN ITALY WILL BE ENDED ON JULY 1

Criminal Court Reform Is Ordered by Mussolini.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, March 29.—The decline of democratic government in Italy, a plant which never grew very sturdily in Mediterranean soil, will be marked further on July 1 of this year by the banishment of the twelve good men and true from the penal courts of Mussolinliand. The butcher, the baker, and the candlestick maker will no longer be allowed to serve on juries.

Juries will be abolished with the reform of the courts of assizes, or those which try criminal cases, which Premier Mussolini will put in effect three months hence, and for them will be substituted a juridical committee, or what's called here a "college" consisting of two professional judges and five nontechnical citizens who are called "assessors."

But everyone can be an assessor. Only special categories of citizens who have high moral and intellectual, if not political attainments, will run the risk of having their names in the wheel to be drawn as assessors.

Jurors' Actions Blamed.

The reform of the courts of assizes and the abolition of the jury is a result of the reformed penal code in Italy, a work on which Minister of Justice Rocca and his collaborators have labored for five years. The reform was brought about by what were considered scandalous decisions often returned by juries made up of men of insufficient intellectual attainments to distinguish between the facts and the emotional bunk of the lawyers.

Discontent with these abuses had accumulated in less than a century for the jury system was only introduced in Italy in 1848.

It is maintained here that the abolition of the jury as a vestige of democracy was bound to follow fascism's elimination of the principle of popular sovereignty in Italy.

Hope to Stop Abuses.

Under the new regulations the criminal courts will consist of two toga wearing magistrates, who are regular judges belonging to the Appeals court, and five "assessors." These seven men will constitute a unique judiciary committee who will be competent to decide not only matters of law but also matters of fact, differing from the old system whereby the judge solely decided matters of law and the jury matters of fact. This fusion of the two functions is regarded here as a high point in legal and judicial evolution, preventing many abuses.

To be an assessor an Italian must be 30 years old and not more than 65 and his moral and political conduct must be beyond reproach. And only the following may be assessors:

1. Senators, deputies and members of the grand council. 2. Members of the royal academy or of literary, artistic or scientific bodies. 3. Principals and rectors of schools. 4. Podestas of communes of more than 5,000 people. 5. Those who have published scientific or literary works. 6. Graduates of universities and institutes of superior instruction. 7. High bureaucratic state employés and army officers of the rank of captain or higher.

Assessors Get $2.60 a Day.

Thus the names of those competent for "assessor" service are reduced to a small percentage of the total population. The names will be placed in jury wheel as under the old system and a number double that actually required will be drawn and posted in the court. Then the minister of justice will decide on the five names for each court and these will be promulgated by royal decree.

The assessors will serve for two years and draw about $2.60 for each day's service. If they express an opinion about the merits of a case before a decision is rendered they may be fined from $15.60 to $523 and discharged. The number of assessors was made five as compared to two magistrates so that the nontechnical members of the juridical committee would not be overawed by the dignity and prestige of the togaed judges in sticking up for their decisions.

SHOOTS UP PARTY WIFE ATTENDS; 2 IN HOSPITAL

Barrington, N. J., March 29.—[Special.]—Howard Miller followed his wife, a former beauty pageant contestant, to a private party here last night. Denied admittance, he smashed in the front door. While the startled guests stood transfixed, he fired at James T. Thurwanger, 25, of Sharon Hill, Pa., and discharged five other bullets after the other guests as they fled from the room.

Thurwanger was taken to a hospital suffering from a bullet wound in his left lung. He is in a critical condition.

Miller's wife, the former Miss Lillian Happ, 20, who was "Miss Barrington" in the 1926 pageant, in fleeing from the gunfire tripped and fell down a flight of steps and was injured.

GRANGERS BACK DEBENTURE AS AID TO FARMERS

Washington, D. C., March 29.—The National Grange today reaffirmed its advocacy of the export debenture for disposition of agricultural production surpluses.

The need for "additional machinery," the executive committee of the Grange said in a statement, was emphasized by the farm board announcement that it would not attempt to stabilize the 1931 wheat crop.

"Although definite figures are not available," the committee said, "it is altogether probable that if a moderate rate of export debenture had been in effect during the last year, the returns to the farmer would have been greater, the cost to the treasury would have been less, and we would not now be burdened with such a price depressing carryover."

DANDRUFF
A Sure Way to End It

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid Arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid Arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy never fails.

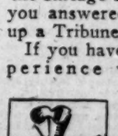
Simply Tell Facts In a Short Letter

What have the want ads done for you? Have you ever placed a want ad in the Chicago Tribune? Have you answered or followed up a Tribune Want Ad?

If you have had any experience with Tribune Want Ads, prior to March 15, 1931, the Tribune would like to hear from you. To make it worth your while to set forth the simple facts in a short letter, the Tribune is making the following offer:



The Simple Rules:

1. Each day for 29 days, beginning Sunday, March 22, 1931, the Chicago Tribune will publish five (5) True Want Ad Experiences. Letters must relate to experiences which took place prior to March 15, 1931. You are invited to send in a True Want Ad Experience and try for one of the cash awards which the Tribune will pay.

2. $5.00 will be paid to each person who submits a True Want Experience which is published. IN ADDITION, from all the letters submitted the following grand prizes will be paid to the persons whose letters are adjudged the best of all: First Grand Prize, $100.00; Second Grand Prize, $50.00; Third Grand Prize, $25.00; next ten Grand Prizes, $10.00 each. Total in prizes, $1,000.00.

3. Letters will be selected which, in the opinion of the judges, relate experiences in which Tribune Want Ads have performed the most helpful service, as judged from all the circumstances given in the letter. In making their decision, the judges will be governed by the facts given in the letters. Neatness, but NOT grammar and literary skill, will be considered.

4. This offer is open to all, except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just send in a brief letter.

5. Letters must not exceed 200 words in length.

6. You need not buy the Chicago Tribune. The Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at public libraries free of charge.

7. All letters must be received in the Tribune office before 6:00 p. m. on Monday, April 20, 1931. No letters will be returned.

8. Address all letters to "TRUE WANT AD EXPERIENCES," the Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill. Please state your name and address, and whether or not your name may be mentioned. If not, only initials will be used.

9. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be made to each tying contestant.

555 SHIPS PLY 5 GREAT LAKES; 444 AMERICAN

Largest Fleet Operating on Fresh Water.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 29.—[Special.]—Vessels operating under the American flag constituted 80 per cent of the number and 85 per cent of the tonnage of the great lakes fleet in 1930, it was announced today by the bureau of research of the shipping board.

Of a total of 555 vessels available for operation in January, 444 were American and 111 either British or Canadian, the bureau stated. The tonnage of the American ships aggregated 2,760,914 gross tons, as compared with a tonnage of 410,747 gross tons of vessels operating under foreign flags.

Foreign Ships Increase.

A comparison with the fleet of a year before disclosed that the American vessels decreased by three in number, but increased by 24,498 in gross tonnage. Foreign vessels increased by seven in number and 23,-370 tons.

Freighters made up the greatest portion of the great lakes fleet, the shipping board said, and represented 93 per cent of the total tonnage in service. American freighters numbered 454, while 37 were British.

38 Combination Freighters.

In addition to the freighters, there were 31 combination freighters and passenger vessels. Twenty of this number were American and 18 British. Seven tankers make up the remaining two per cent of tonnage.

The fastest vessels on the great lakes were two American combination passenger and freight carriers, the report showed. They had a speed of 19 knots. Honors in size were divided between American and British vessels, each fleet having one freighter of 16,000 gross tons.

The great lakes has the largest group of vessels in the world operating on fresh water, according to the board report, and has been known to transport 19,000,000 tons in a single year.

Higgins' Red Pat, an Irish setter, owned by Mrs. Ralph Hallen, 5302 Greenwood avenue, last night was judged the best dog, regardless of breed, and was awarded a $1,000 trophy by the Chicago Kennel club at the conclusion of its annual show at the First Regiment armory.

Red Pat has won many major prizes. He was chosen best of breed in a recent New York show, and captured the best in show awards in both Cincinnati and St. Louis.

Two other Chicago owned dogs won the best of breed honors. Charles R. Mellins' Aragon Silver Ace took the English setter championship, and Orr Mur, property of Orrin H. Baker, won the Highland terrier title. Other best of breeds winners:

Ornsay Bracken of Wyreston, a Scottie owned by I. Stanley Stone of Milwaukee; Ocean Raider, a Welsh terrier owned by Paul Llewellyn of Lake Forest; Rensal Regent, a Sealyham terrier owned by Rensal kennels, Detroit; Alpine Chieftain, St. Bernard, owned by A. Picard of St. Vital, Canada; Rhody It's a Bearcat, a Boston terrier owned by Hiram T. Snyder of Louisville, Ky.; Kishwaukee Cordial, a beagle, owned by R. C. Cole of Oshkosh, Wis.

FIRST FLOTILLA OF BARGES SAILS UP MISSISSIPPI

Low Stage of River Holds Down Weight of Loads.

Quincy, Ill., March 29.—[Special.]—The first up river barge flotilla passed Quincy yesterday en route from St. Louis to the Twin Cities.

They didn't whistle for Quincy for the simple reason that Quincy has no river terminal for barge lines. Burlington and Dubuque are the only two cities between St. Louis and St. Paul which have river terminals and barge facilities. Rock Island is preparing a river terminal, which will be opened some time this spring.

The barges used by the Interland Waterways corporation this year are four times larger than formerly used. The new barges are 2,000 tons capacity, while the old barges are 500 tons. Owing to the low stage of the river, however, the large barges will be loaded only to one-half of their capacity. That was the orders sent out from headquarters in St. Louis. The barge schedule announced calls for two sailings a week, Monday and Thursday from St. Louis up stream, and Tuesday and Friday from Minneapolis down stream.

Just when the packet boats will start has not been announced. River agents here have received no word as to when the Eagle packet from St. Louis will open its season. There is a question among river men as to whether the St. Louis packet boats will come to Quincy and points north this year on account of the low stage of the river, although some maintain that the channel is in better condition owing to the low stage last year than for many years, though to experienced river men this seems incredible.

Rain, 17 Billion Gals., Gives N. Y. 3 Wks.' Water Supply

New York, March 29.—(AP)—New York got a big drink of water over the week-end. It was big enough—17 billion gallons—to last three weeks, engineers estimated. Rain which started yesterday noon and continued until this morning raised several inches the 975 square miles of watershed.

MAKE YOUR HOME A SUNBEAM HOME

Start This Week Off Right by Buying Your Sunbeam Mixmaster Today

This is the mixer that beats everything quicker, more evenly. Mashes potatoes, beats eggs, whips, mixes, etc., etc.

Always ready for instant use. Nothing to put together or take apart. No adjusting at any time.

Nothing to hold—it stands by itself. Both bowls turn automatically, forcing all ingredients into and through the beaters—not one drop escapes. Your hands are free to do other work. When mixing is done the motor tips back, and the beaters drain into the bowl.

Self-cleaning. You don't have to lift off motor or beaters. No mess. No confusion.

Any speed you want—slow, medium or fast—by simply touching the lever on the base. Runs smoothly and quietly—the perfect home mixer.

Women praise it as the greatest aid that has come to their kitchens in years. Price, including the two bowls, $24.75.

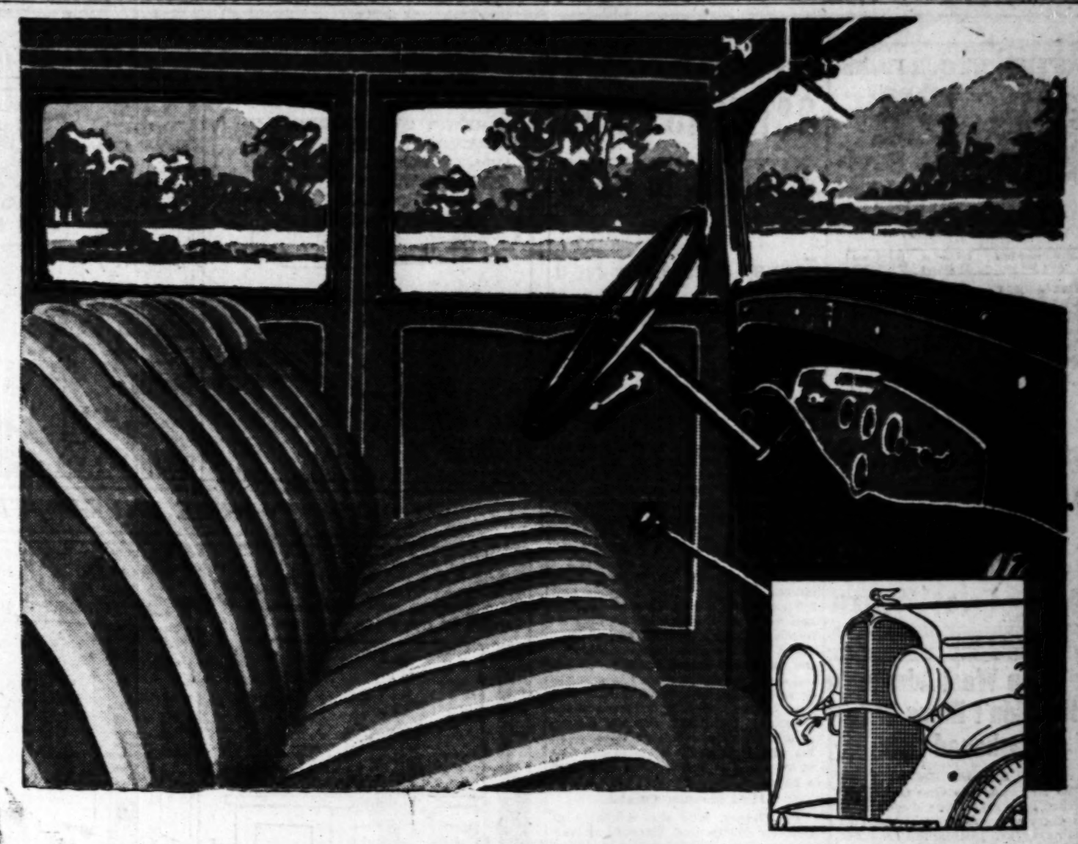
CHAS A STEVENS & BROS



The new PONTIAC with all its fine-car features costs only a little more than the lowest-priced cars

Two groups of motorists will be especially interested in the new Pontiac—those who want more quality than they have been getting at a similar price, and those who find that Pontiac offers the quality they have known, yet saves them money. They all see in Pontiac a sound investment—low in first cost and operating cost—a motor car in whose ownership they may well take pride.

BODIES BY FISHER—new in modish design, roomy comfort and safety. Genuine mohair or whipcord upholstery contributes a lasting atmosphere of good taste. Seat cushions are pleasingly deep and form-fitting. Appointments fully express the high ideals of Fisher craftsmanship.

CHASSIS CUSHIONED WITH RUBBER AT 41 POINTS—Pads of rubber between axles and springs, motor and frame—at 41 points altogether—insure the riding ease you associate with fine cars. Road shocks are reduced . . . the car's steadiness on the road improved . . . its life prolonged. Rubber-cushioned shackles promote comfort, eliminate lubrication at 12 points.

NEW 60 H. P. MOTOR drives Pontiac with the ready, even flow of smooth power you appreciate when traffic calls for quick action, or an open road allows sustained speed.

INSULATION AGAINST HEAT, COLD, NOISE—a notable advance in tight construction that shuts out extreme temperatures, reduces traffic clamor and defies rain. Cowl and windshield posts are formed in a single piece—a leak-proof and rattle-free construction. Pontiac's bodies are of superior construction throughout.

NEW, LARGER BRAKES—with an instant, positive grip on all four wheels that gives you confidence under all driving conditions.

In addition, Pontiac has five wire wheels as standard equipment; inbuilt radiator screen; heavy single-bar bumpers; Lovejoy shock absorbers; and many other modern features.

Don't you want to see and drive this low-priced, quality car? A demonstration will be arranged at your convenience.

John West Admits He Didn't Know Wife Darkened Hair

Darkens Hair So Naturally No One Can Tell

When I see gray I see old age. Youth is every woman's right, so don't let hair get gray. Just use this improved formula made from that wonderful old recipe of common sage tea and sulphur. Nothing better. Gray disappears overnight. And after two or three applications your hair will be the exact shade you want. So evenly, so naturally darkened nobody'll ever know. Just pay your druggist 75c for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur and follow the simple directions.

DR. G. A. DORSEY, SCIENTIST AND AUTHOR, IS DEAD

Former Curator of Field Museum Passes.

New York, March 29.—[Special.]—Dr. George A. Dorsey, anthropologist and author, who is known to thousands of Americans as the author of "Why We Behave Like Human Beings," died suddenly at 6 o'clock tonight of an embolism at his home. His death came half an hour after receiving from his secretary the last sheets of the final revision of his new book, "On Civilization," which is to be issued in the fall and which he had looked upon as the greatest work of his career. He was 63 years old.

No sign of ill health had been noticeable to Dr. Dorsey's family and friends, though one or two persons had made mild references to the tremendous amount of work he had been doing. He had intended to speak over the radio at 8 o'clock tonight, delivering a talk on anthropology in a weekly series. He had taken a bath and was dressing when he collapsed in his bedroom. His death was not discovered until some moments later when his wife went to his room to call him in response to a telephone call from a friend.

Field Museum Curator.

Dr. Dorsey, who was educated at Denison college and Harvard university, conducted anthropological investigations in South America for the Chicago expedition in 1891 and 1892, and then took up his work as an instructor in and curator of anthropology at Harvard, where he remained until 1898.

In that year he went to Chicago as curator of the Field Museum of Natural History and held the position until 1915. From 1909 until 1912 he was also a member of the staff of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, investigating sources of American immigration in eastern Europe. His travels at other times took him to Europe, Africa, Asia, and the East Indies, where he gathered specimens for the museum. He was president of the Chicago Geographical society in 1908-1909.

Aide at Peace Conference.

In the world war Dr. Dorsey was commissioned a lieutenant in the naval reserves. He was assistant naval attaché at Madrid, and was an advisor on Spanish problems to the American commission to negotiate peace at Paris.

He also was the author of "The Nature of Man," and "The Evolution of Charles Darwin."

Since 1925 Dr. Dorsey had been a lecturer on anthropology at the New School for Social Research in New York.

Besides his widow he is survived by a daughter and a son, George Chadsey Dorsey, who is connected with Marshall Field & Co. in Chicago.

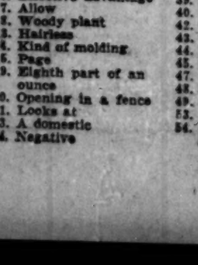
SATURDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



INDIAN BUREAU REORGANIZED TO SLASH RED TAPE

New Officials Chosen for U. S. Work.

Washington, D. C., March 29.—(AP)—Reorganization of the Indian office, designed to conquer many admitted evils which have attended the government's guardianship of its wards, was announced today by Commissioner Rhoads and Assistant Commissioner Scattergood.

Changes in the bureau, effective immediately, will place increased responsibility on new officials, selected for their professional equipment and knowledge of Indian problems.

By giving them wide executive power it will cut through much cumbersome procedure which has hampered the work and brought frequent condemnation upon the office.

New Divisions Created.

For the first time problems of human relations will be handled separately from those involving administration of property. Each will be under direction of an assistant to the commissioner. Under the first group new field divisions will be created for health, education, and agricultural extension and industry. The second group will include divisions of forestry and irrigation and activities dealing with tribal and individual property. The old organization, operated largely along clerical lines, was virtually unchanged for 50 years.

Appropriations Doubled.

The program climaxes the corrective process Rhoads and Scattergood began upon taking office in 1928. Since that year congress has doubled Indian appropriations, civil service qualifications and salaries for the field personnel of 5,000 have been raised, extensive construction has been undertaken to correct bad conditions at a number of Indian schools and hospitals, food allowances for children in the boarding schools have been increased from 11 to 37 cents a day and the heavy labor previously done by school children has been taken from them. Other similar improvements have been undertaken.

In weeding out "dead timber" from the field personnel the commissioners have replaced 24 out of the 110 superintendents of reservations and institutions. Of the new men 15 were promoted within the Indian service and nine were taken from outside. Eleven superintendents were retired for age or disability, six were demoted, two were dismissed, and one resigned "with prejudice." Four posts were vacant.

More Changes Coming.

A few further changes are to be made, but in general the commissioners are satisfied superintendents now in office are qualified for their increased responsibilities.

The division of human relations will be under Robert T. Lansdale, former executive secretary of the council of social agencies of Montclair, N. J., and of the staff of the New York School of Social Work.

EDWARD G. HOWE, TEACHER MANY YEARS, IS DEAD

Edward Gardiner Howe, 82 years old, 10233 South Wood street, for many years a teacher in Chicago schools, died Saturday after a long illness.

A native of Massachusetts, Mr. Howe was brought to Illinois by his parents in 1855. Educated at Lake Forest academy, he became a teacher in 1872, occupying posts at Lansing and Riverdale, at the Fessenden school, now the Harvard School for Boys, and the University of Illinois. In 1901 Mr. Howe took charge of the natural science department at the Englewood High school.

Mr. Howe was the author of two books used widely as texts, "Systematic Science Teaching" and "Advanced Elementary Science." Since his retirement he had been nature study examiner for the Boy Scouts of Chicago.

He is survived by his wife, four sons and three daughters. Funeral services will be held in the Bethany Union church, 103d and Wood streets, tomorrow at 10:30 a. m.

Edward Murphy, Veteran Minstrel, Dies, Aged 64

Jersey City, N. J., March 29.—(AP)—Edward Murphy, 64, who in the purple days of minstrelsy was a member of the Primrose & Dockstader company, died today after an illness of more than a year.

Remove BACTERIAL-MOUTH
Though you may brush teeth and gums faithfully, Bacterial-Mouth threatens beauty and health so long as you breathe. It is caused by germs that sweep into the mouth. They attack teeth and gums and defy the ordinary dentifrice. To have sound, sparkling white teeth and firm, pink gums you must guard against this offending condition that confronts all of us. One dental cream removes Bacterial-Mouth by killing the germs that cause it. That dental cream is KOLYNOS.
Mon. Tues. Wed. Three Shades Whiter

Teeth 3 shades Whiter in 3 days

USE the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique for 3 days—a half-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush, morning and night. Then look at your teeth, fully 3 shades whiter.

In 10 days the improvement will be so marked you will never again say that white teeth are a gift received only by a fortunate few.

Dentists have long advocated the Dry-Brush Technique as the one way to use a dental cream full strength and keep brush bristles stiff enough to clean every tooth surface and massage gums properly. Kolynos permits this approved technique.

This highly concentrated, double-strength dental cream is unique in action. It multiplies 25 times when it enters the mouth—thus a half-inch of Kolynos is equal in effectiveness to 12 inches of the ordinary toothpaste. It becomes a surging, antiseptic FOAM that makes wetting the tooth brush unnecessary.

You can feel Kolynos work. It foams into every pit, fissure and crevice.

Germs that cause Bacterial-Mouth and lead to stain, decay and gum diseases are instantly killed. They vanish and the entire mouth is purified. Kolynos kills 190 million germs in 15 seconds, 424 million in 60 seconds.

This amazing Kolynos FOAM removes food particles that ferment and cause decay... neutralizes acids... washes away tartar and the unsightly mucoid coating that clouds teeth.

Easily and quickly, it cleans and polishes teeth down to the naked white enamel—without injury. And for 3 hours after each brushing this cleansing, purifying process continues.

So long as you use the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique teeth will remain gleaming white and sound, gums will be firm and healthy.

Look for Results in 3 Days

If you want whiter, sounder teeth and firm, pink gums start using Kolynos—a half-inch on a dry brush, morning and night. Within 3 days teeth will look whiter—fully 3 shades. Gums will look and feel better. Your mouth will tingle with a clean, sweet taste. Buy a tube of Kolynos today.

Doris Blake Advises Girls Affairs of Heart and Home

A Pre-view by Fanny Butcher

W. SOMERSET MAUGHAM. [Drawn by Covarrubias.]

ALONG in October of last year there was published a book called "Cakes and Ale," by Somerset Maugham. It caused an excitement quite apart from its literary delights [which were many and delicious]. That excitement was engendered by the feeling on the part of practically all the readers who got through the first three pages that the author was definitely writing about somebody they knew, or knew about. The others—that is those who weren't before hand addicted to the more brilliant of the English novelists probably never penetrated the secrets of the chapters following the first. It was obvious from the beginning that here was a novel destined only for those who could see the joke, and you couldn't see the joke if you didn't know the ways of writing men.

There was intense and bitter satire in the pen of Mr. Maugham and it was incredibly grand reading. However, the public got it into its head that the hero of the book was one Thomas Hardy, with a subhero one Hugh Walpole. The digs which the author (writing in the first person) puts at his heroes and the wife of one of them were so vicious that London and, in echo, New York and Chicago, as well as assorted foci of the reading public—began making the most elaborate defenses and denials. Denials and recriminations, statements of facts and fancies were far livelier than usual in book writing and selling, now a rather calm business, for there were days when books off the press drew pistols from holsters, swords from scabbards; men dueled and killed over such matters. Now they write to the London Times.

Loyal souls leapt to the defense [in words] of the late Thomas Hardy, statistics were marshaled to prove that he was NOT the novelist whom Mr. Maugham meant. A group of well wishers of Mr. Walpole are said to have accosted him with this joviality: "O Hugh, did you see what Maugham wrote about John Drinkwater in 'Cakes and Ale'?"

Their hope was thus to assure him that THEY didn't think for an instant that he could possibly have been meant.

Meanwhile the only living suspect, Mr. Walpole, pursued his genial and spirited way. Never once, by so much as a paragraph to a literary review, did he admit that he might have sat for a portrait said to resemble him.

It is because Mr. Walpole's actions during the entire episode were so beyond reproach that the suggestion he is the author of a volume published only under the title, "Gin and Bitters" [Farrar & Rinehart], is absurd beyond the absurdities. But somebody wrote it who is drawing a swift sword for all authors who might vaguely be suspected of having sat—however unwillingly—for Mr. Maugham's portraits of the writing gentry in "Cakes and Ale."

"Gin and Bitters" is in no sense a parody on "Cakes and Ale." It is a clever but none the less vicious attack on that book's author. The anonymous author's choice of a pseudonym explains the mood and reason for being of the book. "A Riposte" he—or she—calls himself—or herself—for a riposte is a fencer's counter thrust after his antagonist's lunge has been parried. "Gin and Bitters" reason for being obviously is revenge. Granting that, the book became a wickedly clever piece of work. It is written, recognizably, in the mode of Mr. Maugham. Even if the title were not so obviously a counter thrust to "Cakes and Ale," the author's style would have made clear the implication that its here is the writer of "Cakes and Ale." Rarely, in our time at least, has any one taken the trouble to reply so thoroughly to a literary slight. For "Gin and Bitters" is in itself an excellent novel—as good as "Cakes and Ale," because many of the darts already had been shot by Mr. Maugham in his satire on the business of being an author. Nor is "Gin and Bitters" quite so brilliantly written. But it's good enough, if "Cakes and Ale" never had existed, to be a memorable picture of a novelist.

The author of "Gin and Bitters" believes identity is as much a secret from me as it is from you] has written an important novel about a novelist who writes novels about other novelists. The obvious inference is that the hero of "Gin and Bitters" is Mr. Somerset Maugham, who wrote "Cakes and Ale." And the picture of that hero is a cruel and bitter one. Whoever sought revenge on him for his satiric implications in "Cakes and Ale" has taken a sharp and coldly calculating one in "Gin and Bitters."

When I saw J. B. Priestley in New York he assured me that it could not have come from any of the obvious writers in London, who had taken belligerent sides last fall. He would know of it, he said. New York was agog with rumors. One young English visitor is said to have proclaimed that only one person in the world besides himself could have written it, because only one other person knew of one of the incidents in the book. He did NOT write it, he proclaimed. "A Riposte" probably will shed his—or her—anonymity instanter. Once a book is published you can't keep its author's identity a secret for long. Elinor Mordaunt, one of the world's most traveled humans, is mentioned as a possibility.

That guess is as good as any. For "Gin and Bitters" travels to far parts of the world with an intense description that even casual visitors to China, Java, the south seas, and assorted unfrequented spots would not be able to manage. My guess is that it is a collaboration. Perhaps between Walter Winchell and Burton Holmes!

Other important books celebrating their birthday on March 30 are:

FICTION.

Flamenco, by Lady Eleanor Smith [Bobbs Merrill], a strange, brooding tale of the eighteen hundreds on the English moors by the author of "The Red Wagon"—about which more later.

NONFICTION.

Men of Art, by Thomas Craven [Simon & Schuster], an "Outline of Art" like Will Durant's famous "Story of Philosophy," drawn with the biographies of great artists—about which also more later. "Men of Art" is the April choice of the Book of the Month club.

The Dreyfus Affair, by Jacques Kayser [Covici Friede], an intimate account and an exhaustive study of one of the most famous incidents in modern history. Translated from the French of Alfred Dreyfus' nephew.

This Village Family Ruled by 'Bad Sister'

But Happy Ending Lets Her See Errors.

"BAD SISTER."

"Let my will and not thine be done!"

Quoth this bad girl to every one.

Produced by Universal.
Directed by Hobart Henley.
Presented at the Palace theater.
THE CAST.

Dick Lindley	Conrad Nagel
Marianne	Sidney Fox
Laura	Bette Davis
Valentine Corliss	Humphrey Bogart
Minnie	Zasu Pitts
Sam	Slim Summerville
Mr. Madison	Charles Winninger
Mrs. Madison	Emma Dunn
Wade Trumbull	Bert Roach
Hedrick Madison	David Durand

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

The heroine of this picture is a pretty bad eggess until almost the end of the story. She reforms for the finale, but, somehow, you don't take much stock in her redemption. You feel it won't be long until Marianne's shrewd little mind is again working overtime in the interests of Marianne.

"Bad Sister" draws you into the family circle of the Madisons. This small town household consists of a kindly, self-sacrificing, hard-working father; a nice, comfortable mother; a typical small brother, a scrappy and oversensitive hired girl who's "as good as anybody and won't take nothing off nobody," and the two sisters—a good one and a bad. There are relatives, too, who surge back and forth.

Marianne rules the roast. Her word is law and what she wants she takes. The young men of the village pass up sweet, blonde Laura for the luscious little dark lady, who uses them and—when it suits her—loses them.

Her affair with a snappy stranger who bamboozles her into actually breaking the law opens her eyes to things as they are. And—H. E!

Sidney Fox plays Marianne convincingly. You hate her. Charles Winninger gives a masterly and appealing characterization of Mr. Madison. David Durand does young Hedrick to a turn and others manage nicely rôles that offer little opportunity for outstanding portrayals. I couldn't care for Bette Davis as the good sister. Limp as a wet dish rag, she denotes purity and nobility by a stricken, hunted-rabbit gaze that she also uses in lieu of acting.

Taken all in all, though, "Bad Sister" is an interesting program picture.

KIND: Program melodrama.
QUALITY: Fair.
ACTING: As good as the rôles permit.
DIRECTION: So-so.
PHOTOGRAPHY: Good.
SOUND, SETS, SCENERY: Okay.
LINES: Tame.
STORY: Shopworn stuff. About the hapless small town girl who is deceived by a slick dark feller. He keeps out of her life till she marries well and happily, when he returns to threaten her after the fashion of ten twen' thirt' heavies since the days of Laura Jean Libbey. Floods figure prominently in crises of the heroine's career. And they're pretty good floods.

See you tomorrow!

Delegates from 100 Women's Clubs Will Discuss the Movies

Motion pictures, their present and their future, with especial emphasis on the matter of censorship, will engross delegates from more than 100 city, state and county organizations meeting on Thursday at the Chicago Woman's club. The conference will be an all day affair, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. Arthur F. Planck, chairman in charge of arrangements.

At the morning session Mrs. Richard McClure of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs will discuss "What Is Being Done for Better Films?" with Mrs. Carlton Randolph of Evanston, Mrs. W. A. Pettenger of Hyde Park, and Mrs. John R. Bensley of the Parent-Teacher association participating.

DOUG FAIRBANKS HUNTING TIGERS AND TWISTING LION'S TAIL

COOCH BEHAR, India, March 29.—(AP)—Douglas Fairbanks, American film star, who is visiting her highness, Maharini Sahiba, regent of the state of Cooch Behar, has forsaken every day life for the jungles. There he spends his days hunting tigers, panthers, and leopards.

His hostess administers this tiny state in the Bengal district in behalf of her minor son.

Today Fairbanks bagged a large panther. He will take the skin home as a trophy for his wife, Mary Pickford.

Victor Fleming and E. K. Tanaka, a Japanese, who are accompanying Fairbanks, are making sound motion pictures of the roaring of lions and tigers and other denizens of the Indian jungle.

In an address before the Cooch Behar university students the American actor compared Mahatma Gandhi, Indian Nationalist leader, with George Washington, saying both had the same ideals of liberty.

Better Testing Method than Exams Sought by Nine Universities

Better methods of testing the knowledge of college students than the examinations now generally given were recommended yesterday at the close of a two day conference in the Windermere hotel, attended by representatives of nine large universities.

According to George A. Works, dean of students and university examiner at the University of Chicago, it was agreed that the present type of examination was little more than a test of the student's memory. The scope should be extended so that the instructor will be able to judge the pupil's ability to do creative work and to apply the knowledge he has in unusual situations.

Aside from the University of Chicago, the following institutions were represented at the conference: Yale, Michigan, Ohio State, Minnesota, Columbia, Wisconsin, Iowa, and Buffalo university.

Black Horse Troopers to Give Show on Friday

The Black Horse troop will hold drills and ceremonies at the Chicago Riding club next Friday evening before its sponsors and hundreds of cadets of the R. O. T. C. of Chicago high schools. The mounted drill will be directed by Capt. Chauncey McCormick, troop commander. He will be aided by Lieuts. Paul Butler, Roy D. Keehn Jr., and W. E. Myers. Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the Sixth corps area, will be the guest of honor.

"Vitamin Fad" Under Attack by Physicians

Aid of Mayos Gets Data from Over 400.

St. Paul, Minn., March 29.—(AP)—The "vitamin mania of the twentieth century" was criticized by Dr. Walter C. Alvarez of the Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn. He has produced an article based on diet questionnaires filled out by 470 physicians throughout the country.

The article appears in the April issue of "Everybody's Health," published by the Minnesota Public Health association and made public today.

Dr. Alvarez concluded that food should be chosen primarily for its digestibility and secondarily for its vitamin content. He said vitamin deficiency diseases are rare in the United States.

Sensible eaters, Dr. Alvarez said, have sufficient vitamins in their systems to last over any reasonable period of semi-starvation.

Bran and similar roughage, he believes, is conducive to ill health rather than making for good health.

"The future historian of medicine," Dr. Alvarez wrote, "is going to be somewhat puzzled when he comes to write up the story of the vitamin mania of the twentieth century. He will wonder what could have so frightened the dietitians that they should have behaved each day as if a moment's relaxation of vigilance would plunge all their adult patients into the throes of scurvy, beri-beri, pellagra, and xeropthalmia.

"Perhaps one reason they fear these diseases is that they never have seen them and do not know what they are.

"Strange as it may seem, there is no shadow of an excuse for giving roughage when one wants to supply vitamins or chemical elements. One can get more than enough vitamins 'A' in butter, more than enough of the two 'B's' in a little yeast or extract of wheat kernel, obtainable in a drug store, more than enough 'C' in a little orange, and more than enough 'D' in a little tablet of concentrated cod liver oil or irradiated ergosterol.

"Iron may be obtained in many foods besides wheat and spinach. Even the green chlorophyll of plants now can be obtained in tablet form, so there is no real need for the appearance each day of spinach on every sick tray in every hospital in the land.

"In mose cases, as when a patient is going to be in the hospital for two or three weeks after an operation, it is only a thoughtless or ignorant person who would worry about the vitamin content of the diet. Every one who eats sensibly has enough vitamins stored in his body to tide through a few weeks or even months of semi-starvation."

Commenting on the answers contained in the questionnaires, Dr. Alvarez states:

"It is somewhat surprising to find so many of these physicians expressing themselves as strongly against the use of bran. Then I remembered that it is not the medical profession that has been leading the crusade for the use of more vitamins and roughage. This fight has been waged largely by amateur dietitians, self-appointed guardians of public health."

CLUBWOMEN WAR ON CANCER WITH AN APPEAL FOR FUNDS

With the mailing today of 50,000 books of cancer seals, the cancer research committee of the Chicago Woman's club will begin its second annual campaign for funds to educate the public on cancer.

The seals, yellow and red, last year, have been changed in color to green, yellow, and chocolate. They bear the slogan: "Fight cancer with knowledge." The seal drive is being conducted under the direction of Mrs. Frederick A. Lorenz, chairman of the educational division of the committee, which includes Mrs. Otis Maclay, Mrs. Charles Parkes, and Mrs. William C. Robinson. Mrs. J. Kibben Ingalls is chairman of the cancer research committee, and Mrs. William R. Cubbins, vice president.

Dr. Gilbert FitzPatrick of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, in commenting yesterday upon the value of the cancer work being done by the Chicago Woman's club, declared:

"In the present situation, education is the crying need in efforts to check cancer. Physicians and patients must be educated so they will coördinate their efforts in using the knowledge at hand. Tuberculosis has been largely controlled by education and coöperation, although there is no specific treatment for it. So it can be with cancer."

Although there has been a slight decrease in skin and mouth cancer during the last ten years, there has been approximately an increase of 21 per cent in all forms of cancer. In 1919 the number of deaths from cancer in Illinois totaled 5,846, while in 1929 the number was 8,146.

THE STAGE

"STEPPING SISTERS," now at the Blackstone, will make way for Frank Craven's comedy, "That's Gratitude," next Sunday night, but will continue its Chicago run at another theater. Manager Wappler of the Blackstone reports that this farce about three burlesque show "queens," holding a whoopee reunion in Long Island society, has too much box office "it" to be sent out of town. He is now trying to find another home for the play and has four theaters under consideration. One of them is the tenantless Majestic.

Thus it seems that "Stepping Sisters" promises to repeat its Broadway history here. It traveled around the New York theatrical district last fall and winter like a postman.

A play called "The Insurance Agent" has suddenly emerged from the hinterlands to begin a sojourn at the Princess theater tonight. It popped up over the week-end like a mushroom, and nothing is known of it except that it was written by a certain Gene Topping and employs twenty-five actors. Reports that life insurance companies are reserving blocks of seats arouses a suspicion that this pastime may be a psychological training school for insurance agents.

"Dr. Harmer," the new play by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero which was staged in Washington last week, was sent into storage yesterday. It figures on the prospectus of the Dramatic League of Chicago for next season, but its sudden closing suggests that it is regarded as a failure and that its career on the American stage has ended. Philip Merivale, who was the star of the company, will return to "Death Takes a Holiday" for a spring tour, beginning in Boston next Saturday night.

"Melo," a drama by Henry Bernstein of Paris, will have its New York première at the Ethel Barrymore theater April 13. The cast includes Edna Best, Earle Larimore, Basil Rathbone, Fuller Mellish, Harry Davenport, Eva Leonard Boyne, and Ruth Abbott. The revival of "Petter Ibbetson," with Dennis King as star, formerly announced for the Barrymore, will be staged at the Shubert theater opening April 5.

Talkies Are Vogue; in India; History, Legend, Sex Appeal

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 29.—Talking films have given Indian capital a field undreamed of and, linguistically, the largest known in the world. A weakling industry depending for its life on circulation of small productions in confined areas has been replaced by a growing giant bidding for revenue from 240,000,000 people.

Approximately £50,000,000 of fresh capital was poured into the film industry in India during 1930 alone. More is available, and a thousand or so new theaters either have been built or planned.

Early in its existence female rôles were taken by young boys dressed as women, the custom on the Indian stage. It was only four years ago that women began to appear on the screen. Now there are something like 1,100 women artists engaged at the studios, while the industry gives employment to 3,600 men.

At present there are six women stars who are graduates of universities, and 60 girls who have university training.

Producers hurried to meet the demand and, as a result, began to go back to the old stories of Indian appeal. Old dramas in Sanskrit which had been translated into different local languages were taken up first. Vasantasena, or the love story of an Indian courtesan, has proved the most popular. Six different companies have filmed the story and all the films have brought welcome results.

'HOLY GRAIL,' SOME CALL CHALICE NOW OWNED IN GOTHAM

New York, March 29.—[Special.]—A silver cup which many persons believe was used by Jesus and His apostles at the last supper—the Holy Grail of the Legends of King Arthur—shortly will be removed from a bank here and taken to Paris as part of an exhibition of Christian art to be held in the Louvre. This was learned today from Fabin Kouchakji, owner of the cup.

This cup, known by archeologists as "The Great Chalice of Antioch," was found in 1910 beneath the ruins of a great Christian church at Antioch in Syria, built by the Emperor Constantine in the fourth century and destroyed by an earthquake in 526 A. D. The cup, enclosed in an elaborately sculptured sheathing of silver and gold leaf, which several archeologists are convinced was made in the first century, was found in company with several other silver objects.

Palm Sunday Starts Services of Holy Week

Noon Rites Will Be Held in the Loop.

Palm Sunday observances in practically all churches of the city yesterday ushered in the final period before Easter known as Holy Week. Palm branches were blessed and distributed to the thousands of communicants of the Catholic and Episcopal churches, while special music, confirmations and special sermons marked the day among the Protestant communions.

Beginning today and continuing through Friday loop theaters will continue noonday services. Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago, will be the noonday preacher at the Garrick. Commissioner William A. McIntyre of the Salvation Army will conduct evangelistic services each noon at the Cort. The Chicago Church federation, in coöperation with the First Methodist Episcopal church and the Presbyterian extension board, will direct services at the Blackstone and at the Chicago Temple.

Lutherans of the Missouri synod will open loop services for Holy Week this noon at the Adelphi, while the Peoples' church, 941 Lawrence avenue, has secured the Selwyn for noon day services. The Grand Opera house services under auspices of the business men's evangelistic committee, will continue services. Commissioner McIntyre of the Salvation Army has announced a "week of self-denial" in order to secure funds for army work in this country and foreign lands.

Spain Observes Day with Political Meetings, Too.

MADRID, March 29.—(AP)—While Spain observed Palm Sunday with special services today, political parties took advantage of the holiday to stage a series of municipal electoral propaganda meetings throughout the country. Meetings of the coalition Republican Socialist forces petitioned the government to free all political prisoners.

In several cities thousands of persons paraded in protests to the imprisonments. The demonstrations were generally peaceful and the marchers were not molested by police.

In Cadiz, Gen. Ricardo Burgette, who has been dismissed as president of the supreme court martial, started serving a two months' sentence at Santa Catalina castle for his political declarations Friday. He was cheered by a crowd which met him at the railroad station. His wife accompanied him here from Madrid.

Miguel Maura, son of the late Conservative premier, Antonio Maura, and Fernando Rios, recently released after conviction for leadership in the December revolt, made their first speeches since leaving jail. They were loudly cheered as they predicted early establishment of a republic in Spain.

The king and queen attended special public church services at the royal palace in Madrid.

Pope to Say Mass Today in His Private Chapel.

VATICAN CITY, March 29.—(AP)—At Pope Pius' own mass tomorrow morning in the private chapel of his apartments, the lay noblemen belonging to the pontifical court will receive their Easter communion from his hands.

The pope will confer the sacrament on members of his ecclesiastical court on Holy Thursday, and on several children of diplomats accredited to the holy see on Easter morning, presumably in the Pauline chapel. During the week members of the Swiss and Palatine guards and other forces will make their communions, their own chaplains officiating.

Parisians Mark Day by Taking Palms Into Homes.

PARIS, March 29.—(AP)—Branches of palm and boughs of evergreens decorated the interiors of all French Catholic homes today after the Palm Sunday masses.

"La Fete des Rameaux," to give it its French name, fell this year on the second Sunday of spring, and the palms were plentiful in the big flower market on the Ile de la Cite, not far from Notre Dame, and in the other by the Church of the Madeleine in the downtown section. Trade was lively from early morning.

Tradition has it that the palms or gorse or other plants, blessed during the Sunday service, bring happiness and contentment for the entire year to the homes into which they are taken.

Lent Day by Day

MONDAY

The Rev. Father G. P. Scanlon
[Archdiocesan Director Catholic Youth Movement.]

Yesterday, Palm Sunday, commemorated the triumphal entry of Christ into Jerusalem. With a blaze of glory, a blare of pomp and circumstance, it inaugurated holy week, the momento of the world's greatest tragedy.

From the palm-strewn streets of Jerusalem, from the hysterical hosannas of the fickle mob, Christ moved to the sad wastes, the rocky surface, the grim silence of Gethsemane.

During this holy week, more than ever, it is fitting that we follow the Master in His change of scene. Away from the superficialities of the mob, let each one of us realize that for some time we have been passing through a heaven-sent Gethsemane which has weighed the treasures and pleasures of the world and found them as a toy balloon, a bauble that an adverse economic condition can puncture into oblivion.

Hard times, poverty, disillusionment have bathed us in a bloody sweat. Let it wring from us, also, that acknowledgement of true spiritual values, that epitome of Christian philosophy,—

"O Father, if it be possible let this Chalice pass from me.

Not my will but Thine be done."

Two Stars of Opera Lead Sunday Music

BY EDWARD MOORE.

TWO distinguished members of the Chicago Civic Opera company sang almost side by side yesterday afternoon, though not on the same stage. Cyrena Van Gordon gave a song recital at the Civic theater. Tito Schipa did the same at the Civic Opera house.

Miss Van Gordon ranks in the first class of first contraltos and wherever lyric tenors' names are mentioned Mr. Schipa's name is sure to enter the conversation. Wherefore the two recitals presented highly specialized examples of both vocal departments. Miss Van Gordon began her recital with the aria, "Gerechter Gott," from Wagner's "Rienzi," singing with a richness of voice, dramatic instinct, and personal charm that I have not heard equaled in these many years. She passed then to a group of seldom heard and greatly attractive German songs, both lyric and dramatic in character, and here again she made a huge success.

Mr. Schipa, in the best of his lovely voice, began with a group from the old Italian, sustained, aristocratic, beautifully sung, and captivating to all his hearers. There was only one objection to his recital. It came at a time when there was so much other music that it was impossible to remain for some numbers that looked fascinating, a new folk song from Naples, for instance, and three others from his own native province of Apulia. They must be reserved for a future day.

Over on the other side of the loop Angna Enters at the Studebaker presented some new "episodes in dance form" and repeated some others. The "Pique-Nique," one of the new ones, to music by Delibes, displayed her uncanny ability to fill the stage with landscape and other persons when in reality there was no one there but herself and her properties. The "Delsarte," a repetition, was equally of value in showing her gifts as a humorous and accurate caricaturist.

Jose Iturbi's piano recital at Orchestra hall presented him in several aspects. One was his unfailing ability to make music ripple, the point by which he first became famous, calling for extraordinary technic of its kind, and beautifully illustrated in Liszt's "Jet d'Eaux." The other was the boarder, firmer toned style which he would seem to be making great efforts to register with the public, and well though not quite so fascinatingly done in the Handel-Brahms variations.

Meanwhile Mischa Livschutz was giving a violin recital at the Playhouse. He is an artist who produces a beautiful tone in whatever he plays, and a virtuoso whose capabilities lead him not only to a brilliant performance of the Paganini concerto but to the composition of his own cadenza therefor.

Of other music in the course of the afternoon, the Beethoven trio concluded its series of well played chamber music at the Cordon club. Also Luella Melius, former Chicagoan and a coloratura soprano of high ability, gave a recital in the annual benefit musical event of St. James' church, Twenty-ninth street and Wabash avenue.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Joan, age 5, was invited out to tea by one of her little girl friends. She was puzzled when she saw the family bow their heads for grace.

"What are you doing?" she asked.

"Giving thanks for our daily bread," she was told. "Don't you give thanks at home, Joan?"

"No," said Joan, "we pay for our bread." M. E. H.

THE SIXTH JOURNEY

BY ALICE GRANT ROSMAN

SYNOPSIS.

John Falconer, a successful architect, returning home to England from Cape Town, meets Hilary Revel, author of travel books, on shipboard. During the journey home their acquaintance grows into a friendship neither wishes to end.

John tells Hilary of his daughter, Judith, born of a café singer while he was a soldier. His wife, John says, had magnanimously adopted the child. Hilary suspects such magnanimity. John's sister, Gertrude, became Judith's legal guardian when his wife died.

Hilary had taken her war invalided brother, Hugh, away from home ten years ago to give her younger sister, Christine, and brother, Stephen, a better chance. Now that Hugh is dead, Hilary was returning home. Her stepfather is the only sympathetic member of the family.

Shortly after their return John and Hilary become engaged.

Judith leads a lonely life in her aunt's home. Her cousin, Prue, is her only friend. So has a private teacher, Miss Mead, while her cousins are away at school. Her father she knows as Uncle John. She senses she is different in some way from other children. Her Aunt Gertrude hears of her brother's engagement she sends Judith to the country, where she is uneasy about Judith not being in school. He thinks it unfair to drag Hilary continually into the question of the child and Hilary feels that he has had enough man- agement in caring for Judith. John writes Gertrude for the truth. She replies that she cannot, as a decent citizen, send a waif of dubious parentage among other children.

Judith, at the farm of her former nurse Tracy's brother, is badly treated by the old servant. She meets Clive Harpenden, the little master of the home where she delivers cream for Tracy. Judith, receiving no mail, writes secretly to Prue.

Prue meets Hilary for tea and tries to enlist her aid for Judith. Hilary's vow not to embarrass makes her rebuff Prue. They run into Tim De Morreville, whom Hilary and John met on the boat home. Tim drives Prue home and makes an engagement to drive the next day to visit Judith.

Falconer leaves town on a business trip.

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

SECRET COMFORT.

Sometimes Clive waited for Judy in the wood, pointing his gun at her from behind a tree; sometimes he sprang out from the shrubbery as she returned from delivering the cream to her friend the cook; he had never failed to join her yet. Sometimes he wanted her to stay and play in the garden, but, though she longed to do this, she always refused. The wood, even if it did belong to his father, was different somehow. Anybody could go into a wood.

"Why do you always have to go back so soon?" complained Clive. "Do you have to do lessons every day?"

"Sort of lessons," confessed Judy.

"So do I. Rot, isn't it? But I do 'em after lunch. I have a tutor twice a week, Latin mostly."

How could you ask a lordly being who talked thus of Latin about the wives of Henry VIII." Judy knew not a word of Latin, because Miss Mead had not taken it at her school. Judy had wanted to learn it because Midge talked patronizingly about it and used it with Cecil to say things Judy was not intended to understand. And now it seemed that everybody learned Latin and her own ignorance filled her with shame.

"Why do you always have to go back so soon?" complained Clive. "Do you have to do lessons every day?"

Clive, however, was not the least patronizing, and often said things that gave her secret comfort.

"Do you know when your father is coming home yet?"

"No, but I don't think it ought to be very long. I have written to my cousin to see what she thinks."

"He's on the way, then?"

"He might be," said Judy eagerly, "but I don't really know."

"Doesn't he write to you? Neither does mine. He's awfully decent, of course, sends me a tip now and then and messages by mother—when I'm at school, I mean."

There was so much she didn't know, but it was splendid that Clive's father didn't write to him, either. Fathers perhaps were like that, though it had never occurred to her before to think it strange that the father called Mr. Harris did not write to the daughter he had left behind.

. . . . . .

"This is going to be a tricky business," thought Prue, watching Tim from a corner of her eye as he showed Jemima's paces through the lovely lanes of Hertfordshire, round Luton's winding streets and over the hills towards Bedford.

"Rum, but nice," was her private verdict on this tall, rather hawk faced young man with his cheerful grin and astounding absorption in all the country round.

Prue had brought a luncheon basket; although she might snaffle Tim and his Jemima, no one should accuse her of avarice. Her chums had been held up for every penny they could spare, and Prue was in debt for nearly fifteen shillings which she would have to extract from her mother in advance against next month, lest starvation face the little Bloomsbury household. She had bought lavishly of sandwiches and pastries from Mr. Lyons, cider and ginger beer, cardboard plates and cups, oranges, strawberries, cigarets, and a paper tablecloth and napkin. A fat packet of chocolate and a ten shilling note were put aside for Judy, who should not go stampless, whatever else she might have to go, thought Prue with fierce determination.

As she set out her provisions on the grass, Tim studied the map and found they were within a few miles of Haydon village.

"What time do we make our call?" he asked. "It is now 12:15."

Prue sat back on her heels and surveyed him with a calculating eye, as though testing every feature to see how far he could be trusted.

"It is a tricky business, this call, as a matter of fact."

"No, is it? Good shot, fire away and tell me all." Tim came and settled himself for the feast. "Jolly nice of you to bring this spread, but I meant to give you lunch on the way somewhere, so don't do it again."

"Fair is fair," retorted Prue. "You provided the chariot or I should not have been able to come, which reminds me that I haven't come, but am at present in bed at Bloomsbury with a wet towel round my head and the blinds drawn."

"Jemima and I can vouch for it."

"What, to mother?"

Tim chuckled.

"Well, perhaps you're right. . . . And Prudence was her name. . . . Let us proceed to chapter two."

"You see, this woman at the farm was my young cousin's nurse at one time. . . ."

"Really? Old family retainer and all that . . . a good, motherly soul. . . . I've read about 'em in my youth . . . generally known as Nannie, the favorite Christian name for goats, where I come from."

Prue snorted.

"This one happens to be a tittle-tattling she-devil, and the point is, if I don't want mother to get wind of this expedition, I must see Judy without Tracy's knowledge."

"Tracy being the she-dev," said Tim. "Then this is where I come into the drama? Strolling into the farm, I engage the villainess in chat, while the persecuted heroine slips out to interview her rescuer in Jemima."

"That might be an idea," agreed Prue doubtfully, "but how long do you think you can keep it up?"

"Hours, bless you. I demand some eggs, and I must have 'em hot off the nest . . . a great many eggs," said Tim. "I examine the grandfather clock with awe, and throw fits of admiration over the old farm kitchen. Being an Orstralian, as you say over here, I've never seen anything like it. I consult the she-dev about fattening a turkey to send to my aunt for Christmas. I . . . look here, you trust me. I'll keep going if I have to buy the farm. The negotiations can easily break down afterwards."

"And then there's another thing," said Prue. "How is Judy going to know I'm there? How are we to get word to her?"

"I shove a note into her hand. . . . Here, wait a jiff, I generally have a pencil and paper. . . . Now then:

"Prue is in blue car down the road. Cut for your life. . . . Is it a road or a lane?"

"How do I know?"

"Well, we must look the place over and then write the note:

"Prue is in blue car in the (lane—road—spinney—copse); run for your life to the right—left. [Cross out words not required.] That ought to do it. Please furnish description of Judy."

"She's thirteenish, thin, and rather tall, pigtail, good eyes, nice kid."

"She's thirteenish, thin, and rather tall, pigtail, good eyes, nice kid," reported Prue, "but I don't quite like the idea of notes. Tracy is a letter snatcher."

"Why on earth do you keep her out of gaol? However, let us put our minds to work. . . . I've got it! I simply say to Tracy with my most ingratiating smile, 'Will you let your little girl take a glass of water out to my sister in the car down the road? The heat has rather knocked her up.' Not Judy."

"That might do, if Judy is visible."

"If Tracy spots any funny business, we may get Judy into the soup. I'd rather simply call and demand the kid, and risk a row with mother. What about pushing on?"

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, March 29.—[Special.]—Miss Eleanor Horton Taylor, daughter of Mrs. T. Herbert Taylor, is sailing for Bermuda Thursday.

Miss Louise E. Lacey gave a dinner at the Pan-Hellenic last night for Mrs. William M. Fleitmann and Mrs. Lloyd Bowen Sanderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Strawbridge, who went to Melton Mowbray, England, for the hunting season, are expected back early next month.

Mrs. E. Mortimer Ward gave a luncheon at the Plaza yesterday.

Mrs. W. Ives Washburn Jr. has returned from Bermuda.

Mr. and Mrs. Alden R. Ludlow returned today on the Europa.

Miss Johnston, C. H. Olmsted Are Engaged

BY THALIA

HULBURD JOHNSTON of 1425 State parkway announces the engagement of his sister, Mary Elizabeth Johnston, to Conway Howard Olmsted, son of Mrs. Vance McCormick of New York City and the late Marlin E. Olmsted, who was for 16 years a congressman from Pennsylvania. Miss Johnston is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McBirney Johnston.

Miss Johnston was graduated from Miss Walker's school at Simsbury, Conn., made her debut in 1928 and was graduated from Bryn Mawr last month. Mr. Olmsted went to St. Paul's prep school at Concord, N. H., and is a Harvard graduate, class of 1929. There he was a member of the Porcellian and Hasty Pudding clubs and is now a member of the Harvard club in New York and the Harvard-Yale-Princeton club here. He is associated with the investment department of the Continental Illinois bank and resides in Chicago. No date has been set for the wedding, which is to take place next fall.

Honore Palmers Leave for Europe; Other Travelers.

News of the moment. . . . The Honore Palmers, their son and daughter-in-law, the Potter D'Orsay Palmers, and Honore Palmer Jr. had passage on the Ile de France, which sailed from New York City Friday night. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Kirk plan to depart on Thursday for Virginia Hot Springs to spend a week or ten days there with Mrs. Kirk's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Hollis, who arrive at the springs this week from Sarasota. . . . The J. Russell Forgans are prolonging their stay at Daytona Beach, Fla., until after Easter. . . . The French consul general, Monsieur de Fontnouvelle, is giving a dinner for twenty guests at the Tavern this evening. . . . The Warren C. Fairbankses of 1500 Lake Shore drive departed on the "Chief" yesterday morning for Los Angeles. . . . The Thomas C. Dennehys Jr. of Lake Forest have gone to California to spend a month there with Mr. Dennehy's parents. . . . The George Richardsons, also Lake Foresters, sailed on Friday for three months in Europe—they took their automobile with them, planning to motor through Spain and Italy.

Had you heard . . . that Mrs. Prentiss Andrews, Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr.'s sister-in-law, who just came here a few weeks ago as a bride, is to take the part of Princess Ozma in the Junior league's "Land of Oz," beginning next Saturday morning? [She is what's called a "transfer" from the Baltimore league.] . . . That Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. has given the Art institute the most intriguing, sounding gift, an architect's work table that has all sorts of interesting features? It looks like a solid, substantial desk when closed, and when opened reveals a multitude of pull-outs, writing boards, and large and small boards. . . . That Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank is sponsoring a public lecture at the U. of C. on Thursday, April 9, by Raymond Bartlett Stevens, adviser on foreign affairs to the king of Siam, and that Mr. Stevens will be her guest while he's in Chicago? . . . That the Antiquarians are to give a tea in Gallery M-6 of the Art institute on Friday, April 10, for a private view of the Guelph treasure?

Wherein a Gardenia Proves Useful as Well as Decorative.

Then there was the beautiful and resourceful lady who took to buying herself gardenias every few days. It seems that she had spilled a splash of—shall we say—preprandial beverage on her new fawn-colored Paris frock. The spot wouldn't come out, and she wouldn't discard the gown, and so she bethought herself of the floral camouflage.

Santa Barbara notes: Mrs. Ralph Isham gave a luncheon a few days ago at the Isham place, Pompeian court, for her aunt, Mrs. William D. Ellinwanger of Rochester, N. Y., who is visiting another niece, Mrs. Harry Knight Elston. . . . The fourth of a series of paper chases being held by the Santa Barbara Riding and Hunt club took place a week ago Saturday. . . . Barbara King went with a party of young people on a motor trip to Agua Caliente. . . . Philip Chancellor, who has an apartment in Hollywood for the winter and spring, was in Montecito over last weekend with Dr. and Mrs. Philip Chancellor. . . . Albert Isham, who set out last November with his friend, Richard Travers, for European rambles, is now in Rome after a Mediterranean cruise. . . . The Charles H. Thornes and E. A. Cudahys have been at the Biltmore for a short visit.

Relayed from Virginia Hot Springs: The Bryan S. Reids and the Frank E. Wilhelms gave a dance last week at the Valley View inn for their daughters, Mary Elizabeth Reid and Jean Wilhelm, with about 50 vacationing students as guests. . . . Garfield King, Archibald Foster, Howard Gillette Jr., Mary Reid, Dorothy Ranney, Jean Wilhelm, and F. Newell Childs attended a dinner dance given on Saturday at Fassifern farm for Miss Eleanor Vieter and John A. Vieter Jr. of New York. . . . Mrs. Leonard A. Busby and her daughter, Janet, were guests at a riding picnic given by George Briggs of Providence, R. I., on Wednesday at the Lower Cascades.

Illinois Students Will Visit Chicago Libraries

Urbana, Ill., March 29.—[Special.]—Over one hundred students of the library school at the University of Illinois will depart tomorrow morning on their annual inspection trip. One group of 62 students in charge of Miss Olga Skartvedt and Miss Ethel Bond will go to Chicago and vicinity. There they will visit libraries of universities and colleges in that district, as well as the Chicago public libraries. Another group of 29 students will go to Milwaukee, Madison, Kenosha, Rockford, La Salle and Bloomington. The third group of 39 students will visit Gary, Ind.; Kalamazoo, Mich.; Battle Creek, Ann Arbor, and Detroit.

Evanston Youth Gets His Cornell Architect's Degree

Ithaca, N. Y., March 30.—President Livingston Farrand of Cornell university has conferred 114 baccalaureate and 48 advanced degrees on students from 22 states and 8 foreign countries who fulfilled their requirements during the first term, it was announced today. Bachelors of arts represented the largest number of new degrees with 56 awards, the bachelor of science degree was conferred on 34, and the doctor of philosophy on 21. The list of new degree holders includes Lawrence Bradford Perkins, Evanston, Ill., bachelor of architecture.

ENGAGEMENT

Dr. and Mrs. W. Lee Lewis of Evanston announce the engagement of their daughter, Miriam Lee, to Sydnor Vernon Reiss of Evanston, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Reiss of Dallas, Tex. Miss Lewis attended Leland Stanford university and was graduated in 1929 from Northwestern. She is a member and former president of Alpha Chi Omega sorority. Mr. Reiss is a graduate of Northwestern university school of engineering.

Evening Gowns Are Like Bathing Suits

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.] — Style revelations as daring as those of the first short skirt period are being demanded by Paris this season. Silken bathing suits, and even those of fine wool, are being bespangled for evening wear. They aren't intended to be worn alone—fashion does not go that far—but she ties a long, semi-transparent skirt over them and considers you all set for an evening out. This skirt, more likely than not, is bifurcated—divided.

Schiaparelli, who creates heaps of new and sometimes daring modes, is making a pet of the one just mentioned, and her best model along this line is shown in the sketch.

As you see, the square necked bathing suit makes the bodice of this unique evening dress. It is made of the finest white wool jersey and covered with silver spangles, and these spangles are also incrusted over the trunks, though they can't be seen. A white triple georgette divided skirt, made of diagonal bands, is tied on over the lower part of the bathing suit by a sash belt around the waist.

The georgette that is used to make this skirt is the smartest material in Paris fashions today. It's heavy, only vaguely transparent, and has a surface that looks like velveteen or suede. It is just too beautiful, and practical, too, because it does not wrinkle. It is an ideal material for the new evening dress that has only short trunks and chemise for a foundation, because it doesn't reveal too much.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Guest Was Forgotten.

Three women were entertaining at a 1 o'clock bridge luncheon. Two of them personally invited me. I went. Imagine my embarrassment when looking for my name on the place cards to have one of the hostesses say they had forgotten me.

Embarrassed? I nearly passed out. I suppose the other guests thought I had come without an invitation.

Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand Lichtenberger of Chicago and Milwaukee announce the engagement of their daughter, Elise, to Charles Coffman Curtis Jr. of Grand Rapids, Mich. Miss Lichtenberger attended the Faulkner and Starrett schools. She returned recently from Europe. There she had spent two years in traveling on the continent and the near east, and studying at the College de Montmorency and the Sorbonne in Paris. Mr. Curtis was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1929.

Cousin of Siamese King Hopes to Get Job as Diplomat

Washington, D. C., March 29.—(AP)—Questions to put to a king are being framed here by a young student who is puzzled about his future.

Nondiyavat Svasti, 22 year old first cousin and brother-in-law of King Prajadhipok of Siam, will put them to his monarch, possibly during his forthcoming visit to this country.

"I have no plans for after college," he said. "I'll have to talk it over with the king."

It seemed it might be as hard for King Prajadhipok to advise Svasti as it is to guide the collective destiny of more than 11,000,000 Siamese subjects. Nondiyavat wants to go into the diplomatic service, but he wants to stay at home.

He is attending the foreign service school of Georgetown university. In six years in the United States he has learned to take great pleasure in the movies, newspapers, and the radio. He speaks perfect English and has developed "a penchant for psychology and sociology."

American government interests this slight, dark eyed, bright faced scion of a royalty unique in theoretical autocratic power.

"Any government is all right," he pronounced, "as long as the citizens are satisfied. You are not satisfied with prohibition, some of you? Well, you won't have it long."

Outdoors Can Be Land of Wonder to the Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

One day when we were out driving in the country with an artist she began talking about the surrounding landscape as paintable material. Then she turned to me and asked me curiously, "What do you think about when you look at the countryside, if you don't think of it as a possible picture?"

Well, I floundered around a good deal trying to answer her, because I had never tried to put into words just what I did think and feel in the country or at the seashore. But on thinking it over afterward I realized that one of the things that added greatly to my interest in and love of outdoors was knowing something about the natural world—not that I knew much, but that the little I did know meant a great deal to me.

This is true, I know, with children. Of course, they love the outdoors for a great many reasons, as all lovers of outdoors do. They love the space and the freedom and all that those things make possible in play and activity. They love the elements—the variety that wind and rain and snow and hail mean. They love picnics and walks and camping.

But also they love to know, to observe the natural life of outdoors because they are so close to it and can understand it so well. The more they know, the more it adds to their interest, their feeling, their response to nature in general.

Knowing something about the outdoors not only makes their enjoyment greater, it not only makes them more alive, but it gives them an inkling of the forces at work, of natural law in both its kindness and apparent cruelty. There's a simplicity, a primitive quality, a reality about it all that is good for them and quite within their comprehension.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., March 29.—[Special.]—The presidential dinners with cabinet members as hosts, interrupted by Lent will be resumed next month.

Postmaster General and Mrs. Brown, who were to have been the next hosts to the President and Mrs. Hoover, have postponed their dinner because of the recent death of Mrs. Brown's mother. So the next hosts in the series will be Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Adams. Their dinner will be April 14. Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Doak, who are the last hosts of the circle, and were to have had their dinner on May 1, are expected to change the date. They are in mourning for the secretary's mother.

The new Belgian ambassador, Paul May, succeeding Prince De Linge, has arrived here. Mrs. May will join the ambassador later.

Food Talk.

Have you ever thought of making jellies at this time of the year? Often the cupboard is empty of all fruit confections before the winter is gone. Spring appetites, however, are stimulated by sweets just as much as are winter appetites. And when we don't have some jelly many of us miss it as much as we do butter when we are eating toast, hot biscuit or muffins.

Many of the fresh fruits that are now available for making jams and jellies are rather expensive. Oranges and grapefruit are the one exception. Combined they make excellent marmalade. In my opinion orange marmalade is the most delightful of all. It is a little tedious to make if you count the time for slicing the fruit wafer thin as it should be. Then it takes an hour or so for cooking. If you enjoy the taste of this rare confection we suggest one trial of our recipe, which makes seven glasses.

If you cannot yet afford strawberries for preserves and jams, why not make some jellies and jams from canned fruit. Any fruit that makes good jellies and jams when fresh will make good jellies and jams when it is canned. Bottled fruit juices, especially grape and loganberry, make lovely jellies. These canned fruits and bottled juices will not jell as well as fresh fruit which has just been picked from the trees because the fruit used for canning or the preparation of juices is allowed to become ripe to develop the finest flavor. As the fruit ripens the pectin is changed into pectose and the jellying power is lost. So it is necessary to add to these canned juices the necessary pectin.

Housewives may make their own pectin by extracting it from the peels of lemons and oranges. This, of course, takes time and then the pectin obtained often has a flavor and aroma that does not always prove pleasing with the particular fruit juice.

The use of a commercial pectin is more satisfactory to the housewife of average skill. This comes in bottles ready to be combined with the fruit juices. Some object to the use of pectin because more sugar is required. This is true, too. But the jelly mixture is boiled for such a short time that there is not an appreciable loss of the original volume of liquid. The result is a larger quantity of jelly than one obtains when the juice alone is used. Therefore the increased quantity of jelly compensates for the additional sugar.

ORANGE MARMALADE.

2 medium sized oranges.
2 medium sized lemons.
5 cups water.
3 tablespoons lemon juice.
6 cups sugar.

Slice the oranges and lemons thin. This can best be done by cutting the fruit into six lengthwise pieces, then slice crosswise pieces as thinly as possible. Add liquid and lemon juice, and put on the stove to cook. Boil gently for about 50 minutes or until fruit is tender. Measure the fruit pulp. There should be five cups. If not, add water to make this volume. Add sugar and stir until completely dissolved. Return to stove and boil quite vigorously but not hard enough for the mixture to foam. About 20 minutes of cooking is necessary. Drop a little bit of the marmalade on to a cold spoon and place in the refrigerator. After five minutes take a knife and turn over the portion of marmalade in the spoon. If the underside is jellied the marmalade is done. If it does not jell, boil 3 minutes longer and test again. Repeat this until the jelling test is satisfactory. Pour into sterilized glasses.

Yields: Seven glasses.

VEAL LOAF.

3 pounds veal.
¾ pound ham.
¾ pound salt pork.
¾ cup bread crumbs.
¾ cup meat stock.
2 eggs, beaten separately.
2 tablespoons lemon juice.
2 tablespoons minced onion.
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning.
1 tablespoon salt.
¾ teaspoon pepper.
2 tablespoons fat.

Clear meat of gristle and put veal, ham, and pork through the food chopper. Moisten the crumbs with the stock, and add with the egg yolk and seasonings to meat. Reserve a little of the beaten whites to brush over the top of the loaf and fold the rest into the meat mixture. Shape in a loaf. Brush with egg whites. Place in an oiled baking pan and bake in a moderate oven [350° F.] for 2½ hours, basting every 15 minutes with the fat.

Yield: Fifteen servings. This loaf is nice served cold.

A mimeographed sheet of recipes for making jelly and jam with commercial picture and bottled juices and canned fruits will be supplied upon request and receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THIS CHAP WONDERS IF ADMIRATION IS SUFFICIENT MOTIVE

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Is it possible for a fellow to learn to love a girl after he is married to her, though he does not love her before? She is one type of girl that is hard to find. She doesn't drink, smoke, or run around with other men. She is of the same religion as myself.

"I have been going with her for eight months and in all that time I have spent only one dollar and a half on her. Not that I wouldn't spend more, but she won't let me. Girls of her type, believe me, are hard to find these days. If I give her up I may be sorry after. Please answer soon, as she has asked me about my intentions toward her.

"FRED."

If you hadn't added that last sentence, Fred, I might have agreed that the girl is a paragon. But that makes her sound too much like a lady who means business and nothing but. Of course, it may be a better system than moping around, waiting for a man to speak his intentions, himself. But, coupled with the urge to keep a man from spending his "legitimate courting expenses," I should think her a lady with a strong, determined will.

Of course, her freedom from the popular vices of the moment are not to go unextolled. But the picture I get of the girl is that she might be just a bit too rigid for comfort. I may be wrong. Her motives may be purely self-sacrificial in keeping the spending money intact.

Yet, reviewing human nature [male] as I have had a chance to do, there's a large question in my mind as to whether men's emotions are deeply stirred by the women who will not let them make a few sacrifices for them. And this both before and after marriage. No reflection on the sturdy sex intended. We're all like that. The ones we have to make the sacrifices for, somehow, get a bigger slice of our hearts.

About learning to love after marriage—it's been done, time and again. On the other hand, it sometimes turns living with the unloved into a cold, hard duty which only a master character can survive without revolt.

Style Chatter Turns Away from Reducing; Centers on Coiffure

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Not so long ago a woman's looks were judged largely on the lines of her silhouette. When we'd talk about some one who had reduced, we said: "Doesn't she look wonderful now? Easily ten years younger with that new silhouette of hers."

If she hadn't reduced and needed to, we'd be just as apt to say: "Why on earth doesn't she take off some of that fat?" Or, if her figure were naturally well proportioned, due tribute was paid the lady's perfect thirty-four, six or eight.

Of course, such conversation still goes on—but not nearly so rambunxiously [is that the way to spell it?] as before. It isn't that women are letting down on reducing, especially, nor that plumper outlines are permitted in our best fashion illustrations. It's just that weight control has come to be accepted as a plain matter of duty.

And so the conversational tides are turned in other directions. I should say of the beauty features that hair now draws the most chat, wouldn't you? Of course, makeup isn't far behind. But the kind of hair she has, the color, the way its dressed, and how beautiful, or smart, or dowdy, or unattractive it is, is the way we sum up the pictorial or nonqualifications of our sisters.

It's been coming on for some time, and, no doubt, the many, many lovely hair styles of the moment inspire more conversation of the sort. But, at least, all this talk isn't without meaning. Pretty soon, if not now, that perfectly groomed, perfectly dressed head of hair is going to be the plain, matter of fact duty that its conversational predecessor has become.

For instance, in a theater group or a dance or club group, the best dressed and best looking heads of hair are commented on, while the figure might slip by uncommented about. And, goodness, what stunning looking heads one does see! And how much more charming individuality is observed than during the universal bob reign!

Now, a lady doesn't have to look like a thousand others of her lady-like sex. She can be herself with conviction.

CUBS CRUSH MISSION, 12–3, BUT LOSE TO SEALS, 5–3

STRONG COAST LEAGUERS MAKE IT 3 IN A ROW

Wilson's Slump Aids Jinx Team.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., March 29.—The Cubs left San Francisco this evening, stinging from the reflection that the Seals of the Coast league whipped them three games to none during their series in this fair city.

GILBERT HARTNETT.

The third of the tannings was administered, 5 to 3, this morning in what must be characterized as a high class ball contest, during which the Seals excelled in all branches of play. Of the Cubs' total, two runs appeared due to sheer charity on the part of Sam Gibson, Seals pitcher, who teased our hitters by walking the first three batsmen in the ninth.

The fact that the Cubs came back in the afternoon to beat the San Francisco Missions, 12 to 3, was slim solace indeed, for the Missions have a weak ball team, a point in evidence being the fact that six Cub batsmen walked in the first two innings.

Wilson in Slump.

One of the big factors in the puny showing of the Cubs in the three games with the Seals was the terrific slump of Hack Wilson in the so-called clean-up rôle. Hack continued his blundering this morning by striking out with men on third and second and was out in the first inning, and then came back in the sixth to fan again under identical circumstances.

Tomorrow the Cubs will get back against the Pittsburgh Pirates, who by recent records should furnish a welcome relief from the tough going the Chicagoans have had here. The National leaguers open a three game series at Wrigley field, Los Angeles, tomorrow afternoon. Then follow series with the Angels and the Hollywood Stars. The Cubs start east a week from tonight.

There wasn't any scoring in the morning game until five and one-half innings had been completed. Then the Seals broke through for a run. Holstein walked after one was out, went to second on the first of Gibson's productive singles, paused while Hafey flied to Moore, and tallied when English booted Pinelli's grounder. Frisco fanned to end the inning.

Shake Off String of Zeros.

In the seventh, the Seals grabbed three runs, all of which were started around after two were out. After Crosetti and Keesey had been disposed of, Wingo singled to center and ran home on Caveney's double to right center. Penebsky walked and then Gibson again came through with a single, Caveney scoring and Penebsky going to third, whence he scored after Moore had caught Sulik's fly. Pinelli relieved Chicago mental anguish by striking out.

The Cubs managed to shake off the zero chain in the eighth. Hartnett batted for Smith and doubled to left center. Gabby went to third on Moore's infield out and scored after Hafey caught English's fly.

The Seals bounced back with a run in their half of the eighth. Frazier walked Warneke for a single, moved to second on Crosetti's sacrifice, and scored on Keesey's single.

Gibson walked Wilson, Cuyler, and Grace in the ninth. Hack scored on Hafey's fly and Cuyler got home on Holm's single. Sweetland batted for Warneke and ended the game by batting into a double play.

Pile Up Six Run Lead.

The Cubs made more runs before the second putout in the afternoon game than they did during the entire morning enterprise.

Moore singled to right and English walked. The pair moved up on Hornsby's sacrifice, after which Wilson walked, filling the bases. Cuyler singled to right, scoring Moore and English and putting Wilson on third. Hartnett tripled to right, scoring Wilson and Cuyler. Bell walked, and Cole replaced Biggs. Grimm forced Bell, Hartnett scoring. Then Bush batted to Cole.

The second inning was pretty sloppy, but the Cubs were held to one run, despite three walks and two wild pitches. It didn't take the Missions long to get a run in the second. Hafey led off with a triple and came home on a wild pitch. Rodda and Brenzel doubled after two were out, but Cole ended the session by striking out.

Singles by Bell and Grimm, a sacrifice by Bush, and a double by English were good for two more runs in the third, after which the game settled into a burdensome unscoring which served little except to keep the Cubs from getting back to their hotel so they could pack their

GIANTS POUND 3 HOSE PITCHERS FOR 15-8 VICTORY

Jolley Redeems Errors with Two Homers.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., March 29.—Mr. John McGraw's Giants refused to curl up in front of the White Sox pitchers this afternoon. Instead they knocked half the boards loose in the outfield fence with some terrifying hits which made it a simple matter for them to defeat the Chicagoans, 15 to 8. The New Yorkers now own five victories out of the eight games played thus far in the spring series.

SMEAD JOLLEY.

Before the necessary nine innings could be played to satisfy 3,000 curious spectators, Manager Bush was forced to exercise three members of his hurling corps. The Giants treated them without favoritism. The first thing they did was to pound Hal McKain for three runs in the opening session. In the fifth they knocked him out with four more. Then Jim Moore was treated to a shakeup that netted three in the sixth and when Ed O'Shaughnessy, the semi-pro, was placed on the sacrificial altar in the ninth, the New Yorkers decided it was proper to score five more runs.

Smead Redeems Errors.

The most amusing fellow of the entire cast was our own Smead Jolley, who divided his afternoon giving runs to the Giants and then taking them back. His charitable inclinations were represented by blunders on two ground balls. Big Smead always was a bit weak in this respect, but he has hopes. To offset his defensive errors he whacked two homers beyond the left field wall, one off ancient Clarence Mitchell, who labored through six impressive innings, and the other off Will Morrell.

The small package of trouble opened at McKain's expense in the first inning started with Leach tripling to left center after Critz had been tossed out. Lindstrom shot a single between Cissell and Watwood, sending Leach home. Cissell then made a costly mistake. He picked up Terry's grounder, but dropped it and so lost an easy double play. Ott hit a single to right, Lindstrom scoring and Terry reaching third base. He scored the third run while Ott was being forced on Marshall's rap to Appling.

Mitchell Baffles Sox.

Old Man Mitchell's spitball and other wares were so annoying that in the first three innings the Sox made only three hits. Two of these were successive singles by Appling and Watwood with one out in the second, but Kamm and Tate failed in the pinch. In the third the veteran southpaw gave up two passes, but no hits were involved. Then to start the fourth Jolley, who has been a negligible quantity at bat, hit one of Mitchell's pitches over the wall.

McKain's sudden collapse, which netted the Giants four runs in the fifth, began with a pass to Leach. He scored ahead of Lindstrom, who hit the ball over the barrier in left. Terry then walked and moved to third on a double to left by Ott. Marshall, playing short because of soreness in Jackson's arm, sent both home with a single to right center. This convinced Bush that McKain needed help. It was sent in the form of Moore, who brought about a quick finish to the chapter.

Cissell's double enabled the Sox to pick up another run in their half of the fifth, but this was lost sight of a few moments later, when the Giants

Ban Johnson's Obstinacy Made Baseball National

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 29.—The name of Ban Johnson recalls to any one who knew him so many savage quarrels and smoldering hatreds that it is difficult to discuss him now that he is gone without feeling resentful toward some one. Certainly the club owners of the American league owed him decent treatment and they treated him cruelly in the end when they voted him out of his job as president and turned his completed life work over to Judge Landis.

Nobody can claim that the judge ever had contributed anything to the development of the baseball industry when he was called in after the fake world series of 1919 to establish the practice of exploiting the reputations of public officeholders to guarantee the integrity of this or that branch of the amusement industry.

Little Labor Now.

The judge has done all right in his job, but it is a job that has required none of the laborious doing that Ban Johnson put forth in his twenty years of building the baseball monopoly. The judge had been merely a fan, and it is my belief that his extreme absorption in the games was an affectation at first, for he is a showy character, of dramatic decisions and gestures. His rapt concentration on the ball game always has seemed to me to be exaggerated, but I can forgive a man his little foibles, especially if he can capitalize one of them at the rate of $75,000 a year in his old age, and more especially if you happen to know many impulsive acts of kindness for which he has not wanted any publicity.

Between the two of them, the judge and Ban, if you knew them both, it was hard to take sides. Ban had learned to dominate, and when he became too old for his job he became a rather dangerous nuisance to the baseball business. In some respects he had been the Boss Croker of the business he devised, and perfected the monopolistic plan whereby today a young man who signs a contract to play ball for a week-end league way out in the tassel grass country becomes the property of his employers, compelled to accept whatever pay they want to give him, and prevented from soliciting another job at better rates with other employers. It is a pernicious contract, but Landis has done nothing to improve it.

Planned Syndicate Ball.

Ban not only connived at but often promoted syndicate baseball, that awful evil whereby one management owns more than one team in a league, and, whether by one means or another, he managed to subsidize influential members of the press to fight the battles of the American league in print.

If Ban had been less stubborn the club owners might have persuaded him to give up quietly when he was through and spared themselves the brutal necessity of kicking him out, humiliated and desperately ill. But then, if Ban Johnson had been less stubborn in his younger years there would have been no American league and probably no baseball monopoly.

He was one of the great two bottle men of that era of professional sport when the boys could not sign a contract without a forest of wine bottles on the table for the purposes of the official photographs. They were a hardy lot, those old timers, and life owes them no pleasures as they drop off. There aren't many of them left and those few no longer active.

Old Garry Herrman of the Cincinnati club, a genial and festive soul,

Baseball World Mourns at Bier of Ban Johnson

St. Louis, Mo., March 29.—(AP)—Hundreds of baseball veterans, friends and associates paid tribute today to Byron Bancroft Johnson, one of the founders and the first president of the American league, as his body lay in state at a funeral home here.

Among those who passed the bier of the man who is credited with driving rowdyism and gambling from the national pastime, were stars of yesteryear, many of whom had played on clubs in the league which he had successfully guided for more than a quarter of a century. Others were associates of the baseball leader during his stormy career as American league president.

Mrs. Jennie Johnson, the widow, who had returned to Spencer, Ind., after visiting her husband in his fatal illness, did not return to St. Louis upon his death, but remained at Spencer, where funeral services will be held Wednesday. The services will be under the auspices of Harmony lodge of Masons, of which fraternity he was a member.

BARNARD RITES TOMORROW.

The body of E. S. Barnard, American league president, who died suddenly Friday, yesterday arrived in Chicago and left on the Century for Cleveland. Funeral services will be held at the Cleveland Masonic temple tomorrow afternoon.

Accompanying the body from Chicago to Cleveland were: Mrs. Barnard; William Harridge, secretary of the American league, and Mrs. Harridge; Henry P. Edwards, league statistician, and Mrs. Edwards; Billy Evans, business manager; and Walter Nichols, traveling secretary of the Cleveland Indians; and George Moriarity, American league umpire.

Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, and Harry Grabiner, secretary of the Chicago White Sox, left last night for Cleveland to attend the funeral. Grabiner will represent Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, who will be unable to attend the funeral because of illness.

Comiskey today ordered the White Sox to cancel their exhibition game with the New York Giants, scheduled for Dallas, Tex., on Tuesday, out of respect to the memory of Mr. Barnard.

ST. MONICA AND ST. ELIZABETH IN FORESTER FINAL

St. Elizabeth, south division, and St. Monica, north section, will meet next Sunday for the championship of the Catholic Order of Foresters Basketball league. Jones and Diegel Lose to Dutra and Von Elm, 1 Up

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., March 29.—(AP)—Robert Tyre Jones Jr., the actor, stepped out of his Hollywood makeup today and for 18 holes became Bobby Jones, the golfer, only to taste defeat with Leo Diegel when Mortie Dutra and George Von Elm defeated the pair 1 up in a match for charity.

The burden of the match rested squarely on the shoulders of the champion of champions, as Diegel, former P. G. A. champion and local professional, could not get his iron shots to working with sufficient degree to assist on more than one hole.

Of the other team, it was Dutra, youngest of the Dutra brothers, who cut considerable of a swath in California winter money tournaments, who turned the trick which gave him and his business man golfing partner the match. Dutra, a Long Beach, Cal., pro, toured the tough course in an adverse wind in 76, one under par, against 72 for Jones, 75 for Von Elm and 77 for Diegel.

ST. PATRICK, K. C. CHAMPION, LOSES TO PEREZ, 17-16

O'Connell Rallies to Beat Marquette.

Damen of the west division, Loyola-Hyde Park and Perez of the south, and O'Connell of the north qualified for the semi-finals in the Knights of Columbus basketball league yesterday by winning their contests before a crowd of 7,000 at the Coliseum.

The games were marked by the elimination of St. Patrick, defending champion, which fell before Perez in the most thrilling exhibition of the afternoon. Perez will clash with Damen in the semi-finals tomorrow night, while Loyola-Hyde Park meets O'Connell.

Consolation Round Pairings.

The four losers will pair off in the consolation bracket, in which Hennepin-Shields will meet St. Patrick and De La Salle will oppose Marquette.

Blanking their opponents in the first half, 9 to 0, Loyola-Hyde Park advanced into the semi-final round with an 18 to 15 victory over De La Salle. Red Williams of Loyola-Hyde Park and Bird of De La Salle led the scoring with three baskets each.

A free throw by Lipinski of Perez after time had been called eliminated St. Patrick, defending champion, 17 to 16. The Perez guard made his point after Keweza had tied the score with less than two minutes to play.

St. Patrick Gets Lead.

Perez jumped into a 5 to 0 lead, Leddin and Lepinski caging long baskets. At the half, the south division team was still in front, 9 to 8, but Powers put St. Pats ahead at the start of the second period with an overhand shot. From then to the finish the lead alternated, neither club ever being more than two or three points ahead.

With the timer ready to fire his gun, Lipinski broke through to steal a pass and dribbled to his basket, where he was fouled. He then caged the shot for the winning point.

Damen moved into the semi-final bracket with a 28 to 20 victory over Hennepin-Shields, runner-up to the victors in the west division. The sectional champions piled up an 18 to 10 lead at half time, and increased it to 24 to 13 in the first five minutes of the second period on a couple of baskets by Kluchinskas. From that point on Hennepin outplayed Damen, but the margin was too much to overcome.

O'Connell Beats Marquette.

One of the most remarkable comebacks in league championship play gave O'Connell, north division champion, victory over the veteran Marquette quintet, 32 to 25. With five minutes to play, Marquette had an eight point lead, but four baskets in a row by Racic and a free throw put O'Connell ahead. Macellaioi and Leonard caged baskets to add to the winning margin.

At the half Marquette led, 18 to 10, and at one time in the second period was in front, 22 to 9. Lineup:

NEW YORK HEARS CARNERA WILL FIGHT SHARKEY

New York, March 29.—[Special.]—Primo Carnera and Jack Sharkey have signed to fight for Jimmy Johnston at Ebbets field, Brooklyn, according to a report current today. No definite date has been set for the fight, but it is expected to be staged the latter part of June or early in July.

Ever since Johnston procured a two year lease on the Brooklyn National league ball park he has been on the trail of both Carnera and Sharkey,

NEW YORK FIGHT TEAM TO INVADE CHICAGO TODAY

Rival Boxers Near End of Training Grind.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The customary Sabbath stillness of the Illinois Athletic club gymnasium was missing yesterday afternoon when Chicago's Golden Gloves squad went through its first Sunday workout since entering training two weeks ago. Each of the boys, champions, runnersup, and alternates, boxed four rounds.

LEO RODAK.

When the intercity bouts were shifted to Chicago from New York, where they were to have been held tonight in Madison Square Garden, the training period of the Chicago squad was lengthened a week. Ordinarily it might be supposed that the team would become a bit stale, but there has been no such indication. Yesterday's drill, in fact, was convincing proof that the boys still have the zest for combat necessary to meet the New Yorkers and give their utmost for victory.

Vacation Benefits Team.

Perhaps this has been due in part to the excellent judgment of the coaches who declared a holiday a week ago Sunday and then gave the team a vacation from boxing for two days last week. Consequently, with only two more hard boxing workouts ahead of them, the fighters ripped through four round workouts yesterday with an intensity which bodes ill for New York.

The 28 gladiators of the east will arrive this morning at 10 o'clock over the New York Central. The team left New York at 2:45 p. m. yesterday and took a light workout at Albany. They will work out again at South Bend this morning. After their arrival they will be quartered at the Medinah Athletic club and will drill this afternoon and tomorrow, following these boxing lessons with light gymnasium exercises Wednesday, the day before the big show. Each squad will weigh in at its training quarters Thursday afternoon and then will report to the Stadium Thursday night about 7 o'clock. The tournament starts at 8 o'clock.

Describe Bouts Over Radio.

Since all tickets have been sold, thousands must depend on the radio for blow by blow accounts of the intercity matches. Quin Ryan will go on the air over W-G-N at 8:30 Thursday night and at 10:15 THE TRIBUNE'S station will hook up with the N. B. C. This should give the fight fans of the country an opportunity to hear the eight championship battles.

Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock New York's Golden Gloves team will be introduced over W-G-N by Paul Gallico, sports editor of the New York News. Wednesday afternoon at the same hour, Arch Ward, sports editor of THE TRIBUNE, will introduce Chicago's fighters.

Rodak Improves Most.

Leo Rodak, Chicago's flyweight champion, probably is the most improved fighter of the 28 now in training at the I. A. C. His progress has been so rapid that Jimmy Martin, the sensational 112 pounder from New York, faces a strenuous evening against the South Chicago boxer. At the New York finals March 16 Martin was a tremendous hit with the Garden fans, and without knowing anything about Rodak, they took it for granted Martin would win an intercity title.

Andy Mella, New York's middleweight team captain, and Justin Siruta, heavyweight, also are Gotham favorites, but Freddie Caserio and Johnny Long have promised to take care of these boys.

GOTTSELIG AND ROMNES SUPPLY SCORING PUNCH

Resume Cup Series Tomorrow.

The Blackhawks are flying on to New York this morning with their third victory in the playoff series for hockey's most valuable piece of hardware, the battered Stanley cup. They swooped down on the New York Rangers in the presence of 17,000 at the Stadium last night, and came up with a 2 to 0 triumph.

JOHNNY GOTTSELIG

The Hawks will meet the Rangers at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night, but since the series will be decided on the basis of the goals scored, the New Yorkers will have to win by at least 3 to 0 to prevent the Hawks from reaching the final, with either the Boston Bruins or Les Canadiens of Montreal.

The Hawks contributed one of their best performances of the season and the crowd responded with showers of hats, confetti, and paper, one avalanche of which forced the officials to call time out while one of the Stadium's hired hands swept it away.

All Play Brilliantly.

Choosing a hero from among the Blackhawks is a difficult task, since every one played as though it were the deciding game for the cup, but the goal producers, Johnny Gottselig and the youthful Doc Romnes, must be given an edge. Johnny scored his with Doc's assistance in the first period, and Lola Couture, whose brilliant skating and puck stealing was something in itself, helped Doc make the second goal in the last period.

All of the Hawks' defense men—Abel, Graham, Bostrom, and Wentworth—excelled themselves, outsmarting the veteran Ranger line of Boucher and the Cooks during the early part of the game and matching them in body checking when the New Yorkers resorted to a rough, jostling type of play in the closing minutes. Teddy Graham, in particular, embarrassed Joe Jerwa of the Rangers several times when he tried to elude the solid little blonde. And old Ching Johnson also found the Hawk defense men too much for him, sprawling on the ice repeatedly during the first two periods.

Raspberry Chorus Happy.

Only Eddie Shore of the Boston Bruins rates higher than Johnson in the estimation of the Blackhawk fans' raspberry chorus, and they put on a special performance for him last evening, although he skated well and harried Gardiner himself after solo rushes. Even the smaller Hawks met most of the rushes with dauntless checking, and Ching found himself bounced up against the side boards repeatedly.

Partisan as the Hawk followers were, they were forced to give several big hands to John Ross Roach, Ranger goalkeeper. The New Yorkers are noted as a money team, playing at their best when they reach the Stanley cup series, and Roach played the greatest money game of them all last night, despite the two goals against him.

Roach Forced to Work.

He made 37 stops against 22 for Gardiner, although Chuck was in tune with the rest of the Hawks last night, and was largely responsible for the Rangers' zero at the end of the game. It was Roach's work after the Hawk forwards had skated past the New York defense which drew the cheers of the attendance. In the second period he made 15 stops against Gardiner's 5 and in the last session he halted 13 shots against Chuck's 5.

Shots which Roach repelled included one by Couture which struck a cage post and another in which Johnson should have been credited with an assist. Tommy Cook had what appeared to be a scoring shot, but Ching clutched his stick. He went to the penalty box; but the goal was averted.

Neither team displayed any bashfulness about scoring rushes during the first ten minutes of the opening period. The Hawks went past the blue line by sheer speed and force, while the Rangers contented themselves with stealing the puck from Hawk forwards in center ice and passing in for shots at Gardiner.

March's Goal Ruled Out.

The first avalanche of paper and hats from the upper reaches of the Stadium came when Mush March poked the puck past Roach for what appeared to be a goal. He had taken a pass from Tommy Cook, but the play was off side and the puck was brought out to the accompaniment of groans.

Gardiner made two remarkable stops during the period, sprawling on the puck twice to clear shots by Keeling and Bun Cook.

Gottselig and Romnes finally produced the first score of the game at 12:25. Doc took the saucer up the ice and passed to Johnny, who was in the clear and found no difficulty in beating Roach.

The action during the second period was as furious as that in the first, if not more so. The New York forward line of Boucher and the two Cooks who carried his own beer in the wood and his own delicatessen when he traveled on business, which he always mixed with pleasure, was eased out of his ball club several years ago. But this blow was no more tragic to Garry than the raid of the prohibition agents who stormed his rooms in a hotel in St. Louis and confiscated his beer. Some time after he was relieved of his duties with the Reds, which were only nominal by that time, Garry applied to the printers' union, of which he had remained a member during all the years of his prosperity, for a pension, certifying that he needed the money for the necessities of life.

BAN JOHNSON MADE BASEBALL WHAT IT WAS

American League Grew Out of His Obstinacy.

The magnates of the new type are not young men, for baseball is a millionaire's business, and young men aren't rich enough to own ball clubs. They are not men of the type of Ban Johnson, Garry Herrman, and Charlie Comiskey, but business men who conduct the business meetings on ice water. Although Ban was a blusterin, scheming, and sometimes ruthless promoter when he was fighting to build up the American league and share the monopoly with the National, this side of his character was allowed to obscure in the public understanding of him a courtesy and honest charm and a game loyalty which he reserved for private usage.

He had been a star reporter in Cincinnati in the nineties and he had read more books than most club owners, past or present. But the public knew him through the cartoons depicting a fat man in a sweaty rage, for the American league began in a fight against the National and Johnson's was a fighting part. His old umpires all will testify to his loyalty for he never threw them down.

Grew Complacent Near End.

He failed in his job along toward the end, due to complacency. The fight for parity with the National league had been won and Ban wasn't alert enough to notice the rottenness that was developing in the playing side of the game, where the athletes were becoming too familiar with bookmakers, so, when the scandal broke, the customers had no more confidence in Ban and the magnates. While they were ready to keep him in nominal authority as president, they insisted on hiring Landis to supersede him as commissioner, but the judge wabbled and trimmed in a couple of subsequent scandals and got by on showmanship.

Baseball in the time of Ban Johnson became a national obsession, and as Ban was the strongest individual force in the development of the industry he became a significant character in American life in his period. The game or industry has been less uproarious or more dignified and refined since Ban lost his power, but also it has lost its position as the chief mania of the United States.

Oak Park High to Open Prep Relays Friday

As a result of the discontinuance of the majority of the interscholastic track meets sponsored by colleges, Oak Park High school will sponsor the first annual Oak Park and River Forest relays Friday and Saturday. The meet, which will be the largest event of its kind in the country, is expected to draw 500 prep athletes from all sections of northern Illinois to the Oak Park fieldhouse.

Sanctioned by the State High School Athletic association, the relays do not conflict with the ruling of the North Central Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges, which barred meets of national scope.

The events will be five relays and seven individual events. Elimination trials will be held in all individual events on Friday evening, and finals in all events will take place the following afternoon. The relays will be over the half mile, mile, and two mile routes, and in addition a sprint medley and distance medley will be held. Individual competition will take place in the 50 yard dash, 50 yard high and low hurdle, shot put, pole vault, high jump, and broad jump.

Schools which will be represented at the carnival are Austin, Bowen, Schurz, Harrison, Fenger, Crane, Englewood, Hyde Park, Lake View, Lane, Lindblom, McKinley, Marshall, Senn, Tilden, all of Chicago, Oak Park, Evanston, New Trier, Proviso, Morton, Deerfield, University, York, Glenbard, Thornton, Hinsdale, La Grange, Riverside, and Wheaton, from the suburbs; while the state at large will be represented by Arlington Heights, East and West Aurora, De Kalb, Elgin, Freeport, Galesburg, Joliet, La Salle, Momence, Waukegan, West Chicago, Naperville, Pontiac, Rockford, Streator, and Urbana.

"ACIDINE HAS NO EQUAL FOR INDIGESTION, GAS"

"I have used ACIDINE for indigestion and gas pains and find that it has no equal. It is classed alone. Nothing can compare with it," says John D. Gates, 360 E. Garfield Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way this new prescription, ACIDINE, succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Japtase, which in laboratory tests digested 800 times its own weight of certain heavy starchy foods. ACIDINE neutralizes burning acid, soothes irritated stomach and intestinal linings, helps end acidosis.

Eat, drink all you want. When sour stomach, gas, pain, heartburn, bad taste, heavy feeling, short breath, dizziness, belching, nervousness, colds, gassy headaches and sleeplessness trouble you, take ACIDINE. Results guaranteed. If not delighted, maker refunds money. Get it today.

Birks Collect Big Counts in A.B.C. Singles

Buffalo, N. Y., March 29.—[Special.]—After falling down in the team division, members of the Walter Birk team of the Randolph league of Chicago came back with scores in the singles division of the American Bowling congress tournament today that will qualify for healthy slices of the $92,600 prize fun.

Adolph Carlson, former world's match champion, bowled games of 216, 243, and 210, to total 669, second high mark in the singles today. Art Hein, after a 191 opener, followed with 216 and 223 to total 630. Jule Lellinger, veteran of 25 A. B. C. classics, chalked up 618. Not a member of the Minneralite lineup was able to register a total which will collect in the single event.

Art Hein and Carlson topped the Chicagoans in the double class. This pair connected with counts of 378, 419, and 406 to total 1,203. Joe Fliger and Frank Kartheiser were second best with 1,191.

Only one change occurred among the big ten leaders, Tony Novak, Detroit, taking fifth place in the singles with 693. Chicago scores:

GARDEN AND MILK FUND HEADS ON WAY TO CHICAGO

William F. Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden corporation, and Damon Runyon, head of the New York milk fund, which has Max Schmeling and Young Stribling under contract for a championship fight somewhere some time in June, were en route to Chicago from New York last night, presumably to discuss plans with Chicago interests for the title bout. No date or site for the fight has been announced.

On Carey's last visit to Chicago he spent considerable time consulting Sheldon Clark, and it was understood that Clark was to promote the show in Chicago under the Garden's Illinois charter.

gave the Hawks a scare after two minutes of play. They decoyed Gardiner out of his cage, but Chuck fell on the puck. Tommy Cook and Adams rallied to his assistance and Taffy Abel dropped back into the cage to take Gardiner's post.

Three times during the period the Hawks seemed on the verge of a score, only to have Roach stop them. Ripley took the puck in center ice, skated up alone for a shot, caught the rebound for another, and outsmarted Johnson and Peters for a third, but Roach halted all three of them.

Roach balked the Gottselig-Romnes-Couture line and once stopped an almost certain goal by Ingram, who had taken the puck from Arbour directly in front of the cage.

The Hawks came out for the third period apparently decided that one goal wasn't enough to take to the playoff final in New York, and before the session was five minutes old they had made their second score of the evening. Couture took the puck along the side boards and shoved it along to Romnes, who darted in and beat Roach before Johnson spilled him to the ice.

The gallery crowd nearly had another opportunity to deluge the lower seats about four minutes later when Arbour dashed in from the side for an open shot. The light flashed on, but it developed that Roach had smothered the puck.

For mile after mile of low-cost hauling

THE FORD TRUCK

The Stake body on the chassis with 157-inch wheelbase. This type is widely used by manufacturers, contractors and shippers, and for industrial hauling generally.

THE owners of Ford trucks, everywhere, have found that Ford economy goes far beyond the saving in first cost alone. Fine materials, precision workmanship, and simplicity of construction increase the reliability of Ford units, helping to keep them out of the shop, and on the job. During months of constant use, and thousands of miles of service, their low cost of up-keep becomes a saving of first importance.

Another economical feature of the Ford is the ease with which adjustments or repairs are made. In every locality, there is a nearby Ford dealer who gives prompt and efficient service, at low cost. Because of this, Ford units are seldom idle when there is hauling to be done.

Every day, throughout the country, Ford trucks and delivery cars are serving a larger number of businesses. There is a type specifically adapted for every hauling purpose.

The Ford 1½-ton truck is available with 131½-inch or 157-inch wheelbase, single or dual rear wheels, high or low rear-axle gear-ratios, open or closed cabs, and with a comprehensive range of bodies. All types can be supplied in many color-combinations.

The light delivery-car, which has the same chassis as the Model A Ford car, can be equipped with bodies to suit any light hauling requirement.

Your Ford dealer can show you a unit that will do your hauling economically.

★ FEATURES ★ of Ford Commercial Units

Four-cylinder, 40-horse-power engine. Torque-tube drive. Internal-expanding mechanical brakes, all fully enclosed. Forty different kinds of steels for specific purposes. Extensive use of fine steel forgings. More than 20 ball and roller bearings. Three different wheelbases. Two different chassis. Triplex shatter-proof windshields. Low first cost. Low cost of operation and maintenance. Reliability and long life. You may purchase a Ford truck or light commercial car on convenient, economical terms through the Authorized Ford Finance Plans of the Universal Credit Company.

ATLANTA SCORES IN 9TH; DEFEATS YANKEES, 1 TO 0

New York Team Is Held to Two Hits.

Montgomery, Ala., March 29.—(AP)—The New York Yankees were unable to touch the offerings of three Atlanta pitchers and the Southern leaguers won, 1 to 0, in an exhibition today. Hearn, Douglas, and Starling combined to shut out the Yanks with two hits, a double by Johnson and a scratch single by Chapman. Johnson and Rhodes shut out the Crackers until the ninth inning, when they pushed over the game's only run. Atlanta made seven hits.

New York [A.]	.000	000	000	000	0	2	2
Atlanta [S. A.]	.000	000	001	—1	7	1

Batteries—Johnson, Rhodes and Perkins; Hearn, Douglas, Starling and Autry.

ATHLETICS WIN, 12 TO 2.

Jacksonville, Fla., March 29.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics found melodee pitching much to their liking today and beat a Jacksonville cigar company team, 12 to 2. Lefty Grove got loose for five innings for the champions and retired eight on strikes. He did not allow a hit. Rommell eased up in the latter rounds and Jacksonville pushed over two runs.

Athletics	.100	171	700	—12	16	1
Ray Edward	.000	008	200	— 2	4	1

Batteries—Grove, Rommel and Cochrane; Thevenow, Adams, Porter, Justus and Pointer, Malley.

BROWNS, 10; BUFFALO, 5.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 29.—(AP)—Manager Bill Killefer's St. Louis Browns romped over the Buffalo Bisons of the International league in an exhibition game here today, 10 to 5.

Buffalo	.000	300	020—	5	8	3
St. Louis	.042	002	11*—10	14	1

Batteries—Wilson, Danforth, Gould, and Sims; Kiesholder, Stiles, M. Ferrell, and Berg, R. Ferrell.

INDIANS BEAT CARDS, 12-3.

Sarasota, Fla., March 29.—(AP)—The Indianapolis Indians, who finished last in the American association last season, pounded Paul Derring for 14 hits and 12 runs in five innings this afternoon, defeating the St. Louis Cardinals 12 to 3. Bill Burwell and Les Dancy held the Redbirds to seven hits. Score:

St. Louis	.200	001	000—	3	7	0
Indianapolis	.083	200	000—12	13	0

Batteries—Derringer, Kaufmann, and Wilson, Mancuso; Burwell, Dancy, and Angley, Hale.

ROBINS, 12; TOLEDO, 11.

Miami, Fla., March 29.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Robins defeated the Toledo Mud Hens today, 12 to 11, in a 10 inning exhibition game featured by nine home runs. Babe Herman, Frank O'Doul, Fred Heimach, Del Bissonette, and Gordon Slade hit one each for the Robins, while Knickerbocker hit two and Wingard and Haas one each for Toledo.

The Robins drove Scott from the mound in the third inning when they put over six runs and made it 10-0 in the fourth, but the American association team came back, scoring seven runs in the ninth to tie the count.

Brooklyn [N]	.206	200	010	1—12	18	1
Toledo [AA]	.000	020	207	0—11	14	1

Batteries—Heimach, Shaute, Green, Fisher and Picinich, Richards; Scott, Mays and Lee, Griffin.

PIRATES, 4; DETROIT, 3.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 29.—(AP)—Effective pitching by Irvin Brame and a home run by George Grantham gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 4 to 3 victory over the Detroit Americans today. It was Pittsburgh' first win of the four game contest. Score:

Detroit	.000	020	010—	3	6	0
Pittsburgh	.211	000	00*—	4	8	1

Batteries—Sorrell, Herring and Hayworth, Bayne, Willoughby and Heimsley.

BRAVES WIN, 9 TO 3.

Tampa, Fla., March 29.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds and the Boston Braves put on a comedy of errors in an exhibition game here today, the Braves walking off with a 9 to 3 victory. The Reds counted their runs in the first inning due to five errors. The Braves pounded Kolp and Carroll for twelve hits. Score:

Boston [N.]	.111	221	000—9	13	2
Cincinnati [N.]	.300	000	000—3	6	3

Batteries—Brandt, Siebold, Zachary and Spohrer, Bool; Kolp, Carroll and Sukeforth.

RED SOX WIN, 6 TO 2.

Chattanooga, Tenn., March 29.—(AP)—The Red Sox beat Chattanooga, 6 to 2, here today. The most sensational play of Boston's spring tour was made by Harold Warstler, when he went back of second base, jumped to take a liner, and then threw to first.

Red Sox	.040	001	010—6	9	2

Batteries—Chambers, Childs, Bushey, and Jones; MacFayden, Moore, and Berry.

St. Joseph, St. Agatha Win Catholic Youth Cage Titles

St. Joseph's lights, central division champions, yesterday defeated St. Theodore, leader in the southwest division, 17 to 14, to win the lightweight championship of the Catholic Youth Basketball league. St. Agatha, west division title holder, won the heavyweight title in an overtime contest with St. Rose of Lima, south section champs. The score was 17 to 15. Third place in the lightweight division went to Queen of Angels, which trounced St. Kevin. In the heavyweight class St. Andrew beat Perpetual Help, 13 to 9, for third place.

A Hero's Heart Beats Inside a Wrestler's Bulging Chest

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Sunday afternoon in the sports department. A brawny young wind whistled outside, while indoors no sound was heard save the occasional buzz of a telephone and the sporadic typewriter pecking of a solitary reporter. A dull time, this Sunday afternoon on a morning newspaper, mused the lone journalist, who was starting his version of the great American novel for the seventy-eighth time. This also marked the seventy-eighth hero the incipient author had tried to produce, but somehow it wasn't the right one. He had sought his hero among bond salesmen, peanut vendors, and prize fighters, but all of them lacked the stuff of which heroes are made.

JIM McMILLEN.

In short, the would-be novelist was discouraged. Where in the land was a type combining all of the manly virtues with a seasoning of human fire? That was what he wanted—a creature of temperament—and even as he rambled thus, came the solution. For out of the day that was thirty above and into the empty silence rumbled Dr. John Krone, the oracle of the grand old game of wrestling. The doctor has run the gamut of groans and grimaces from Gotch to Londos, and the author saw in him a well of information about the hero he had suddenly decided on—a wrestler.

An Answer to Author's Prayer.

The doctor was done up in his usual funereal garb, but somehow his famous composure was missing. In fact, he was panting and perspiring as though he were fleeing from some horrible nightmare, and when he had finally assembled his 250 pounds atop a desk the hero seeker explained his problem to him, adding that he would chin himself on the doctor's every syllable.

"Well, that certainly is a coincidence, my boy," began Dr. Krone. "Here I have just come from a conference with seven of the athletes whom I will present in my grappling production at the historic Coliseum Monday night, and never have I seen such a display of temperament, if temperament is what you are looking for in your hero. And I may say that you could not have selected a finer type of athlete than a wrestler for your hero.

What! No Londos?

"Take that sturdy Illini, that toast of the football fraternity, that graduate engineer, Jim McMillen, who will clash with George Zaharias, the ornery Greek, in the feature match of my presentation tomorrow. He tips the scales at 220 pounds and began his career under the tutelage of Paul Prehn, Illinois wrestling coach and one of the greatest of all middleweights. Now in his struggle with Zaharias——"

"But, doctor, it is understood that James Londos, the human magnet of the box office, is not on the card Monday. How can you hope to attract the lovers of the sport if James is not in your cast?"

A look of pain creased the doctor's brow. "Why, McMillen is the second greatest box office attraction of all time. Not more than two weeks ago in New York City, in defeating Sandor Szabo, he drew more than 18,000 customers. And in regard to his two matches with Londos, I just left him in a very rage. He stormed all over the office about those two epic clashes. 'Yes, Londos has beaten me twice in New York, in one fall matches, but I'm a two fall wrestler,' Jim said. 'I twisted his ankle and he was lucky enough to pin me when I got careless. If it had been two falls out of three, I'd have won. Didn't he go to the hospital after the match?'

Cheers Bring Tears to George.

"This Zaharias boy is supposed to be pretty temperamental, too, isn't he, doctor?"

"You will never know how hurt that young man was at his championship match with Londos here a few months ago," replied the doctor. "Why, the fans actually cheered him. He was almost in tears today as he told me about it. You see, he is like Jack Sharkey. He must be booed in order to do his best. 'They didn't boo me enough in that Londos bout, Doc,' George said to me today. 'There were a few scattered razzberries in the house, but most of the crowd stood up and hollered every time I made a move. I am looking forward to a rousing Bronx cheer when I step into the ring with McMillen.'

A Grudge Rassle.

"The McMillen-Zaharias duel will be the piece de resistance of my production," continued Dr. Krone, "but for sheer temperament I hope you are not overlooking one of the greatest grudge matches in mat history, that which will bring together Kola Kwariani, the Bald Cossack, and Chief Jim Clinkstock, the Indian giant. Jim gave Kola something to remember him by a while back when he nearly removed the Russian terror's eye in a match at St. Louis. The Pride of the Steppes even now is pacing the streets awaiting the moment when he will face his Indian foe. And the Chief himself is in a mood to remove both eyes this time. I guess maybe that is what you call temperament.

"And the rest of the card is no less temperamental. Mike Romano, the elderly Italian, says he will put the ever winning Frank Brunowicz in his place, and Frank chuckled heartily when he heard same. Karl Pojello and Buzz Bartley are on pins and needles over their match, as are Paul Jones and Martinez Terrea about theirs.

"Well, I will be on my way now, but I think you have an idea of the temperament you will write into your hero. And may I suggest that you join the 9,000 others who will journey to the Coliseum tomorrow to see these splendid young men vie in this greatest of all sports?"

The alleged author sat down to resume the great American novel.

"Well, this is certainly a wonder man Doc Krone has given me for a hero," he mused. "Now if I can only find a heroine to match him. Maybe I had better have two heroines for him."

Giants Pound 3 Sox Hurlers with 15-8 Win

made their sixth inning profitable by assessing Moore for three runs. Leach started it by doubling to left. After Lindstrom's demise Terry beat out a scratch hit to Cissell. Ott singled to left, Leach scoring, and when Jolley committed an error on the hit, Terry went to third and Ott to second. Both fellows hurried home on Marshall's Texas league single.

The Sox were delighted to find Mitchell gone in the seventh and showed their appreciation by hitting Morrell for a run. Cissell started this with a double and scored when Reynolds singled.

There is no necessity for exposing just how the Giants piled up five runs against Kid O'Shaughnessy in the ninth. It is sufficient to mention that there were numerous hits, a pass, a hit batter, a wild pitch, and one of Jolley's errors. Then, to put up a fitting finish to the show, the Sox gave Morrell a few more busy minutes. Two of four runs scored in this concluding inning were due to Jolley's second home run. Hits by Reynolds, Appling and Kamm, and Terry's error on a ground ball, also figured.

Purple Martins Are Due, So Get Houses Ready

BY BOB BECKER.

When is the best time to put up a martin house and how can one keep the sparrows out of it? These are two questions which many bird fans are trying to solve. The purple martins are apt to check into Chicagoland anytime within the next week (if they strike an average of their arrival dates).

Martin houses should be put up at once. For the last two years the advance scouts of these welcome birds have come into Chicagoland west of the loop April 5 or 6. Farther south in the state the birds appeared late in March.

If you are going to place a martin nesting box in position, be prepared to wage war against the sparrows. You must surrender to them or exterminate them. There are no half way measures that we know of.

If your martin house is in position, keep the compartments closed and shoot every sparrow that visits the box. One of those high power air guns, a smooth bore twenty-two rifle which shoots fine shot, or a .410 gives you a choice of weapons to use. If you kill one or two sparrows on the house and the birds do not fall to the ground leave them in plain view for a day.

Relentless persecution of these noisy, quarrelsome, and pestiferous birds right now may give you a chance to land a colony of martins. On the other hand, if the compartments of your martin box are opened a long time before the martins arrive, like as not the sparrows, if left alone, will take over the whole place.

In many respects the purple martin is one of our most fascinating migrants. He is different from the flicker, wren, and bluebird, which also will take manmade nesting boxes, because he likes to nest and raise his family in company with others of his kind.

Another interesting feature about this insectivorous bird is his migration. He comes early, leaves early in the fall, and travels a tremendous distance just to spend about four and a half months up here. When the martins check out in the fall they head for Brazil, where insect food is abundant during the winter. That's a long journey to make. To reach here in April they left Brazil some weeks ago, flying north slowly, as they gathered their meals on the wing.

Gotham to See Johnny Risko Test Poreda Tonight

New York, March 29.—(AP)—Johnny Risko of Cleveland returns to New York tomorrow to test the capabilities of the Jersey City youngster, Stanley Poreda.

Risko and Poreda are matched in the ten round feature match in Madison Square Garden in a bout that may make or break the New Jersey boy.

Poreda, nursed along carefully, has been bowling over second rate opponents with ease but never has been called upon to meet so experienced a workman as Risko. Johnny never has been able to reach the heights himself, but he has stood in the way of plenty of other contenders.

This bout tops an otherwise uninteresting national fistic program. At Philadelphia tomorrow night, Benny Bass, junior lightweight champion, battles Young Firpo of Pennsgrove, Pa., in a nontitle match. At Boston on Tuesday, King Levinsky of Chicago meets the Irish heavyweight, Con O'Kelly, in a ten rounder.

Then there's the return to the ring of Paul Berlenbach, former light heavyweight champion, who is starting from the bottom once more. Paul meets Eddie Clark, New York Negro, in a four rounder at the Broadway arena Tuesday night.

George Arliss spoke of "those distinctive styles for men which the tailors advertise and which the well-dressed man tries so steadfastly to avoid."

True; the real distinction of style in clothing lies in its ability to be unobtrusively correct.

Rogers Peet not only preach that—they practice it in all the wearables they make for men and boys.

For example: Our new Rogers Peet sack suits and new Spring topcoats to go with 'em.

At new low prices—from $40.

BRITISH POLOISTS BEAT AMERICAN ALL-STARS, 11-9

Beresford Field, Cal., March 29.—(AP)—In a smashing display of high goal polo, Great Britain, as represented by Capt. Pat Roark, Aiden Roark, Laddie Sanford, and Will Tevis, rode to victory over an all star American team today. The score was 11 to 9.

Great Britain's representatives galloped to three goals in the first period and thereafter set the pace. Capt. Pat Roark, a nine goal star who played with the British international team last year, and his brother proved the outstanding members. The captain scored three goals and his brother four.

Know the superiority of AIR-COOLED POWER in automobile and airplane

Captain Hawks—speed monarch of the sky—recently purchased a Franklin. He said, "My experience with aircraft has proved the superiority of the air-cooled power plants, and this feature influenced my purchase of the new De Luxe Franklin Convertible Speedster." Captain Hawks is just one of many aviators and aviation authorities who have chosen Franklin for their personal car. They have found in Franklin the kind of performance they are used to in the air. They are thrilled by the airplane feel—by riding like gliding—by 80 miles an hour seeming like 50—by the remarkable absence of vibration. Prove to yourself that Franklin offers the most advanced motor car performance America has ever known. Call us today for a trial ride.

POSITION OF U. S. ON WHEAT SEEN AS IMPROVED

Season's Low Made for July Grain.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A change for the better has come in the wheat trade as regards the attitude of the federal farm board, which announced its policy in regard to new crop wheat and the disposal of the old crop of which it has, or expects to have, about 200,000,000 bu by the end of May.

This old wheat is to be sold at 82½c f. a. b. Chicago for No. 2 hard with differentials for quality. The price is to be advanced ½c every ten days to June 30 to cover storage charges, which will make the price at that time 85½c. It costs practically 20c a bushel per year to carry wheat in store so that it would be a miracle for the farm board to be able to unload without a loss.

It was suggested by one operator that had the farm board sold July against its holdings of cash and May, the trade would have taken the load, enabling the farm board to gradually work out of it. It would have been at a lower price eventually as competition in the world's market would have been necessary and the United States would have been on a world's basis. It is not expected that the farm board will make large sales of wheat at its asking prices unless world's crop prospects are seriously damaged in the near future and the European buying power is greatly increased.

Closes Around Bottom.

Lowest prices of the season were made for July and September wheat during the week, with the close at around the bottom, with a bearish feeling. In trading the feature was the closing of an immense volume of spreads, September being sold and July bought in some instances, and vice versa. There was also heavy trading in covering of wheat and unloading of corn to close spreads.

An interesting situation exists in July wheat, presenting a different position from any previous period in the history of the trade. Principal factors now governing wheat delivery, according to George E. Saunders of J. S. Bache & Co., are prospects of complete absence of mill stocks when new wheat moves, and difficulty of placing wheat in a position to deliver on July contracts.

Mr. Saunders believes that elevator space will be virtually choked with government owned wheat even by the end of May due to the big premiums being paid by the government for old crop wheats.

"July wheat cannot be delivered on track here except during the last three days, wheat loaded out of Chicago elevators cannot be delivered on track on July sale at any time, nor can grain originating at other terminals or at interior warehouses known as reshipping plants, where the grade or character of the grain may have been changed," says Mr. Saunders.

May Rely on New Crop.

"It is thought by some that old crop wheat not owned by the government on June 1 will be worth only new crop price and will cease loading the terminals. It is also said that

CUNEO PRESS EARNS MORE IN 1930 THAN IT DID DURING 1929

By increasing its tonnage of printing by more than 16 per cent, the Cuneo Press, Inc., was able to show a gain in net earnings in 1930 over the preceding year. The company's annual report issued last night shows net profit of $1,347,212, equivalent after preferred dividends to $6.96 a share on the outstanding common stock. This compares with previous year's net profit of $1,311,334 or $6.72 a share on the common stock.

The company's plants handled 462,891,415 pounds of paper in 1930, as compared with 397,064,395 in 1929. The dollar volume of business, however, showed only a slight increase. Gross profit for 1930 was $3,151,451, against $1,144,073 in 1929.

The surplus account shows a balance at the close of last year of $3,958,080, which contrasts with $3,200,051 at the end of the preceding year. In addition to preferred dividends of $158,784 and common dividends of $321,078 a deduction from surplus of $109,320 was made during the year for depreciation on capitalization. Plant and equipment is carried in the balance at $561,286, the same as last year. In a note appended to the balance sheet it is stated that a reappraisal made in September showed the plant assets to be worth $9,642,246. Current assets on Dec. 31 were $3,128,949, and current liabilities were $1,379,011.

AUSTRALIA BONDS DROP FOLLOWING DEFAULT THREAT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 29.—The pronouncement by the premier of New South Wales, one of the states of the "indissoluble" states of the federation of the commonwealth of Australia, that state would meet its interest payments due here on April 1, amounting to $626,885, but would not pay the $3,646,255 due in London on the same date, has caused an upset in all bonds of the Australian government, its states and municipalities. The small recoveries subsequently made on Friday and Saturday failed to prevent these issues from finishing the week with losses.

The belief is current in Wall street banking circles that the finance agreement entered into in 1929 between the commonwealth and its several states covers the present situation, whereby, if necessary, the commonwealth funds will be used to prevent a default in interest on the bonds of New South Wales.

The tenor of the opinion expressed by British financial writers on the subject this week was that London bankers were annoyed by the fact the Australian premier alluded to the legal questions of the case without making a definite statement that the commonwealth would make good the interest involved.

Sees Industrial Activity at Normal Point in 1932

Industrial activity will reach normal during the first half of 1932, after making some recovery during the summer and more rapid advances during the autumn, according the Garfield V. Cox, professor of finance in the School of Commerce and Administration of the University of Chicago. Prof. Cox's prophecy is made in an article on "The Business Outlook for 1931," in the current issue of the University of Chicago magazine. Comparing the present depression with the previous major declines of the last fifty years, the writer says that the current decline has already lasted longer than the total period of recession in two-thirds of the previous major depressions.

1930 Earnings of Bethlehem $23,843,406

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 29.—Gross sales of the Bethlehem Steel corporation in 1930 were $268,979,253, as compared with $342,516,207 in 1919, according to its twenty-sixth annual report to stockholders. Bookings last year amounted to $241,344,965, against $369,536,888 in 1929. At the end of 1930 the company had on hand unfilled orders, valued at $68,426,596, as compared with $86,060,883 at the end of 1929.

Net income last year, as revealed in a preliminary report several weeks ago, was $23,843,406, equivalent after preferred dividends to $5.26 a share on the common stock, as compared with $42,242,980, or $11.01 a share, in 1929, on the basis of 3,200,000 shares of common stock outstanding at the end of 1930.

The report declares that the 1930 earnings were made in the face of the adverse general industrial situation, which affected production and selling prices.

Cites Plant Operations.

"Operations of your steel plants for the year averaged 61.7 per cent of capacity, as compared with 91.8 per cent in 1929," the report declares. "During the first half of the year a satisfactory rate of operation was maintained, but during the second half the demand for practically all steel products steadily declined until in December the rate of operations was only 31.3 per cent of capacity, the lowest rate at which your steel plants have operated since July, 1924. The reduction in operations was accompanied by a substantial decrease in selling prices throughout the year.

"The year 1930 was marked by a substantial revival in the shipbuilding industry, and although this was not reflected to any great extent in 1930 profits, the volume of new work on hand for your shipbuilding subsidiary is larger than at any time since 1921."

Bethlehem's cash expenditures for additions and improvements of properties last year amounted to $47,158,004, compared with $22,193,308 in 1929. The estimated cost of completing the construction authorized and in progress as of Dec. 31, 1930, was $14,320,000.

Reduces Funded Debt.

The funded debt of the corporation on Dec. 31, 1930, was $117,528,600, and in addition $21,789,500 in bonds was in the corporation's treasury. The funded debt was reduced $66,810,995 from the total of $184,339,595 outstanding at the end of 1929.

The consolidated balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1930, shows current assets of $159,369,624, as against current liabilities of $39,948,347. At the end of 1929 current assets were $228,171,775 and current liabilities $48,926,119.

DEPRESSION DUE TO PRICE DECLINE, D'ABERNON AVERS

New York, March 29.—(AP)—The world economic depression is due to the fall in commodity price levels and to a corner in gold, Viscount d'Abernon, former British ambassador to Berlin, said today in an address broadcast in the United States from London over the WABC-Columbia network.

Lord d'Abernon, an eminent financier for fifty years, attacked the "peaceful passivity" of those who consider the depressions as merely "cyclical." He blamed underconsumption rather than overproduction as the cause of the slump.

As a remedy, he urged concerted action by the United States, England, and France to preserve the solvency of the debtor nations and combined action by the banks of the principal gold using countries to end the corner in gold and to restore stability to the relative value of gold and commodities.

Jones & Laughlin Acquire New Orleans Steel Plant

Pittsburgh, March 29. — (AP) — The Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation announces it has acquired the Lukens Steel company plant at New Orleans. It will be taken over at once. Purchase of the Lukens plant is another step in the Jones & Laughlin development of river-rail transportation, an official said. Jones & Laughlin now operates a river fleet of 12 towboats and 250 steel barges.

Business Hopes to Coast Along at Spring Trade Peak

New York, March 29.—(AP)—Having struggled up a long grade since the first of the year, business saw signs of the approach of a level plateau during the last week.

Inasmuch as the spring upturn in business usually reaches a peak around this time of year, it will be gratifying if it can move along on the level for a time. In its course through the spring months it often coasts down a mild grade, so even a little letdown later on should not shake the belief that the major business cycle has touched bottom.

As a matter of fact, some observers feel that further improvement through April may be expected. The motor industry, at least, is planning further acceleration. If business can manage to point upward during much of the spring months it may be accepted as further evidence that the business cycle has definitely turned into its long upsweep.

Lends Fresh Courage.

A gradual upward trend throughout the first quarter of the year has at least generated new hope and lent fresh courage, banishing the paralyzing fears that attended the acute disturbances late in 1930. Appraisals of the progress made, however, vary widely. There is a tendency in most quarters to believe that deeper forces of recovery than the purely seasonal influences have been at work. There is considerable difference of opinion as to whether the aggregate gain so far has been more or less than seasonal forces usually achieve.

A cautious note was sounded by Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors corporation, who said in an interview that the hope for recovery is brighter, "but there are no statistics to prove a change in trend, and any prophecy that business will be good at a certain time is merely a guess." He expressed the belief, however, that 1932 and 1933 will be good years.

Most conspicuous in last week's business statistics were estimates showing that the steady upturn in steel mill operations since the first of the year had at last been checked. It is felt, however, that building projects and automotive demand may cause some further acceleration in this major industry in April. Reports at the end of the week that recent advances in prices for bars, shapes, and plates had not been successful in stimulating new buying, and that there had been some unofficial concessions, were a little disheartening.

Building Statistics.

Building statistics indicated that contracts let in the third week of the month had undergone substantial shrinkage from the rate in the first two weeks, but the aggregate for the first 21 days was still about 40 per cent over February, or almost double the usual seasonal gain. April usually shows a gain of around 11 per cent over March.

A larger than seasonal gain in weekly freight car loadings and a smaller than normal decrease in electric power consumption were due largely to special circumstances. Car loadings were boosted by a special movement of coal, and power consumption was helped by an upturn on the Pacific coast, where more was used for irrigation pumping.

Reports from retail trade, however, were cheering. The approach of Easter has provided considerable stimulation to apparel buying, and the aggregate business seems to have been the best so far this year. The revived textile industry is still maintaining its improvement, and recent statistics indicate that in some lines sales are considerably larger than production.

PHONE SERVICE SOON TO LINK U. S. WITH EAST INDIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 29.—Regular telephone service between North America and the island of Java, Dutch East Indies, will be inaugurated April 1, by means of trans-Atlantic telephone to London, submarine cable to Amsterdam, and short wave wireless to Java. During certain hours of the day connection will be established through a German station near Berlin, instead of through Amsterdam. The length of the circuit from New York to Java is 10,400 miles via Amsterdam and 10,900 via Berlin.

DIVIDEND CUTS TAKEN CALMLY BY WALL STREET

Events Discounted Six Months Ago.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 29.—Reduction in dividends last week from 10 per cent to 8 by the Westinghouse Electric company and from 7 to 5 by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad was followed by no great disturbance on the stock exchange. The farm board's declaration, that the American wheat crop of 1931 would be left to find its own valuation, was received on the grain markets with entire composure. The stock market declined moderately, but it appeared to be tacitly recognized that the sweeping decline of 1930, on the stock exchange and in the wheat market, anticipated both occurrences.

The action of both companies was plain recognition of the shrinkage in earnings already reported for 1930 and for the present quarter. Last year's net income for the B. & O. had decreased 18⅛ per cent from 1929; net income of the Westinghouse, 56 per cent. It was during the "boom times" of 1929 that the rate paid by each had been raised to much the highest since the war; the change now made, like the New York Central's reduction of its rate, a fortnight ago, from 8 per cent to 6, was recognition of circumstances known to every one.

It was hardly to be supposed that a market which had been "discounting" present occurrences six months ago, and which is now discounting developments equally far ahead of it, would have been stricken with consternation at the news.

Light on Grain Situation.

The farm board's announcement that it would not meddle with the 1931 wheat crop, and the market's reception of that announcement, possibly threw some light on the grain trade situation. At Chicago wheat contracts for July and September delivery, with whose price the farm board had not interfered and which will include the "new crop wheat," declined 2 cents on the day of the board's declaration and a fraction of a cent next day.

The judgment of the years

TO hold money in idleness with the hope of lower bond prices is to trade assured income for price advantage that may never come.

Loss of income is a fact—lower markets, in any phase of the business cycle, are but a possibility.

The time to buy good bonds is as soon as funds become available.

This is the judgment of the years. For long time averages prove that the man with his money always earning gains more than he who leaves money idle hoping to win a market advantage.

The Northern Trust Company, from its more than forty years of conservative counsel to investors, offers assistance in bond selection that is competent and complete. The executives of the Bond Department are available for consultation at all times.

An Improved Form of Fixed Trust

COMMONWEALTH TRUST SHARES presents to investors an improved form of fixed investment trust, entirely distributive in type. In this investment medium there have been embodied outstanding advantages which time and experience have revealed in the investment trust field.

INVESTORS, seeking assurance of stable income and appreciation in capital, will recognize these desirable points . . . a portfolio comprising common stocks of thirty great corporations, acknowledged leaders of America's basic industries . . . a selection diversified in substantial accord with the sources of National Corporate Income . . . average age of these companies exceeds 58 years . . . average continuous dividend record exceeds 34 years . . . and the average annual return on their grouped underlying stocks (for the eighteen years to December 31, 1930) would have been 15.65%, or $2.01 per share per year.

COMMONWEALTH TRUST SHARES introduces definite improvements . . . no reserve fund, hence income is not penalized . . . no annual charge for Trustees fees . . . all accumulated income including interest on accumulations paid to shareholders, twice yearly, on July 10 and January 10 . . . a fair offering price, because purchase of underlying shares is based on a round-lot, not an odd-lot commission basis . . . a liberal reinvestment policy. . . . Certificates are available in denominations of 10, 25, 50, 100, 400 and 1600 shares, suitable to investors of both moderate and substantial wealth. The Trust terminates January 10, 1946.

Price at the Market Approximately $8 a Share

A Circular and Graphic Analysis, fully descriptive of this Improved Form of Fixed Trust, will be sent promptly to interested investors and bankers upon request.

DIVIDEND CUTS RECEIVED CALMLY BY WALL STREET

Recent Events Discounted Six Months Ago.

This was hardly a sensational response. It barely exceeded the decline scored on numerous recent days. As a matter of fact, the market correctly appraised the new development in the grain trade situation.

It had never believed that government money would be used to extend into the 1931 wheat crop the hopelessly futile experiment already made with the crop of 1930. It is even conceivable that, to the grain market's subconscious mind, open disavowal of such a purpose was itself a steadying influence, as often true regarding announcement of outwardly bad news which had long been a daily expectation.

This was more likely to be the outcome, when the farm board had at least not intimated the purpose of throwing the rest of its "old crop" holdings forthwith on the market; the haunting idea of which had played a part not wholly determinable in the fall of 25¾ cents in July wheat at Chicago between last October 31 and a week ago.

Must Seek Other Solutions.

The wheat trade's problem will now have to be worked out in other ways. Last year began, as every one knew, with an almost unprecedentedly great surplus of unsold wheat the world over—the result of a 20 to 30 per cent increase in total annual production since 1924. Yet the wheat crop of 1930 actually ran beyond all previous records, increasing over 1929, according to most estimates, by 650,000,000 bushels, or 16 per cent. Russia was not the only culprit in the way of overproduction. Even the more liberal calculations grant that country an increase over 1929 of only 397,000,000 bushels, whereas the two Americas added 267,000,000 and India and Australia 168,000,000. It was quite inconceivable, with consuming power cut down to a minimum by worldwide hard times and unemployment, that such production should not have acted as prices exactly as it did.

In course of time, the fall in prices should itself, in the light of experience, correct such maladjustment, both by decreased production due to unprofitable prices and by increased consumption due to reviving industry and much cheaper wheat.

Texas Corporation.

I would like to get some information on Texas corporation. I would like to buy some common stock at the present price if I thought the company could continue to pay the present rate of dividends. That will depend largely, no doubt, on the amount of business they are able to do in the future. How about their present condition and prospects for the future?—N. R. B.

Texas corporation and its subsidiaries form one of the leading units in the petroleum industry both in this country and abroad. The corporation was formed in 1926 as a holding company to succeed the old Texas company. Through subsidiaries it has large producing areas in California, Texas and Oklahoma as well as in Mexico, Colombia and Venezuela. Pipe line, refinery, storage and marketing facilities are extensive. Last year about $54,000,000 of the funds raised through the sale of bonds in October, 1929, was spent in improving and adding to these facilities. Under ordinary conditions these investments would have been more fully reflected in the income account.

Prior to 1930 earnings were high. Last year Texas corporation, like other concerns in this industry, suffered not only from the reduced volume of general business, but from the effects of over production of oil. Attempts to curtail production to keep it in line with demand have not yet met with much success.

Despite poorer results last year, the current position is strong and the company has a large surplus.

In January President Holmes stated that even if market conditions should not improve the company would probably be able to continue the present $3 annual dividend rate for at least another year and still maintain ample cash reserves. This, however, was not a promise. The board of directors decide from time to time what the dividend rate shall be.

The poorer showing last year was due in large part to lower prices for gasoline and to inventory adjustments necessitated by the drop in the market for gasoline in the latter part of the year. Reserves charged against income for depreciation and depletion were greater last year than in 1929.

Net profit for 1930 was $15,073,303, equal to $1.53 per share earned on the 1,351,151 common shares [par $25], against net of $48,318,072 for 1929.

On Dec. 31, 1930, current assets were $229,926,399 and current liabilities were $32,232,891. Earned surplus was $138,077,737.

Texas corporation common has been well regarded among oil stocks. The present uncertainty in the industry and the failure to earn dividends in 1930, however, lend a speculative element.

National Family Stores.

Will you kindly give me the following information: Price of National Family Stores common stock on June 1, 1929?—W. G. B. S.

On June 1, 1929, National Family Stores common was quoted at a high of 37 and a low of 35¼. It closed at 36¾ [New York curb.]

ATTITUDE OF U. S. IN WHEAT TRADE SEEN AS BETTER

Expect Farm Board Grain to Choke Elevators.

mills will be cleaned out of high priced old crop when new wheat moves, bakers will be out of flour, and sellers of July may have to rely on new crop to fill contracts and then find space to deliver, and in the meantime the government will advance its selling prices ½c each ten days, April 1 to June 30."

Closing prices were at practically the lowest of the season, with a bearish feeling and an impression that the increased supply of moisture from rain and snow over the entire wheat belt will in a measure make up for any loss in the southwest from freezing. Closing trades on July wheat were at 59¾@59¾c; September, 59⅝c to 59½c, July going from a discount to a premium over September. New crop futures were off 2¾@2¾c for the week, while old crop months were stronger and ¼@1¼c higher, March closing at 80⅞c and May 82¾c. Prices for the week follow:

Corn at Season's Low.

July and September corn dropped to the lowest of the season on Saturday, with the close at 63¾@63⅝c on July, and 63¼@63¼c for September. May closed at 62@61⅞c and September 63¼@63¼c, losses being 1⅝@1¾c, the latter on September.

Trading was largely in selling out long corn and covering short wheat, an immense line of spreads having been out.

In the cash situation there was an improvement, with sufficient corn moving from the country to about supply present requirements. Indications are that farmers will plant about 5 per cent more acres to corn than last year, which would bring the total up to about 105,000,000 acres. On the basis of 26 bushels to the acre this would give 2,730,000,000 bu, compared with 2,981,000,000 bu harvested last year, 2,614,000,000 bu in 1929, and 2,819,000,000 bu in 1928. SEA TRAVEL LESS, CUNARD PROFITS FOR 1930 $93,005

LIVERPOOL, March 29.—(AP)—The Cunard Steamship company, which announced last week that no dividend could be paid this year on ordinary shares, has published a 1930 statement showing a net profit of $93,005, which, with a balance of $1,976,325 from 1929, makes the total of $2,069,-330 from which to pay a dividend on preferred shares, leaving $1,394,335 carried forward."

In the previous year the company paid 7½ per cent on ordinary shares from a record net profit of $4,048,195. The report attributes a decrease in first class trans-Atlantic passenger traffic to economic conditions and a decrease in third class westbound traffic to unemployment in the United States and Canada. Third class tourist cabin continues to increase, the statement shows.

Abraham & Straus Profit Drops Slightly in 1930

Abraham & Straus reported for the year ended Jan. 31 net profit of $910,-050, equal to $4.16 a share on the common stock, against $1,012,726, or $4.80 a share, for the preceding fiscal year.

Business Personals

Continental Illinois company announced today the appointment of Fred M. Gillespie as manager of its Detroit office. Mr. Gillespie has been connected with the sales department of the company in Chicago for several years and in his new capacity succeeds William M. Rex, who has been called to the Chicago office.

Directors of the Puget Sound Power and Light company have accepted the resignation of C. W. Kellogg, chairman of the board, and elected A. W. Leonard to succeed him. Mr. Leonard resigned as president of the company to take this position and J. F. McLaughlin was elected president to succeed Mr. Leonard.

Mr. James P. Hackett, formerly vice president of Camp Thorne & Co., Inc., has been appointed manager of the trading department of the Wittbold Securities company.

Why Not Direct Your Selling Efforts Where They Will Bring You the Biggest Returns?

Our men have always been successful because of the backing and support they have received from us in the field.

It takes a sound working plan plus a large variety of locations offered to the public at conservative prices to make sales in 1931.

We are looking for 25 men between 25 to 45 years of age.

Selling in the real estate sales field is not absolutely necessary.

We know what salesmen need today and we believe we have the means to supply them with the necessary working tools.

You may call between 9 a. m. and 3 p. m. at 936 N. Michigan-av.

We Will Help the Man Who Wants to Work

We are now increasing our local and national organization in preparation for spring business. Those men who join us now will be in a position to profit by the tremendous volume of business that will result from our current national advertising.

Our requirements are as follows: Ambition, neat appearance, good references, between 28 and 55 years of age. To twelve such men we offer a permanent position with good pay and unlimited future in the sales department of one of the leading manufacturers in the country.

Your earnings to start will be based on your own ability to understand our products and explain them to others, after we have given you, at our expense, a thorough sales training. Our unusually fair and unique method of compensation where each man shares in the profits on a liberal commission basis has enabled us to boast of one of the largest, highest paid sales organizations in America, where men who work make regularly from $150 to $1,000 per month, and many of these men never sold anything before coming with us.

If you think you will measure up to our requirements we will be glad to have you call today between 10-4. See Mr. Taylor 75 E. Wacker-dr., Suite 1002, Mather Tower.

A SPECIALTY

Two necessities, in great demand selling for half of what they could be purchased for anywhere else at special low terms of $1 a week.

Just 2 orders a day with a mere $1 deposit pays you $20 a week in full.

Attention, W. Side Men
Oak Park and Vicinity

I am interested in securing about 10 men of good character who can furnish references and who are mechanically or electrically inclined. These men should be between the ages of twenty and forty, preferably married. If you have the above qualifications you will be thoroughly trained in our methods or selling our products, and then if you are accepted, placed in the field with experienced men with assured income.

At the present time our company maintains offices in the country doing the same thing for our organization. Program for the year is to establish offices all over the country. We are at the present time successfully operating throughout 43 countries of the world, therefore claim largest, wealthiest company of its kind in the world today. We shall be able to place the successful applicant in real executive positions as soon as short a time as possible. The positions pay salaries of from $250 to $150 a week. See MR. OAKLEY, Monday only, between 1-4 p. m.

818 Harrison-st., Rm. 202-9, OAK PARK.

NORTH SIDE MEN

We are expanding our operations in the United States and progress calls for about 40 men in the Illinois territory alone.

Men with ability will be assured of a splendid income and a good future with a financially strong old company. Because we are the only firm in our particular field we cannot get experienced men, but do expect intelligence, aggressiveness, and loyalty.

If you are selected you will be expected to start at once by attending factory branch school.

See Mr. Zundel, 9-10 and 1-4 Monday, Suite 361 McJunkin Bldg., 4534 Broadway, corner Wilson.
